Western Government Halt Sought By Reds

Last-Minute Appeal Toward Unity Voiced By German Reds; New Nation Would Incorporate Choice Areas Of Germany Into Republic

By James Devlin

BONN, Germany, May 7.—(AP)—The Communist-led east German people's council was reported bidding again tonight—on the eve of the adoption of a west German constitution—for a unity meeting with western German leaders.

The Soviet-licensed news service Adn said the eastern Germans sent delegates to the Bonn constitutional convention a telegram asking that the two groups meet to discuss:

1. Measures to guarantee that Germany's unity will be restored.

2. A peace treaty and the withdrawal of occupation forces.

Twice before the Soviet zone council has appealed to the west Germans to work for union of east and west Germany. The west Germans rejected the previous appeals on the ground that any unified government of east and west Germany at this time would be under Soviet control. A similar rejection was generally expected here for the latest invitation. The Bonn delegates will lay the foundation for a new nation tomorrow.

Bitterly opposed by the Communists, the nation will incorporate the states of the British, French and American zones along a federalistic line.

It will include the vast industrial resources of the Ruhr valley and a population of more than 46,000,000—largest in western Europe.

Members of the new government are slated to take office about mid-July. Final adoption of the constitution at

Sermons Will Laud Parent; Reunions To Take Place; Flowers To Be Worn

Mother's Day will be appropriately observed in the various churches here today. At the First Baptist Church, the pastor, Rev. L. T. Hastings, will preach at the morning service hour on theme, "When Home is Heaven." At the First Methodist Church, Mother's Day will be observed with a special offering being received for the building fund.

The First Presbyterian Church will hear Dr. Walter Rowe Courtenay, noted divine of Nashville, Tenn., who will start a week's series of night meetings at this church. The morning service will be of interest as the matter of the letting contract for the proposed educational building will be discussed and action is likely to be taken.

The First Christian Church will have a sermon at 11 a.m. on "What Makes a Great Mother." The pastor will preach.

Identical services will be conducted to provide for large numbers who will doubtless attend Memorial Methodist Church. The pastor, Rev. George Pearce, Jr., will deliver two Mother's Day sermons, identical, at 8:45 a.m. and 11 a.m. today.

Mother's Day will be observed in many homes as family groups assemble to do honor to an ever loyal and sacrificing parent. A flower (carration preferred) will be worn in a mother's honor, a red one for a mother who is living, and a white one in memory of a mother who has died.

MRS. MADISON RAY ARRESTED IN CASE

WINNSBORO, La., May 7.—(Special)—Sheriff Hiram Waller arrested Mrs. Madison Ray this morning on a warrant charging her with attempted murder.

Mrs. Ray was arrested in connection with the Wednesday shooting of Robert Smith who is still in a critical condition in a Winnsboro hospital. The woman's husband was arrested on the same charge Thursday.

They are the parents of five small children. The Rays operate a mattress factory in Baskin, near where the shooting occurred.

Smith, also of near Baskin, was shot as an outgrowth of a heated argument with the Ray family. He was shot at his home Wednesday.

According to Sheriff Waller, who arrested the man and his wife, they went to Smith's house where the woman called him out of the house. When Smith walked out the husband riddled him with several shots from a .22 cal. pistol.

Smith was taken to the hospital in Winnsboro where his doctor reported his condition as critical and would not remove the bullets. The bullets still remain in the man's body.

Sheriff Waller said last night that Mrs. Ray was arrested on a warrant issued to Smith's brother, Hugh Smith. She was released on a $1,000 bond Saturday afternoon, the sheriff said. Her husband is still in jail in default of a $3,000 bond.

Woman Who Inherited Steamship Millions Jails Spouse After One-Sided Fight

PALM BEACH, Fla., May 7.—(AP)—Frederick O. Hammer, noted horseman, was in a Florida jail today charged with beating his blonde heiress wife, Andrea Luckenbach Hammer, with his fists and a flashlight aboard their yacht.

Mrs. Hammer made a two-page affidavit declaring that on April 28, after they boarded their yacht Hamandy at West Palm Beach to return north, Hammer beat her and exhibited a pistol.

The next day, she swore, he saw how badly she was beaten and took her to a doctor. He told the doctor she had fallen, and "in his presence I was afraid to contradict him," said Mrs. Hammer.

County Solicitor T. Harold Williams used the affidavit to file a criminal information charging Hammer, 41, with aggravated assault.

Williams said Mrs. Hammer, daughter of the round-the-world steamship king, the late Commodore E. F. Luckenbach, returned to the yacht and accompanied her husband to Daytona Beach, Fla., "under close surveillance." There she "escaped from the boat while her husband was away and fled to her Palm Beach home. She is in seclusion here now, reportedly with friends.

WESTERNERS PLAN DISCUSSION UPON RUSSIAN MEETING

GANGING UP NOT OBJECT OF PRE-MEET GATHERING

By John M. Hightower

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—The United States, Britain and France quietly disclosed today that they will talk over major German questions before meeting with Russia in Paris two weeks hence.

Without official fanfare, diplomatic authorities in Washington, London and the French capital said that a review of their common policies in western Germany was logical and necessary before the council of foreign ministers meets. They asserted the western powers were not in any sense "ganging up" on Russia.

Nevertheless, developments spotlighted the dramatic possibility that Russia will enter the conference with a "divide and conquer" strategy to reinforce their unity and establish their common policies ahead of time.

Secretary of State Acheson, the state department said, is sending Roving Ambassador Philip Jessup and Department Counselor Charles E. Bohlen, both top flight policy makers, to Paris late next week. They will meet high ranking British and French officials. Acheson himself will go to Paris about a week later for his first

STUDENTS WILL 'RULE' 2 CITIES

Lively 'Election' Will Be Held Monday To Decide Who Are Chosen

Interest is mounting fast in the Jaycee Student Government Day to be held Wednesday, and a heated election is expected to take place Monday, at both Ouachita Parish and Neville High Schools, as students vote for their favorite candidates in their city elections.

For the first time in its history, the city of Monroe may be officially controlled by members of the fairer sex when high school students are sworn into office Wednesday to rule the city for one day. The names of several girls from both schools appear on the official ballots which have been prepared for election. Campaigning has been going on in the schools since the nominations were completed last Wednesday, and many students are of the opinion that several girls will be put into office if the large block of female students can be encouraged to vote. All of the candidates for office in the city of West Monroe are boys.

All high school students are eligible to vote in the election and regular polling booths and ballot boxes have been provided by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and placed in the lobbies of the schools to take care of the large crowds which are expected to vote.

The election is being patterned after a regular city election for the purpose of developing an interest in local government among high school students to the extent that this interest will be maintained in later life. It has long been realized that there is a great need to train youth in the affairs of our government and members of the Junior Commerce as well as school and city officials believe that this project will be a great help.

At 9:00 a.: m., Wednesday, May 11, Ouachita Parish High students will assume control of the cities of Mon-

Civil Service Restoration Urged By State's Lawyers

BATON ROUGE, La., May 7.—(AP)—The Louisiana Bar Association today called for restoration of state civil service by an amendment to the constitution.

The resolution was one of several adopted as committees submitted reports at today's closing session of the association's annual convention. It also "expressed regret" that the law was repealed.

At the 1948 convention in Lake Charles, the group adopted a resolution opposing repeal of state civil service. The statute creating the system was thrown out at a special legislative session last fall.

Two other statewide organizations recently called for a revival of the program for state employes. These were the Louisiana Federation of Labor and the League of Women Voters. They acted at separate conventions in Shreveport.

Earlier today, Bar Association delegates were told that increasing the power of the federal government will lead eventually to "socialized law practice." The warning came from Benjamin B. Taylor, of Baton Rouge, retiring association president, who expressed fear of socialism.

"Government medicine is now proposed for our country," said Taylor. "It is but one more step to a socialized law practice. We should look at what we are doing before it is too late * * *

"There is a rape of liberty in the name of freedom * * *. The conducting of a 'plan' on a nationwide scale requires the creation and exercise of power; that is, power over men wielded by other men."

Another speaker, Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Green, judge advocate general of the army, reviewed the history of military laws in this country.

Out of World War I, he said, came a review board to consider serious offenses. A parallel development in

WINS TWIN CITY HONOR

Mrs. C. E. Faulk Is 'Woman Of The Year'

West Monroe Matron Gets Award For Outstanding Contributions To Twin Cities Over Last Year; Leadership, Courage Extolled

Mrs. Clarence E. Faulk of West Monroe was presented as the "Woman of the Year" at Saturday night's banquet on the Virginia Hotel roof. The event was sponsored by three women's service clubs in the Twin Cities, Altrusa, Quota and Pilot International.

Winner of the title was chosen by a committee of outstanding women of the community from nominations sent by individuals and organizations to the Inter-Club Council.

The judges awarded the distinguished title to Mrs. Faulk for her leadership and community participation, which they declared climaxed a life devoted to civic and church work.

Told of her being selected as the "Woman of the Year," Mrs. Faulk commented in characteristic manner, "But I feel very unworthy of such a high honor. Surely, I do not deserve it." Then she added, "I must really work now in an attempt to meet the responsibilities which come with such recognition."

Through her numerous club, civic and religious welfare activities, as well as through individual assistance which she has given to needy people of Ouachita parish, Mrs. Faulk has continually shown a desire to assist the underprivileged. Actively participating in various organizations, she has done outstanding work for young people through the Recreation Board of West Monroe. Last year she was president of the Ouachita Parish Welfare Board, through which she was able to make valuable contributions in her seven-year service in the organization.

A woman noted for endless energy and courage, she also found time to serve as chairman of the residential drive of the American Red Cross, and

DOWDY PAIR TRIAL WILL OPEN MONDAY

TALLULAH, May 2.—(Special)—The trial of J. D. Dowdy, 24, and his 64-year-old father, G. R. Dowdy, for the murder of Walter Dorman on October 22, 1948, will get underway here at 9 a. m. Monday, Sheriff C. E. Hester said tonight.

The young fisherman and his plantation worker father have been held in Madison parish jail since November, 1948, after being arrested on an insurance-swindle murder conspiracy charge following the dynamiting of their tiny home seven miles north of here at Talla Bena.

Sheriff Hester, who broke the case in conjunction with Coroner E. Otis Edgerton, charges that the younger Dowdy dynamited the house after luring Dorman, a transient Mississippi painter to the cabin late one Friday night. Young Dowdy subsequently disappeared, only to be captured near the Texas line after visiting his sister in Vivian.

Dowdy claims he was frightened by the explosion which demolished his home with Dorman inside cooking, then fled to Texas. Dowdy's father was arrested with papers calling for collection of $36,000 in insurance on the death of his son. He is charged with conspiracy to murder.

A three-man board of two physicians and a psychiarist declared the younger Dowdy sane after request had been made for a lunacy commission.

LEADERS INDICATE DESIRE TO SETTLE FORD AUTO STRIKE

Union, Company Officials Seem Willing To End Walkout; Seek Meeting

HENRY FORD, II, CLAIMS HALT IS NOT JUSTIFIED

DETROIT, May 7.—(AP)—Ford and union leaders indicated today they want to settle the three-day strike of 65,000 Ford workers. But neither side made a direct peace move.

Henry Ford II blasted the walkout as "particularly bad because it is unnecessary." At the same time, however, he reiterated the company's willingness to "sit down and discuss" the C. I. C. United Auto Workers' charge of a production speed-up.

The U. A. W. meanwhile accepted the only peace overture made since the walkout Thursday noon. That was a proposal by Mayor Orville L. Hubbard of Dearborn, home of the Mammoth Rouge plant. He suggested that management and union leaders make a "supreme civic effort" to settle the dispute at a meeting in his office next Thursday.

In accepting Mayor Hubbard's invitation, U. A. W. President Walter Reuther said:

"The U. A. W.-C. I. O., as we have stated before, is prepared to meet at any time and at any place for the purpose of effecting a fair and equitable settlement of the issues which precipitated the strike in the Rouge and Lincoln factories of the Ford Motor Co."

Ford has not replied to Hubbard's invitation to attend the proposed peace parley.

The Dearborn mayor, often at odds with Ford during his long tenure in office, assailed the company's labor policies and production methods in his letter.

He used the youthful Ford president's oft-used expression in attributing the strike to "Ford stubbornness to practice a little 'human engineering'."

He also suggested that young Ford "slip on a pair of his grandfather's working pants and get out on the production line for a few days once

MONROE'S FIRE RECORD IS GOOD

Better Than That Of Most Cities With Over 20,000 Population

NEW YORK, May 5. — (Special) — The record of fire prevention and control turned in by Monroe for 1948 was better than that of most cities in the United States with populations over 20,000. The findings are based on a survey of 498 cities made by the National Fire Protection Association.

Monroe's fire loss for the year amounted to $110,857, the result of 241 ouilding fires. The efficiency of the local fire department is shown by its success in rapidly controlling these fires and keeping damage to a minimum.

The average loss per fire was $459 locally, comparing favorably with the $731 damage per fire in the other cities. It was also below its own record of the previous year, $1,270.

The number of building fires in Monroe in 1948 amounted to only 8.5 for every 1,000 people.

The survey shows a decline in the number of false alarms of a "malicious" nature turned in, states the association. The total was 56,396, or 8 per cent of all calls answered, as against 11 per cent in 1947.

DRIVERS' ARGUMENT WILL END IN COURT

Who caused the accident? "Well," state police officers said, "it will have to be settled by the judge."

The question arose when three drivers, all involved in an early-night accident yesterday on the new traffic bridge, maintained it was the other driver's fault.

One of the drivers, C. A. Peterson, 36, of Rt. 2, West Monroe, had license plates on his 1936 Ford sedan and driver's license, too. But another of the three, Oscar L. Ray, 28, of Bastrop, couldn't find his driver's license, while the third driver, Joseph L. Hemphill, 22, of Rt. 2, West Monroe, didn't have license plates on his 1940 Ford coupe.

So officers charged all three of the drivers with careless and reckless driving. Hemphill was charged additionally with driving without a license plate and Ray with driving without a driver's license.

Police said that apparently the incident occurred when Peterson and Ray sideswiped while passing each other on the bridge, with Peterson's car continuing, uncontrolled, to collide with Hemphill's vehicle.

Neither of the three, nor passengers in each of the automobiles, were injured. Their vehicles were slightly damaged.

Red Army Is Only 35 Miles Distant

Americans Have Made Preparations To Keep From Being Drawn Into Civil War; Shanghai Defenses Being Felt Out By Communist Forces

By Tom Lambert

SHANGHAI, May 7.—(AP)—The Chinese Communists announced tonight capture of a town 33 miles north of Tsingtao in a drive aimed at the anchorage of the U. S. Western Pacific fleet.

The Communists, in a broadcast from Peiping, also reported capture of the last two Nationalist holdout cities in the north on the Peiping-Hankow railway and declared:

"Now all north China is liberated."

Actually, Tsingtao and the far northwestern provinces remain in Nationalist hands.

The Shanghai Nationalist garrison reported continuing Red pressure on the outer defenses of Shanghai but said all attacks were repelled in sharp fighting.

(As heard in San Francisco by the Associated Press, the Red Broadcast also announced a further 17-mile advance southward in the main Communist drive into south China, now nearly 200 miles south of the Yangtze river.)

The Communist broadcast on Tsingtao said only:

"On the east Shantung (province) front, the Red army attacking the Tsimo-Tsingtao outer defenses captured Lingshan, 10 miles north of Tsimo."

It did not mention the U. S. fleet or give the date of this flareup on a front that has been idle for many months.

On May 3 the U. S. Navy reported its main western Pacific force was anchored in the open sea outside Tsingtao, not at its former stations within the inner harbor. (The Navy previously had quit its shore installations and billets at Tsingtao.)

The warships off Tsingtao were listed as the light cruisers Pasadena and Springfield and 10 destroyers.

Also last reported off Tsingtao were the El Dorado, flagship of Vice-Adm. Oscar C. Badger, fleet commander; and the transport Chilton, with about 700 marines aboard. The Navy also has three Martin Mariner seaplanes at Tsingtao.

The Navy has frequently reiterated its intention to avoid becoming embroiled in the Chinese civil war.

The Shanghai garrison communique said 10,000 Reds attacked Kunshan, 35 miles west of Shanghai, but were driven back after an eight-hour fight that ended late Friday night. It said 5,000 Reds were hurled back from Taichang, 30 miles northwest of Shanghai.

It also said Red attackers were driven back from the Kashing airfield, 62 miles southwest of Shanghai.

However, trains from Shanghai were running only as far as Kashan, 10 miles north of Kashing.

The garrison reported the Red force which three days earlier took Hangchow, seaport and rail center, 121 miles southwest of Shanghai, apparently was moving on southward.

(The Communist radio mentioned that front only incidentally, in a long propaganda account of the hasty flight of Nationalist forces and their alleged wild looting of wayside villages.

(The radio confirmed cutting of the Hangchow Nanchang railway—last of the Nationalist's east-west lines—on a broad front. It added that another column had taken Yuanshang.)

On the north, the Peiping broadcaster said Sinsiang and Anyang, "The last two isolated Kuomintang—Nationalist—strongpoints in north China" had finally fallen on Thursday and Friday.

(Sinsiang is 350 miles north of Han-

YOUNGSTER PLACED ON FRIEND'S LIST

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—(AP)—Six-year-old William (Sonny) Issacks is in the doghouse with two playmates for going awol on a camping trip.

He was left to guard their jelly sandwiches and cake in a thick woods at nearby Algiers, while companions hunted for water.

But Sonny wandered off and got lost.

He was found an hour later after an intensive search by 10 armed men from the Jefferson parish sheriff's office, a police patrol car and neighbors.

Sonny was in four-feet-high ragweed, and plenty worried. He confessed he was scared he "wouldn't get to go to school again."

But Teddy Carson, 10, and Bobby Tooraen, 9, regard him darkly.

"We didn't think Sonny would leave the food," they grumbled.

MAKE NO ARRESTS IN PYRAMID CLUB

Authorities Still Investigating; $7,000 Jackpot Is Believed Myth

The Monroe police department and the Ouachita parish sheriff's department last night had failed to report a single arrest after closing the doors of Carroll's auditorium Friday to members of a Negro organization called the Pyramid Club.

Both Sheriff Bailey Grant and Police Chief H. T. Ward said, however, that their respective departments were still "investigating the club's legality."

In commenting yesterday on the law authorities move, District Attorney Fred Fudickar said he "didn't think the club's business could be termed a violation of any state gambling law."

"We are strictly handling it from a standpoint of a disturbance," he said. At the time authorities made their move, no explanation was referred to in regards to a disturbance.

When asked for comment on the whereabouts of a supposedly $7,000 pot, allegedly taken in Friday night just prior to the crack-down, the district attorney said: "So far as I know, there was no money taken in at that time, since no one was allowed inside the auditorium. On each of the previous occasions," Fudickar said, "when sums were taken from members of the club, it was also disposed of the same night, since the club did not maintain a treasury."

The club, one of the largest Negro organizations ever to operate in the city, was abruptly banished shortly after 8 p. m. Friday when members of the police and sheriff departments

Boy Who Wanted A Mother For Easter Gets His Own

PITTSBURGH, May 7.—(AP)—Andy Tompos, Jr., has found his mother.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, to whom Andy directed his wistful plea for a mother because "everybody who has a mother has good luck," today wrote a happy ending to the tale.

Andy's desire to find his mother as "an Easter present" came to light on Palm Sunday. He was disappointed on Easter, but the eve of Mother's Day finds the 10-year-old lad's dream belatedly came true.

The newspaper's story of Andy's reunion with his mother bore no dateline. Where she lives, what her new married name is, will remain untold. It will be easier that way for Andy to begin his new life.

But Andy not only has a mother now, but a father and a 2 1/2-year-old brother. The little boy who worried what would become of him when his aged grandparents die doesn't have to worry any more.

His mother disappeared five years ago. Andy had been living with the grandparents since. His father had vanished before he was born.

This is how the Sun-Telegraph told of the reunion:

The boy and his mother hugged each other wordlessly. There were tears in his mother's eyes, but a wide grin on Andy's freckled face.

For Andy it was his Easter wish come true. For the mother, it was:

"The best Mother's Day present I'll ever have."

"I made a mistake by going away," his 27-year-old mother said. "I was just young and crazy, I guess. Both sides have suffered. Maybe we can be happy now."

His mother said she saw Andy's plea in a three-week-old newspaper given her by a neighbor.

"It seemed like steam rollers were bumping on my head," she said. "I just went limp all over. I've never forgotten the boy. I never could."

She called her husband home from

They asserted the western powers were not in any sense "ganging up" on Russia.

Nevertheless, developments spotlighted the dramatic possibility that Russia will enter the conference with a "divide and conquer" strategy to reinforce their unity and establish their common policies ahead of time.

Secretary of State Acheson, the state department said, is sending Roving Ambassador Philip Jessup and Department Counselor Charles E. Bohlen, both top flight policy makers, to Paris late next week. They will meet high ranking British and French officials. Acheson himself will go to Paris about a week later for his first

Lively 'Election' Will Be Held Monday To Decide Who Are Chosen

Interest is mounting fast in the Jaycee Student Government Day to be held Wednesday, and a heated election is expected to take place Monday, at both Ouachita Parish and Neville High Schools, as students vote for their favorite candidates in their city elections.

For the first time in its history, the city of Monroe may be officially controlled by members of the fairer sex when high school students are sworn into office Wednesday to rule the city for one day. The names of several girls from both schools appear on the official ballots which have been prepared for election. Campaigning has been going on in the schools since the nominations were completed last Wednesday, and many students are of the opinion that several girls will be put into office if the large block of female students can be encouraged to vote. All of the candidates for office in the city of West Monroe are boys.

All high school students are eligible to vote in the election and regular polling booths and ballot boxes have been provided by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and placed in the lobbies of the schools to take care of the large crowds which are expected to vote.

The election is being patterned after a regular city election for the purpose of developing an interest in local government among high school students to the extent that this interest will be maintained in later life. It has long been realized that there is a great need to train youth in the affairs of our government and members of the Junior Commerce as well as school and city officials believe that this project will be a great help.

At 9:00 a.: m., Wednesday, May 11, Ouachita Parish High students will assume control of the cities of Mon-

Civil Service Restoration Urged By State's Lawyers

BATON ROUGE, La., May 7.—(AP)—The Louisiana Bar Association today called for restoration of state civil service by an amendment to the constitution.

The resolution was one of several adopted as committees submitted reports at today's closing session of the association's annual convention. It also "expressed regret" that the law was repealed.

At the 1948 convention in Lake Charles, the group adopted a resolution opposing repeal of state civil service. The statute creating the system was thrown out at a special legislative session last fall.

Two other statewide organizations recently called for a revival of the program for state employes. These were the Louisiana Federation of Labor and the League of Women Voters. They acted at separate conventions in Shreveport.

Earlier today, Bar Association delegates were told that increasing the power of the federal government will lead eventually to "socialized law practice." The warning came from Benjamin B. Taylor, of Baton Rouge, retiring association president, who expressed fear of socialism.

"Government medicine is now proposed for our country," said Taylor. "It is but one more step to a socialized law practice. We should look at what we are doing before it is too late * * *

"There is a rape of liberty in the name of freedom * * *. The conducting of a 'plan' on a nationwide scale requires the creation and exercise of power; that is, power over men wielded by other men."

Another speaker, Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Green, judge advocate general of the army, reviewed the history of military laws in this country.

Out of World War I, he said, came a review board to consider serious offenses. A parallel development in

Mrs. C. E. Faulk Is 'Woman Of The Year'

West Monroe Matron Gets Award For Outstanding Contributions To Twin Cities Over Last Year; Leadership, Courage Extolled

Mrs. Clarence E. Faulk of West Monroe was presented as the "Woman of the Year" at Saturday night's banquet on the Virginia Hotel roof. The event was sponsored by three women's service clubs in the Twin Cities, Altrusa, Quota and Pilot International.

Winner of the title was chosen by a committee of outstanding women of the community from nominations sent by individuals and organizations to the Inter-Club Council.

The judges awarded the distinguished title to Mrs. Faulk for her leadership and community participation, which they declared climaxed a life devoted to civic and church work.

Told of her being selected as the "Woman of the Year," Mrs. Faulk commented in characteristic manner, "But I feel very unworthy of such a high honor. Surely, I do not deserve it." Then she added, "I must really work now in an attempt to meet the responsibilities which come with such recognition."

Through her numerous club, civic and religious welfare activities, as well as through individual assistance which she has given to needy people of Ouachita parish, Mrs. Faulk has continually shown a desire to assist the underprivileged. Actively participating in various organizations, she has done outstanding work for young people through the Recreation Board of West Monroe. Last year she was president of the Ouachita Parish Welfare Board, through which she was able to make valuable contributions in her seven-year service in the organization.

A woman noted for endless energy and courage, she also found time to serve as chairman of the residential drive of the American Red Cross, and

DOWDY PAIR TRIAL WILL OPEN MONDAY

TALLULAH, May 2.—(Special)—The trial of J. D. Dowdy, 24, and his 64-year-old father, G. R. Dowdy, for the murder of Walter Dorman on October 22, 1948, will get underway here at 9 a. m. Monday, Sheriff C. E. Hester said tonight.

The young fisherman and his plantation worker father have been held in Madison parish jail since November, 1948, after being arrested on an insurance-swindle murder conspiracy charge following the dynamiting of their tiny home seven miles north of here at Talla Bena.

Sheriff Hester, who broke the case in conjunction with Coroner E. Otis Edgerton, charges that the younger Dowdy dynamited the house after luring Dorman, a transient Mississippi painter to the cabin late one Friday night. Young Dowdy subsequently disappeared, only to be captured near the Texas line after visiting his sister in Vivian.

Dowdy claims he was frightened by the explosion which demolished his home with Dorman inside cooking, then fled to Texas. Dowdy's father was arrested with papers calling for collection of $36,000 in insurance on the death of his son. He is charged with conspiracy to murder.

A three-man board of two physicians and a psychiarist declared the younger Dowdy sane after request had been made for a lunacy commission.

LEADERS INDICATE DESIRE TO SETTLE FORD AUTO STRIKE

Union, Company Officials Seem Willing To End Walkout; Seek Meeting

HENRY FORD, II, CLAIMS HALT IS NOT JUSTIFIED

DETROIT, May 7.—(AP)—Ford and union leaders indicated today they want to settle the three-day strike of 65,000 Ford workers. But neither side made a direct peace move.

Henry Ford II blasted the walkout as "particularly bad because it is unnecessary." At the same time, however, he reiterated the company's willingness to "sit down and discuss" the C. I. C. United Auto Workers' charge of a production speed-up.

The U. A. W. meanwhile accepted the only peace overture made since the walkout Thursday noon. That was a proposal by Mayor Orville L. Hubbard of Dearborn, home of the Mammoth Rouge plant. He suggested that management and union leaders make a "supreme civic effort" to settle the dispute at a meeting in his office next Thursday.

In accepting Mayor Hubbard's invitation, U. A. W. President Walter Reuther said:

"The U. A. W.-C. I. O., as we have stated before, is prepared to meet at any time and at any place for the purpose of effecting a fair and equitable settlement of the issues which precipitated the strike in the Rouge and Lincoln factories of the Ford Motor Co."

Ford has not replied to Hubbard's invitation to attend the proposed peace parley.

The Dearborn mayor, often at odds with Ford during his long tenure in office, assailed the company's labor policies and production methods in his letter.

He used the youthful Ford president's oft-used expression in attributing the strike to "Ford stubbornness to practice a little 'human engineering'."

He also suggested that young Ford "slip on a pair of his grandfather's working pants and get out on the production line for a few days once

Better Than That Of Most Cities With Over 20,000 Population

NEW YORK, May 5.—(Special)—The record of fire prevention and control turned in by Monroe for 1948 was better than that of most cities in the United States with populations over 20,000. The findings are based on a survey of 498 cities made by the National Fire Protection Association.

Monroe's fire loss for the year amounted to $110,857, the result of 241 building fires. The efficiency of the local fire department is shown by its success in rapidly controlling these fires and keeping damage to a minimum.

The average loss per fire was $459 locally, comparing favorably with the $731 damage per fire in the other cities. It was also below its own record of the previous year, $1,270.

The number of building fires in Monroe in 1948 amounted to only 8.5 for every 1,000 people.

The survey shows a decline in the number of false alarms of a "malicious" nature turned in, states the association. The total was 56,396, or 8 per cent of all calls answered, as against 11 per cent in 1947.

DRIVERS' ARGUMENT WILL END IN COURT

Who caused the accident? "Well," state police officers said, "it will have to be settled by the judge."

The question arose when three drivers, all involved in an early-night accident yesterday on the new traffic bridge, maintained it was the other driver's fault.

One of the drivers, C. A. Peterson, 36, of Rt. 2, West Monroe, had license plates on his 1936 Ford sedan and driver's license, too. But another of the three, Oscar L. Ray, 28, of Bastrop, couldn't find his driver's license, while the third driver, Joseph L. Hemphill, 22, of Rt. 2, West Monroe, didn't have license plates on his 1940 Ford coupe.

So officers charged all three of the drivers with careless and reckless driving. Hemphill was charged additionally with driving without a license plate and Ray with driving without a driver's license.

Police said that apparently the incident occurred when Peterson and Ray sideswiped while passing each other on the bridge, with Peterson's car continuing, uncontrolled, to collide with Hemphill's vehicle.

Neither of the three, nor passengers in each of the automobiles, were injured. Their vehicles were slightly damaged.

Red Army Is Only 35 Miles Distant

Americans Have Made Preparations To Keep From Being Drawn Into Civil War; Shanghai Defenses Being Felt Out By Communist Forces

By Tom Lambert

SHANGHAI, May 7.—(AP)—The Chinese Communists announced tonight capture of a town 33 miles north of Tsingtao in a drive aimed at the anchorage of the U. S. Western Pacific fleet.

The Communists, in a broadcast from Peiping, also reported capture of the last two Nationalist holdout cities in the north on the Peiping-Hankow railway and declared:

"Now all north China is liberated."

Actually, Tsingtao and the far northwestern provinces remain in Nationalist hands.

The Shanghai Nationalist garrison reported continuing Red pressure on the outer defenses of Shanghai but said all attacks were repelled in sharp fighting.

(As heard in San Francisco by the Associated Press, the Red Broadcast also announced a further 17-mile advance southward in the main Communist drive into south China, now nearly 200 miles south of the Yangtze river.)

The Communist broadcast on Tsingtao said only:

"On the east Shantung (province) front, the Red army attacking the Tsimo-Tsingtao outer defenses captured Lingshan, 10 miles north of Tsimo."

It did not mention the U. S. fleet or give the date of this flareup on a front that has been idle for many months.

On May 3 the U. S. Navy reported its main western Pacific force was anchored in the open sea outside Tsingtao, not at its former stations within the inner harbor. (The Navy previously had quit its shore installations and billets at Tsingtao.)

The warships off Tsingtao were listed as the light cruisers Pasadena and Springfield and 10 destroyers.

Also last reported off Tsingtao were the El Dorado, flagship of Vice-Adm. Oscar C. Badger, fleet commander; and the transport Chilton, with about 700 marines aboard. The Navy also has three Martin Mariner seaplanes at Tsingtao.

The Navy has frequently reiterated its intention to avoid becoming embroiled in the Chinese civil war.

The Shanghai garrison communique said 10,000 Reds attacked Kunshan, 35 miles west of Shanghai, but were driven back after an eight-hour fight that ended late Friday night. It said 5,000 Reds were hurled back from Taichang, 30 miles northwest of Shanghai.

It also said Red attackers were driven back from the Kashing airfield, 62 miles southwest of Shanghai.

However, trains from Shanghai were running only as far as Kashan, 10 miles north of Kashing.

The garrison reported the Red force which three days earlier took Hangchow, seaport and rail center, 121 miles southwest of Shanghai, apparently was moving on southward.

In commenting yesterday on the law authorities move, District Attorney Fred Fudickar said he "didn't think the club's business could be termed a violation of any state gambling law."

"We are strictly handling it from a standpoint of a disturbance," he said. At the time authorities made their move, no explanation was referred to in regards to a disturbance.

When asked for comment on the whereabouts of a supposedly $7,000 pot, allegedly taken in Friday night just prior to the crack-down, the district attorney said: "So far as I know, there was no money taken in at that time, since no one was allowed inside the auditorium. On each of the previous occasions," Fudickar said, "when sums were taken from members of the club, it was also disposed of the same night, since the club did not maintain a treasury."

The club, one of the largest Negro organizations ever to operate in the city, was abruptly banished shortly after 8 p. m. Friday when members of the police and sheriff departments

YOUNGSTER PLACED ON FRIEND'S LIST

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—(AP)—Six-year-old William (Sonny) Issacks is in the doghouse with two playmates for going awol on a camping trip.

He was left to guard their jelly sandwiches and cake in a thick woods at nearby Algiers, while companions hunted for water.

But Sonny wandered off and got lost.

He was found an hour later after an intensive search by 10 armed men from the Jefferson parish sheriff's office, a police patrol car and neighbors.

Sonny was in four-feet-high ragweed, and plenty worried. He confessed he was scared he "wouldn't get to go to school again."

But Teddy Carson, 10, and Bobby Tooraen, 9, regard him darkly.

Authorities Still Investigating; $7,000 Jackpot Is Believed Myth

The Monroe police department and the Ouachita parish sheriff's department last night had failed to report a single arrest after closing the doors of Carroll's auditorium Friday to members of a Negro organization called the Pyramid Club.

Both Sheriff Bailey Grant and Police Chief H. T. Ward said, however, that their respective departments were still "investigating the club's legality."

In commenting yesterday on the law authorities move, District Attorney Fred Fudickar said he "didn't think the club's business could be termed a violation of any state gambling law."

"We are strictly handling it from a standpoint of a disturbance," he said. At the time authorities made their move, no explanation was referred to in regards to a disturbance.

Boy Who Wanted A Mother For Easter Gets His Own

PITTSBURGH, May 7.—(AP)—Andy Tompos, Jr., has found his mother.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, to whom Andy directed his wistful plea for a mother because "everybody who has a mother has good luck," today wrote a happy ending to the tale.

Andy's desire to find his mother as "an Easter present" came to light on Palm Sunday. He was disappointed on Easter, but the eve of Mother's Day finds the 10-year-old lad's dream belatedly came true.

The newspaper's story of Andy's reunion with his mother bore no dateline. Where she lives, what her new married name is, will remain untold. It will be easier that way for Andy to begin his new life.

But Andy not only has a mother now, but a father and a 2 1/2-year-old brother. The little boy who worried what would become of him when his aged grandparents die doesn't have to worry any more.

His mother disappeared five years ago. Andy had been living with the grandparents since. His father had vanished before he was born.

This is how the Sun-Telegraph told of the reunion:

The boy and his mother hugged each other wordlessly. There were tears in his mother's eyes, but a wide grin on Andy's freckled face.

For Andy it was his Easter wish come true. For the mother, it was:

"The best Mother's Day present I'll ever have."

"I made a mistake by going away," his 27-year-old mother said. "I was just young and crazy, I guess. Both sides have suffered. Maybe we can be happy now."

His mother said she saw Andy's plea in a three-week-old newspaper given her by a neighbor.

"It seemed like steam rollers were bumping on my head," she said. "I just went limp all over. I've never forgotten the boy. I never could."

She called her husband home from

EASE, PLEASURE AND COMFORT

Carl Stevenson (above) 701 Pecan street, demonstrates his self-styled power lawnmower fully equipped with a fan and radio. Carl couldn't find a lawnmower with all these accessories so he decided to utilize his wits and devise a machine to fit his desire. With a few hours spent in the Ouachita parish hobby class at Neville High School he produced the above machine at a total cost of $25. Now he cuts yard grass in comfort and never misses his favorite radio programs. How about the efficiency of the apparatus as a grass cutter? Carl says the rotary blade installed beneath the wooden platform performs very effectively. The mower is mounted on four discarded wagon wheels which were formerly the property of his young son. His son, Mike and daughter, Anne watch every move of their father while he tunes the radio.

LABOR COUNCIL PLANS MONDAY NIGHT MEETING

The Monroe Central Trade and Labor Council will meet Monday night at 8 p. m. The meeting will be held at the labor temple on South Grand street.

Recording Secretary Ralph White, who is also vice-president of the Louisiana State Federation of Labor, will report on the labor situation in Washington from where he has just returned.

White, as delegate from the fifth district, made a special trip to Washington where he joined forces with other labor representatives who were urging the repeal of the Taft-Hartley act.

In addition to several Louisiana law makers, White said he conferred with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

The average life span was about 23 years in ancient Rome.

Quite a pother in the Hollywood columns about Nils Aster, once a popular silent screen star, being discovered in a dollar-an-hour job for the City of Los Angeles. Instead of shedding crocodile tears over his state (which is shared by about ninety per cent of the world's workers), I want to take time out to commend his attitude. Asther, who seems to be quite content, by the way, with his job and its attendant paycheck, is proving himself an admirable exception to the rule which seems to govern fallen actors. Instead of living in his "glorious past," he's willing to face present realities and instead of appealing to the Motion Picture Relief Fund for financial aid, he's making his own way on his own abilities. I doff my bonnet to him.

Seymour Felix, dance director at 20th Century-Fox, was rehearsing a line of chorines when I visited the "Bandwagon" set the other day. Watching the gals' educated tootsies tapping out the steps, I opined that several of them, being unusually pretty as well as unusually graceful, should go far. Whereupon the dance director delivered himself of a bit of practical philosophy which should offer every would-be professional dancer food for thought. "Beauty and grace aren't enough to get a girl out of the chorus line," said he. "In show business, you dance with your face as well as your feet if you're going to succeed." Think it over and you'll see his point. Not many of the top-flight dance stars have been particularly great, if judged by their dancing ability alone. It's the fact that they "dance with their faces" that sells them to the public.

Robert Mitchum's reported decision to buy a cottage in Acapulco, Mexico, and spend his time, between-pictures, in that undoubtedly beautiful resort is, I think, a mistake. Mitchum has "paid his bill" by serving a sentence in the Los Angeles County Jail, but, like it or not, he's going to be on trial before public opinion for a long time to come—and the real test of his reform will come, not when he's busy before the cameras, but when he's between pictures. I, for one, think that Mitchum has learned his lesson, and that he's going to be on his good behavior henceforth. And I think that he'd be wiser by far to stay right here where he can be seen, and vindicated, than he will be if he hides out in Mexico. After all, the ancient saying, "Seeing is believing," is based on good sense.

COMPLEX BANK SUIT TAKES SIX JUDGES

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—(AP)—All six judges of the U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals are scheduled to hear arguments May 25 in a suit between Shreveport's "old" and "new" Commercial National banks.

The suit is for accounting of assets of the "old" bank, the Commercial National Bank of Shreveport, which were taken over for liquidation by the "new" bank, the Commercial National Bank in Shreveport.

Usually three judges of the court hear an appeal. All six are called in on cases of unusual importance or complexity.

As for complexity, the matter of the Shreveport banks takes high rank. The record of the case fills 13 printed volumes of several hundred pages each, one of them containing 420 pages.

This is the second appeal of the suit from the U. S. district court for the western district of Louisiana. On the previous appeal, the case was remanded for retrial.

Both the "new" bank and the receiver for the "old" bank, J. T. Connolly, have appealed from the result of the second trial. In addition, several individuals who joined the proceedings as intervenors have filed a brief in the appeal.

Dispute Over Who Passed What Still On

Republicans, Democrats Trade Verbal Blows Over Legislation Okayed

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) said today that major domestic legislation passed by the senate is part of "the Republican program" and inquired "What's happened to Mr. Truman's proposals?"

Senate Myers of Pennsylvania, acting Democratic floor leader, reported promptly that his party not only has "corrected some of the mistakes" of the Republican 80th congress, but is moving ahead with the president's program.

In separate interviews, Taft and Myers claimed credit for their respective parties in senate approval of housing, aid to education and school health bills.

"These were part of the Republican program that the senate passed last year," said Taft, who heads the G. O. P. policy committee. "On the other hand, to date the Democrats haven't brought forth anything new.

"They have talked about a national health program, including socialized medicine, but it doesn't look now as though they are going to try to pass it this year.

"Secretary of Agriculture Brannan has suggested a new farm program, but they don't seem to have been able yet to get it into bill form.

"As for repeal of the Taft-Hartley act, which the president talked about all the time in his campaign, the house action on that seems to speak for itself."

HATS HER HOBBY
—Mrs. A. V. Marti, of Chicago, collects miniature copies of headgear worn by well-known people.

. The house this week advanced to voting on the repeal question but finally sent the only bill it even tentatively approved—a measure by Representative Wood (D.-Ga.) retaining many of the T-H provisions—back to committee for a fresh start.

Conceding that the Republicans had furnished help in passage of the aid to education, housing and school health bills, Myers added that talk by G. O. P. senators "certainly delayed the final vote on all of those bills."

"We are getting through some important parts of the president's program," Myers said. "The housing, education and school health bills were all in our platform.

"We have voted to correct the mistake the Republican 80th congress made in the restricting Commodity Credit Corporation's ability to acquire grain storage facilities.

"We have passed the Marshall plan bill. Next week we are going to take up the measure, which the house already has voted, to correct the mistakes the Republicans made in continuing the reciprocal trade agreement program."

As approved by the senate finance committee, the latter measure would restore the trade program as it originally was enacted, giving the president power to raise or lower tariffs without further checks by congress.

Republicans plan to offer an amendment under which the tariff commission would be required to look into tariff cuts and to report any it held might endanger American business.

The president would be required to explain to congress if he went ahead to make any of these cuts despite the commission's finding.

Myers said there had been no check yet on how the Democrats stand on that amendment. It is the only one given a chance of senate adoption.

ABDULLAH FILES CLAIM ON PALESTINE TERRITORY

AMMAN, Trans-Jordan, May 7.—(AP)—Three Palestine Arabs became ministers of the Trans-Jordan government today, emphasizing King Abdullah's claim to territories west of the Jordan.

A royal decree read in parliament approved the formation of a new cabinet, including the Palestinians, under Premier Tewfik El Huda Pasha. The reorganization was ordered by Abdullah May 3.

The ministry of the exterior (foreign affairs) went to one of the newcomers, Rouhi Addil Hadi. He formerly was assistant secretary in the Palestine government under the British mandate.

The other Palestine Arabs are Mousa Naser, assigned to communications, and Khalousi El Kheiri, named minister of agriculture and commerce. El Kheiri formerly was a district officer at Jaffa.

Other members of the cabinet are Fawzi Pasha El Kulki, defense; Mohammed Amin El Shengiti, education; Falah Pasha El Madadha, justice; Said Pasha El Mufti, interior, and Suliman Pasha El Madadha, justice; Said Pasha El Mufti, interior, and Suliman Pasha Sukkar, finance.

Annexation of some Palestine Arab territories is regarded in Amman as already an accomplished fact.

The old cabinet approved last December the proposal of a "general Palestine congress" of Arab Palestine representatives at Jerico that Abdullah accept the crown of a unified Trans-Jordan and Palestine. This matter, however, was held in abeyance.

(Premier Husni Zayim of Syria, northern neighbor of Trans-Jordan, spoke out again Friday night against what he called imperialistic unification schemes. He declared in Damascus that Syria will shift from defensive to offensive opposition to Abdullah's "greater Syria" plan and Iraq's "fertile crescent" proposal.

(Both of these would provide for merger of Trans-Jordan, Arab Palestine, Syria, Lebanon and Iraq, but one would have the territory ruled by Abdullah and the other by the Iraq boy king, Feisal II.)

PAROLEE RELEASED TO STATE OFFICER

A 23-year-old Negro, arrested here April 23 for disturbing the peace, was released late yesterday to a state parole officer.

Monroe police said they apprehended J. L. Williams, the Negro, and booked him with disturbing the peace. Later, by employing fingerprint comparison, they discovered he was a parolee, having been sentenced in 1948 for cattle theft in Caldwell parish.

The remainder of the Negro's sentence, police said, is three years and three months. He will probably be returned to Angola Monday, according to police.

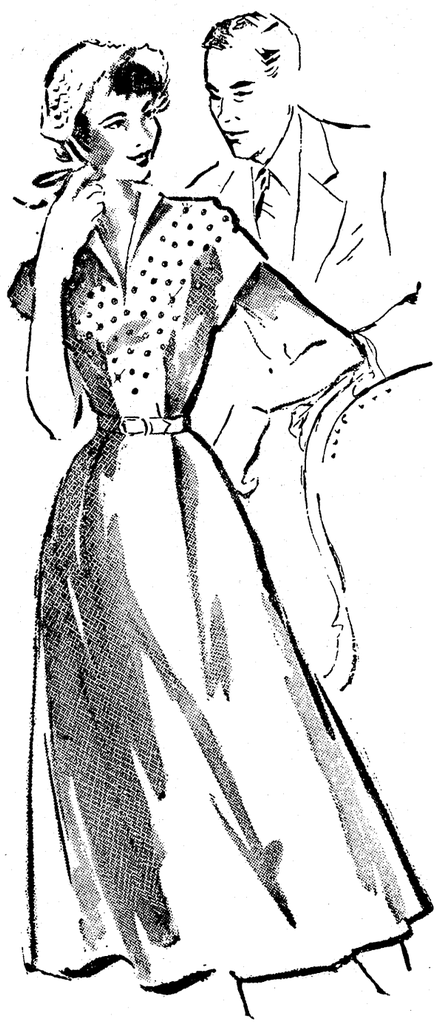

ARMED ROBBERY

SALT LAKE CITY, May 7.—(AP)—Police listed this case on their docket today as "armed robbery." A 14-year-old boy pointed his air rifle at an eight-year-old companion, forcing the latter to give up his bicycle. The younger boy told his father, who held the "robber" until police arrived. The lad was turned over to juvenile authorities.

EASE, PLEASURE AND COMFORT

Carl Stevenson (above) 701 Pecan street, demonstrates his self-styled power lawnmower fully equipped with a fan and radio. Carl couldn't find a lawnmower with all these accessories so he decided to utilize his wits and devise a machine to fit his desire. With a few hours spent in the Ouachita parish hobby class at Neville High School he produced the above machine at a total cost of $25. Now he cuts yard grass in comfort and never misses his favorite radio programs. How about the efficiency of the apparatus as a grass cutter? Carl says the rotary blade installed beneath the wooden platform performs very effectively. The mower is mounted on four discarded wagon wheels which were formerly the property of his young son. His son, Mike and daughter, Anne watch every move of their father while he tunes the radio.

LABOR COUNCIL PLANS MONDAY NIGHT MEETING

The Monroe Central Trade and Labor Council will meet Monday night at 8 p. m. The meeting will be held at the labor temple on South Grand street.

Recording Secretary Ralph White, who is also vice-president of the Louisiana State Federation of Labor, will report on the labor situation in Washington from where he has just returned.

White, as delegate from the fifth district, made a special trip to Washington where he joined forces with other labor representatives who were urging the repeal of the Taft-Hartley act.

In addition to several Louisiana law makers, White said he conferred with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

BEST PERFORMANCE: James Edwards in "Home of the Brave."

Quite a pother in the Hollywood columns about Nils Aster, once a popular silent screen star, being discovered in a dollar-an-hour job for the City of Los Angeles. Instead of shedding crocodile tears over his state (which is shared by about ninety per cent of the world's workers), I want to take time out to commend his attitude. Asther, who seems to be quite content, by the way, with his job and its attendant paycheck, is proving himself an admirable exception to the rule which seems to govern fallen actors. Instead of living in his "glorious past," he's willing to face present realities and instead of appealing to the Motion Picture Relief Fund for financial aid, he's making his own way on his own abilities. I doff my bonnet to him.

Seymour Felix, dance director at 20th Century-Fox, was rehearsing a line of chorines when I visited the "Bandwagon" set the other day. Watching the gals' educated tootsies tapping out the steps, I opined that several of them, being unusually pretty as well as unusually graceful, should go far. Whereupon the dance director delivered himself of a bit of practical philosophy which should offer every would-be professional dancer food for thought. "Beauty and grace aren't enough to get a girl out of the chorus line," said he. "In show business, you dance with your face as well as your feet if you're going to succeed." Think it over and you'll see his point. Not many of the top-flight dance stars have been particularly great, if judged by their dancing ability alone. It's the fact that they "dance with their faces" that sells them to the public.

Robert Mitchum's reported decision to buy a cottage in Acapulco, Mexico, and spend his time, between-pictures, in that undoubtedly beautiful resort is, I think, a mistake. Mitchum has "paid his bill" by serving a sentence in the Los Angeles County Jail, but, like it or not, he's going to be on trial before public opinion for a long time to come—and the real test of his reform will come, not when he's busy before the cameras, but when he's between pictures. I, for one, think that Mitchum has learned his lesson, and that he's going to be on his good behavior henceforth. And I think that he'd be wiser by far to stay right here where he can be seen, and vindicated, than he will be if he hides out in Mexico. After all, the ancient saying, "Seeing is believing," is based on good sense.

COMPLEX BANK SUIT TAKES SIX JUDGES

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—(AP)—All six judges of the U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals are scheduled to hear arguments May 25 in a suit between Shreveport's "old" and "new" Commercial National banks.

The suit is for accounting of assets of the "old" bank, the Commercial National Bank of Shreveport, which were taken over for liquidation by the "new" bank, the Commercial National Bank in Shreveport.

Usually three judges of the court hear an appeal. All six are called in on cases of unusual importance or complexity.

As for complexity, the matter of the Shreveport banks takes high rank. The record of the case fills 13 printed volumes of several hundred pages each, one of them containing 420 pages.

This is the second appeal of the suit from the U. S. district court for the western district of Louisiana. On the previous appeal, the case was remanded for retrial.

Both the "new" bank and the receiver for the "old" bank, J. T. Connolly, have appealed from the result of the second trial. In addition, several individuals who joined the proceedings as intervenors have filed a brief in the appeal.

Mother's Day

Mother has been the object of adoration since the dawn of time. In terms of refining influence and devotion, two qualities which knit the human race together and make its interrelationships endurable, mother is the decisive influence.

The distaff side has a more formidable job on its hands than ever before. The world is in turmoil and values are shifting. Not long ago homes and communities were guided by certain fixed principles. It remained only for mother, with whatever assistance she could get from father, to follow the accepted rules. Now the taboos of society are relaxed in many ways.

Principles which once held sway have been succeeded by other principles. Even the tenets of child training have changed. A home trying to adhere to old rules encounters the obstacle of new ideas the child picks up in association with his fellows. Much of the blame for juvenile delinquency can be laid to the confusion which has beset society.

The successful mother can somehow, despite all the handicaps, instill morality and character into the child, providing the off spring with an impenetrable armor of precept. But that is not an irrevocably reliable indice, for each must learn by his own experience.

Mother has all the old moral values, all the findings of modern science, for her assistance. She has environment as a constant challenge. Motherhood is a greater responsibility than ever before.

Mr. Hartley Is Picketed

Throwing a picket line in front of the Northeast Junior College auditorium last Monday night in an effort to embarrass former Representative Fred Hartley and the sponsors of his address here was perhaps the most unique display of pique ever seen here. We really had given officers of the Monroe Central Trades and Labor Council credit for having more sound judgment and practical leadership than to throw themselves and their members "wide open" for the criticism they have received as a result of this childish prank.

In the first place, the co-author of the Taft-Hartley act is no longer a member of congress and the pickets could have no possible influence (and neither could he) or any action that might be taken in Washington by such antics; in the second place, neither members of the organization which brought Mr. Hartley here nor others who wanted to hear what he had to say could be termed anti-labor just because of their presence. Undoubtedly many persons would turn out to hear John L. Lewis or William Green or Phillip Murray if any of the three were to appear here but that wouldn't indicate that the audience was necessarily endorsing the philosophies of either of those three gentlemen.

And in the third place, the marchers were picketing the very things they have so loudly defended vocally—the right of free speech and free assembly.

Mr. Hartley said that he "never thought I would be picketed in the state of Louisiana." What Mr. Hartley doesn't know is that some of the seamier practices of labor unions in the north and east have seeped into the south, practices which are not condoned by many sincere union members. In fact, several defenders of unionism expressed regret that Mr. Hartley was picketed because they, themselves, wanted to hear what defense the ex-congressman would muster for the Taft-Hartley act and were prevented from doing so because they naturally would not cross a picket line.

The labor movement in the Twin Cities gained nothing by this display of intolerance. For Town Hall, it was perhaps a larger audience than usual; for Mr. Hartley, it was the collection of a fee paid the better known personalities who regularly appear in such engagements; and for the labor unions, it was the loss of some of the respect which they have held in the community.

Klan Unmasked In Atlanta

The City Council of Atlanta, Ga., has restored to masks their original function as the trappings of pageants and buffoonery. It has ordained that they shall be worn, at least in Atlanta, only on festive occasions such as Halloween. Anyone ignoring the order will be subject to a $200 fine and 30 days in jail.

This decision was late in coming. But when it did come it couldn't have happened in a better place. For a gang of Atlantans, some 30 years ago, began wearing masks on occasions that were far from festive. Beneath a silly surface of titles and rituals such as little boys use when playing "secret lodge," they conducted a campaign of terrorism and murder.

Their treacherous idea spread. Soon many states had similar gangs of men, and women, too—craven, ignorant, bigoted, cruel people who aped the terrorism and childish ceremonies of the Atlanta founders. They became, in some states, the ruling political power. At last the revulsion of sensible people drove them underground and nearly destroyed them. But since the war they have reappeared in some sections of the south.

Now things are going to be different, at least in Atlanta. These people who claim to be 100 per cent Americans may no longer hide their proud faces from other Americans. They may still prefer to carry on their brave work under the protection of darkness. But they will no longer be able to frighten, beat and murder in faceless anonymity.

These people who profess to be the protectors of our American institutions will now find it harder to flout the law which is the keystone of those institutions.

For Atlanta, at long, long last, has unmasked the Ku Klux Klan.

DeWitt Mackenzie:

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

Your columnist has encountered an unusual analysis of China's crisis, by an interesting personality—Dr. Hu Shih, Chinese philosopher, educator and diplomat who was ambassador to Washington in 1938-42.

The distinguished Dr. Hu has just arrived in New York from his homeland on a tour to study the world situation, and I had a chat with him in his apartment over a cup of tea which he himself brewed. I asked him what he thought of the testimony before the senate armed services committee by General Claire Chennault who said America still could save China (and Asia) from Communist control by assistance costing about $1,000,000 a day.

"I'm not a military expert," replied Dr. Hu, "and am not qualified to pass judgment on that estimate. Of course material aid is needed but I don't believe the exact amount of help matters nearly so much as would the moral support of America.

"That's the great thing—the assurance that the United States is with us.

"The greatest weakness of Nationalist China now is lowered morale due to the belief that she has lost American support. I can tell you now that the collapse of the Nanking government resulted from the reports that the United States could do nothing more for China.

"Such news spreads rapidly in my country. You mustn't forget that at least 50,000 of our intellectuals were educated in the United States. (Dr. Hu himself is a graduate of Cornell and has honorary degrees from many American universities.) Naturally they keep in close touch with the United States and any reaction here towards China is quickly recognized and the news spreads."

The doctor emphasized all this with never-ceasing gestures of his very expressive hands. He is a vivid personality who talks as much with his hands as he does with his tongue. He should go far as a pantomimist.

I pointed to the very grave military position of the Nationalist forces in face of the great Communist drive, and asked Dr. Hu if he felt the Nationalists still had a chance to win. He nodded, and said:

"As I see it, our position is no worse today than was that of say France and Belgium after they were invaded by the Germans in the late war. Both those countries were overrun by the enemy. Their positions were as desperate as could be. But the people didn't lose their courage. Why? Because they knew the allied powers would stand by them. And in due course the Germans were evicted.

"I believe the Nationalist cause isn't lost. We still can win."

I asked Dr. Hu if he subscribed to the idea that the Chinese Communists are hooked directly with Moscow.

"Of course they are," he exclaimed, and raced into an adjoining room, to return with a copy of the Chinese Communist party's constitution. He read an extract which committed the party to the Moscow line.

"Because of that," said the doctor, "the fate of all Asia is involved in the Chinese civil war. If China should be taken over, then the rest of the Orient would fall under control of Russia."

Thurman Sensing,

Director of Research, Southern States Industrial Council:

DOWN SOUTH

SOCIALIZED MEDICINE

LONDON, England—Those who believe in socialized medicine are those who believe in state control, who believe that the state can do things better for the people than the people can do these things for themselves. They prefer the welfare state to individual freedom.

What results can they marshall to support their belief? None, that history records. It continues to be an illusive will o' the wisp of wishful thinking that is all fancy and no fact. It ignores the tangible results of the free enterprise system, and dreams of a socialistic utopia.

One of the welfare measures that the welfare staters always concentrate upon is socialized medicine, a complete health service for all provided at government expense. This was one of the promises in the platform of the present socialist government as it came into power in Great Britain. It was therefore made a part of Britain's social security program, providing medical and dental service, medicine, dentures, spectacles, hot water bottles, corsets, wigs and transformations, and all other appurtenances supposedly pertaining to the health and well-being of the people.

Of course, good health is desirable for the people of any nation. Naturally, a complete health service for all is one of the ways to ensure good health. The question is whether the particular nation interested can afford to provide for this service in its general budget. The further question is whether, provided it can be afforded, it is best to turn the health of the people over to the state or let the people retain control over their own health.

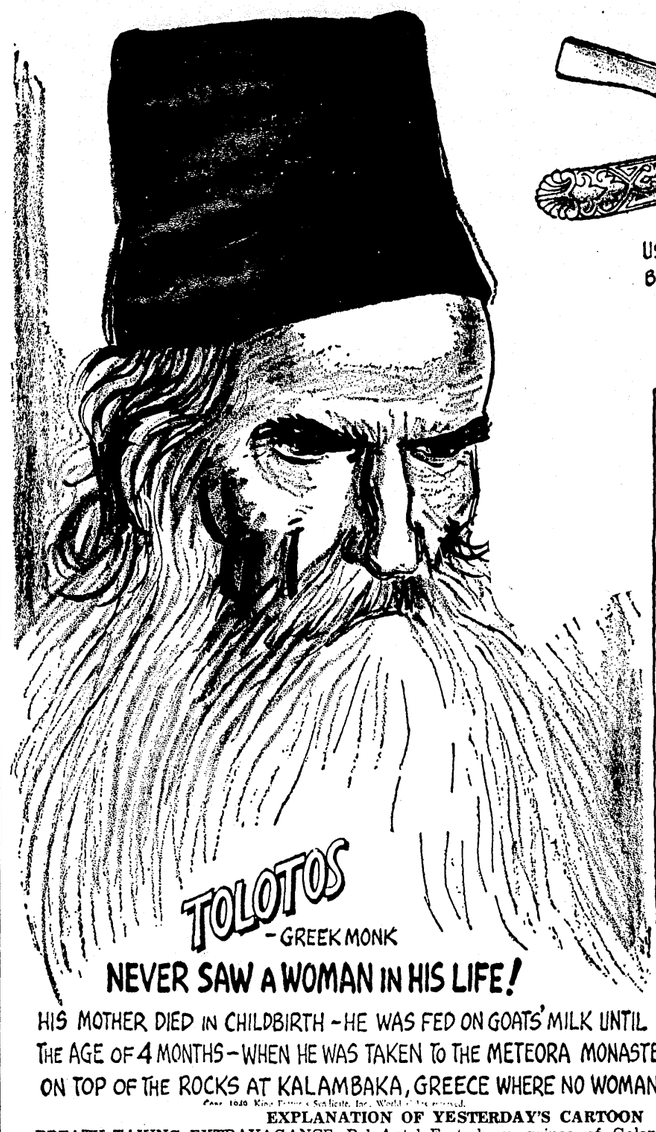

So far as Great Britain is concerned, the people are now finding out that they were not able to afford socialized medicine in their national budget. It is costing at the rate of $1,040,000,000 per year, or approximately one-twelfth of the total budget, far and beyond all estimates. In the recent budget message, the government had to tell the people, "there is indeed very good argument for imposing some special charge or tax in connection with the health service, both for help to finance it and to bring home to the people generally that it has to be paid for out of taxation. It is argued with some force that this might help people be more economical in making use of the service." And this when the people had been led to believe it was all free, when they had been led to believe there was no end to the benefits thy could receive by redistribution of the national wealth!

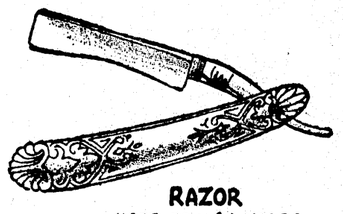

No wonder someone commented the other day that Britain is now a nation of "weeping and wailing and nationalization of teeth." The people have been disillusioned. The "fair share for all" is turning out to be nothing more than a fair share of austerity for all, with no prospects now held out by even the socialist government for any immediate improvement. The meat supply is dwindling, due to the bungling and inefficiency of government bulk purchasing, and the people have nothing to do with their new teeth except bite their fingernails. They have nothing to look at with their new spectacles except an empty plate.

But even if Great Britain could afford socialized medicine—and the people would realize they cannot a great deal more if their government were not being subsidized by American aid—there is no evidence thus far that this is the best way to provide health for all. The British Medical Association was against it from the beginning, because they realized they would thereby surrender their freedom and their initiative to government control. The act being passed, however, all of them except the finest specialists, who would have no trouble commanding private patients, were forced into the service. These doctors are now paid by the government for the patients under their control at an annual fee rate of $3.60 "per head." Patients are no longer individuals; they are units. The personal relationship between doctor and patient is gone.

The maximum number of patients any doctor is allowed is 4,000. This, of course, is more than any one doctor can adequately wait upon, and the average number of patients is much less. Since all the doctor's overhead must come out of his government compensation, this means that the average doctor's income has been reduced far below that which his profession deserves. The British Medical Association is now demanding a larger fee per patient, and has even formed a union of its own, the British Medical Guild, to protect the interests of the doctors in the state health service. In an effort to force all doctors into the service, the government is refusing free medicine to all private patients, but there is much evidence that the people are becoming greatly dissatisfied with their "free" health service and are beginning to realize that now they "have what they want, they don't want it."

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

BREATH TAKING EXTRAVAGANCE: Pal Antal Eszterhazy, prince of Galantha, count of Edelstetten, and hereditary Lord of Forchtenstein (1786-1866) was the owner of the most princely fortune on the European continent. His personal holdings included 21 castles, 60 boroughs, 621 villages, and over 100,000 acres of land. For 30 years Prince Eszterhazy was the most picturesque wastrel on the continent of Europe. He squandered more than 24,000,000 gulden (about $9,600,000) in addition to his revenue, a colossal sum for his day. The two most talked about feats were the shooting of the Derby winner and the destruction of a priceless Titian original with which he lined his coat.

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

PATRONAGE AND PARTIES

Most editors deplore, without qualification, President Truman's openly taken position that Democratic congressmen failing to support their party's program will not receive patronage privileges. But a small minority argues that the president has only openly and honestly admitted an established American political practice necessary to the maintenance of party policy and discipline. Majority opinion is that Truman's "ineptness" will strengthen the Republican-Southern Democrat coalition.

SAVANNAH (Ga.) Morning News (Ind.): "Harry Truman's warning to Democrats, who do not support his program, that they are 'wasting their time' if they come to him asking for patronage jobs, is another example of the Missourian's type of pseudo-statesmanship. . . . When Truman holds that the test of party loyalty is whether or not a member of his party votes for all the measures advocated by the White House, regardless of whether or not those measures are wise, he is dipping the presidency to the lowest state of ward heeler politics."

Dayton (Ohio) Daily News (Ind.-Dem.): "The problem of holding together a congressional majority in support of a consistent policy . . . is a formidable and often impossible one. . . . Congressman feel themselves much strengthened at home by the presidential patronage they receive. . . . It isn't nice when it is called bribing a congressman. It isn't nice, but it is always done. President Truman, mentioning patronage, was merely open and honest with a universal rule."

Philadelphia (Pa.) Bulletin (Ind.): "The president's view that the platform . . . should become party law reflects elemental honesty too often cynically brushed aside in the past. But politics is the art of the possible, and the reality is that discordant elements in parties frequently make living up to platforms impossible. The patronage club can be brought down successfully on individual heads, but when rebels form a large bloc, the threat of reprisals can be a boomerang. And that is what the president now faces with much of his program."

Duluth (Minn.) Herald (Ind.): "President Truman is only doing, in an inept manner and at a badly chosen time, what practically any president, under our form of government, must do. He is trying to restore discipline in a confused situation. He lacks the suavity and the persuasiveness that make leadership easy for some men and so he must make greater and more open use of force—rewards and punishment—methods that are less graceful but can be effective at times."

New York Herald Tribune (Ind.-Rep.): "The desire to see a greater degree of party discipline has been recurrent among statesmen and philosophers. Woodrow Wilson longed to make our system more nearly resemble that of the British. . . . A skillful leader can hold his party together, can create harmony among its dissident elements, and succeed in putting through a program more or less intact. But when the attempt is made as blatantly as by Mr. Truman, it inevitably tails."

Washington (D. C.) Star (Ind.): "It is gratifying that some Democratic members of congress have had the courage to express openly their resentment of the president's tactics. What the final result will be is hard to say. . . . In either event, however, the true character of the administration's tactics comes to light."

Christian Science Monitor (Ind.): "No one should deny an individual congressman the right to follow conscience instead of party. . . . But conscience also demands that platform pledges be carried out. And if a representative finds his party's policies continually in conflict with his principles, he should stop trying to get elected under that party's label."

El Paso (Texas) Herald-Post (Ind.): "Many men in congress, who consider themselves loyal Democrats, believe sincerely that . . . an attempt to accomplish everything Mr. Truman says the platform requires, plus everything else he promised various groups . . . would subject the people to intolerable new tax burdens and result in economic disaster."

Denver (Colo.) Post (Ind.): "The lesson of the Roosevelt purge should be graven in the White House handbook of 'do's' and 'don'ts' but, if it is, Harry Truman must have skipped the page. For he has now made the same unhappy move toward guaranteeing the deathless hostility of the southern bloc. . . . It promises to forge the final link in the Republican coalition."

Work Of Congress May Be Left Unfinished

By Edward Jamieson
(World Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Prospects that congress, still facing a mountain of unfinished business after four months of work, will quit with its legislative calendar only partially cleaned up are growing rapidly.

Following a stormy week of sessions on proposed changes in the Taft-Hartley labor management act which netted nothing in the way of new legislation, the house of representatives has returned to work on less controversial bills. But the temporary calm will end soon, when other of president's "Fair Deal" bills reach the house floor.

Meanwhile, the senate is moving even more slowly than the house and signs of a speed-up in that body are lacking. In addition, the senate will soon lay aside consideration of bills for a lengthy debate on the North Atlantic pact.

Adjournment of congress on July 31, the date fixed in the congressional reorganization act, would certainly mean postponement, at least, of action on many pieces of major legislation now pending before congress. Congressional leaders, however, are now talking of recessing about July 31 for six or eight weeks, and then returning for a fall session which could run virtually straight through until the second session begins in January.

This program appeals to many members who face primary and election campaigns next year. They would like to get away from Washington early enough to wage their campaigns adequately. They would also like to get their votes on controversial bills far enough behind them by election time that some of the voters, at least, would have forgotten.

Offsetting this desire, however, will be the actual physical discomfort of members of the house if they return in the fall for a continuation of the present session.

Plans are now well advanced for the installation of a new roof on the house chamber, to begin immediately after congress either adjourns or recesses this summer. Put off throughout the war, despite serious warnings sounded by engineers, the roof must now be put on, in the opinion of house leaders, concerned over a possible disaster.

Thus, if congress returns in the fall, the house will be forced to meet in the much smaller and uncomfortable caucus room in the house office building. House leaders are seriously wondering how long they can keep the house at work under these conditions.

As yet, there is no official list, compiled by either President Truman or congressional leaders, of what might be considered "must" legislation. The unofficial list, however, based upon presidential recommendations and preliminary action by the congress itself, is a long one. In addition, of course, there are hundreds of lesser bills that individual members or groups of members are anxious to get approved at the present session.

The more important measures which generally have been considered as demanding action one way or another this year include:

1. A new labor bill to replace the Taft-Hartley act. Despite the setback in the house, administration leaders appear determined to continue efforts to secure final approval of a new bill.

2. Appropriations. Bills providing funds for the operation of the government, of course, be passed and passed before July 1, the start of the new fiscal year, if possible. The house, in an unusual burst of speed, completed approval of all the regular appropriation measures before the Easter recess. The senate, however, has yet to act upon a single one. The first one to reach the senate floor, providing funds for the labor department and federal security agency, was sent back for reduction by an economy-minded senate majority. Until a general policy on fund cuts can be reached, other bills will be withheld in the appropriations committee.

3. Taxes. President Truman has demanded a hike in federal taxes this year, but the house ways and means committee, which must originate tax legislation, has not even begun consideration of a tax measure. Chairman Robert Doughton, who takes a dim view of a tax increase, has announced that his committee will not even be called to discuss the president's request until late this month.

4. Social security expansion. President Truman's social security expansion program has been under consideration by the ways and means committee for nearly two months. General expectation is that the committee will only approve a part of the program. The whole question is also expected to arouse a likely fight in the senate.

5. Long-range farm legislation. The administration, through Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan, has proposed a comprehensive substitute farm program for that adopted by the Republican controlled 80th congress. The plan, however, has aroused a major controversy and no solution in the near future appears in sight. Unwilling to allow the Aiken act to become effective January 1, 1950, Democratic farm leaders in congress may finally decide upon a one-year stop-gap bill, which would mean that the whole subject would have to be taken up again next year.

6. Housing. The senate, always more friendly toward low-cost housing legislation than the house, has already approved a comprehensive bill, but it will be sometime before the bill reaches the house floor. Administration leaders are determined to get a house vote on the legislation this year, after the house killed a similar senate measure in the 80th congress.

7. Inflation control. President Truman has recommended a series of measures designed to curb inflation and which some administration leaders contend could also be used to control the more likely deflation. The president is still insisting upon action on these measures, but most of them appear destined for pigeon-holes. Nevertheless, pressure for action upon some of them will be exerted right to the end.

8. Civil rights. This highly combustible issue, which took up several weeks of the senate's time earlier this year, is bound to return before the session is ended. Plans are already underway to bring at least the anti-poll tax and anti-lynching bills to the floor of the house. Both will take time and again flame the membership of the two bodies, not only threatening adjournment but other legislation as well.

There are scores of other bills which could be included. Members of congress, who have worked unusually long hours so far this session even though the results are meager, shudder when they glance at the calendar. For them, it is going to be a rough year whether they quit this summer, or continue through the fall.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK—Thinking out loud: Nostalgia with a wallop hits me behind the ear upon reading a note from Friend Elgia Koontz, informing me that Old Schoolmate George Rakestraw is wrecking our old Alma Mater, Lewis Academy, of Wichita.

The building was sold to the Y. W. C. A. immediately after my graduating class filed out, in 1909, and has been used as a girls' dormitory since. The school was 23 years old when it closed, so the building, now 63, probably was becoming even more decrepit than some of its alumni.

This was one of those small denominational academies that used to flourish throughout this country, but now are almost a phenomenon of the past. This one was Presbyterian, but, while it had a religious atmosphere, and chapel each morning was compulsory, there was no emphasis upon creed.

Lewis graduated only 300 students in its lifetime. Most of them went on to college with a more thorough preparation than could be had in the high schools of that time and place.

For the sake of fond memories, I hope George will send me a little sliver or something from the old chapel.

We still see, on highways and at garage exits and entrances, the warning sign, "Blow your horn." Now, everybody knows that the present generation never saw or heard a blowing horn on a motor vehicle, unless on a museum piece. Few drivers even know that there ever was a bulb of rubber mounted where drivers

NOTEBOOK

LANSING, Mich., May 7.—(AP)—A young Democratic governor works all day at a wide desk here in a timeworn statehouse that looks across a lawn loud with robins.

He is 38-year-old G. Mennen ("Soapy") Williams, whose friends believe he will some day dwell in the White House.

Right now the robins on the statehouse lawn aren't making nearly as much noise as the Republican legislators inside. And what these legislators are doing to the young governor's New Deal program is something he feels shouldn't happen to a Democrat.

For he works in a house divided. There is a broad river of dissent between the young governor and the Republican - dominated legislature. And the river is in flood.

There are those who think Williams became "the miracle man of Michigan politics" last November when, solidly backed by labor, he defeated Kim Sigler by 163,854 votes. But there are those, too, who think his victory merely reflected a decline in the popularity of Sigler, who was seeking re-election.

The new governor has both class and mass appeal. He has been a political protege of Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy and he is an heir to the Mennen shaving soap fortune. He had to mortgage his home in Grosse Pointe, a salad suburb of Detroit, to pay his campaign expenses.

Williams is 6 feet 3 1/2 inches tall, friendly and easy going. He invariably wears a bow tie, an engaging grin—and a cowlick of stubborn dark hair.

When I went in to see him, I had a moment of wonder. The first flash of his smile was startlingly reminiscent of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Williams not only follows FDR's policies—he looks like FDR's sons.

The governor is personally popular with the Republican legislators, who regard him tolerantly as "a well-intentioned young man." But he is acutely aware of the fact that in the last five months they have jettisoned most of his New Deal program.

"This session has done practically nothing," he said. "About all we've gotten in some partial improvements in workmen's compensation and unemployment compensation."

One thing Williams feels will be adopted in time is a four per cent corporation franchise tax he has pressed for without result.

"The state is going broke otherwise," he said.

Michigan has a three per cent state sales tax but no personal income tax.

The governor's term in office is two years in Michigan, and Williams has already indicated he will run again.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

It is always safe to speak against sin theoretically, or in general terms. Everybody—like the minister whose sermon President Coolidge laconically reported—is "against it."

It is only when one gets down to personalities and cases, when one says, "Thou art the man," or "That action was diabolical," that sinners get nasty and strike back.

In the vigorous denunciations of sin during His last days, Jesus got down to both personalities and cases. When He spoke of hypocricy, He named the Scribes and Pharisees, the official representatives and established "authorities" of religion; and He attacked their specific acts of hypocrisy and evil-doing. If there were devout and earnest Scribes and Pharisees, as there undoubtedly were, who had never devoured widows' houses, or done the things that Jesus denounced, they had no reason to take His charges to themselves. But there were plenty to whom His words applied.

"He taught them as one having authority, and not as their Scribes." Those words mark a strange fact and a striking contrast. The Scribes were officially and ostensibly the repository of authority, the interpreters of the law; yet here was a young man from a hill town, unimportant Nazareth, neither a Scribe, nor a priest, with no official standing, presuming to teach, and finding a response in the people who heard Him gladly.

It was no wonder that they said, "By what authority doest Thou these things? And who gave Thee this authority?" It is the way in which official authority has always challenged the unofficial teacher, prophet, and doer; and to a certain extent the challenge is justified. It would be a dangerous and preposterous situation if we had no standards for those who teach in our schools, or who practice medicine in our communities, or even for those who preach in our pulpits.

But a license, and an evidence of authority, do not guarantee either honesty or efficiency in those who possess them. We well know that there are incompetent teachers and even some surgeons.

Authority has its true validity in the power actually to be and to do what the authority authorizes. In a world of necessary standards it would be preposterous if an Edison could not give the world his work because he did not happen to be a professor of physics, or if a D. L. Moody could not do his great work of evangelism because no ordaining hands of bishops, or of council, has been laid upon him.

The mistake that the Scribes made was two-fold: first, in not being and doing what by their claim of authority they professed to be and do; and second, in their failure to judge Jesus by what He was and did.

There was one Pharisee who knew better. When Nicodemus came to Jesus he said, "Master we know that Thou art a teacher come from God; for no man can do these miracles that Thou doest; except God be with him."

A world of "authority" needs more men of the spirit of Nicodemus.

Dispute Over Who Passed What Still On

Republicans, Democrats Trade Verbal Blows Over Legislation Okayed

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) said today that major domestic legislation passed by the senate is part of "the Republican program" and inquired "What's happened to Mr. Truman's proposals?"

Senate Myers of Pennsylvania, acting Democratic floor leader, reported promptly that his party not only has "corrected some of the mistakes" of the Republican 80th congress, but is moving ahead with the president's program.

In separate interviews, Taft and Myers claimed credit for their respective parties in senate approval of housing, aid to education and school health bills.

"These were part of the Republican program that the senate passed last year," said Taft, who heads the G. O. P. policy committee. "On the other hand, to date the Democrats haven't brought forth anything new.

"They have talked about a national health program, including socialized medicine, but it doesn't look now as though they are going to try to pass it this year.

"Secretary of Agriculture Brannan has suggested a new farm program, but they don't seem to have been able yet to get it into bill form.

"As for repeal of the Taft-Hartley act, which the president talked about all the time in his campaign, the house action on that seems to speak for itself."

The house this week advanced to voting on the repeal question but finally sent the only bill it even tentatively approved—a measure by Representative Wood (D.-Ga.) retaining many of the T-H provisions—back to committee for a fresh start.

Conceding that the Republicans had furnished help in passage of the aid to education, housing and school health bills, Myers added that talk by G. O. P. senators "certainly delayed the final vote on all of those bills."

"We are getting through some important parts of the president's program," Myers said. "The housing, education and school health bills were all in our platform.

"We have voted to correct the mistake the Republican 80th congress made in the restricting Commodity Credit Corporation's ability to acquire grain storage facilities.

"We have passed the Marshall plan bill. Next week we are going to take up the measure, which the house already has voted, to correct the mistakes the Republicans made in continuing the reciprocal trade agreement program."

As approved by the senate finance committee, the latter measure would restore the trade program as it originally was enacted, giving the president power to raise or lower tariffs without further checks by congress.

Republicans plan to offer an amendment under which the tariff commission would be required to look into tariff cuts and to report any it held might endanger American business.

The president would be required to explain to congress if he went ahead to make any of these cuts despite the commission's finding.

Myers said there had been no check yet on how the Democrats stand on that amendment. It is the only one given a chance of senate adoption.

ABDULLAH FILES CLAIM ON PALESTINE TERRITORY

AMMAN, Trans-Jordan, May 7.—(AP)—Three Palestine Arabs became ministers of the Trans-Jordan government today, emphasizing King Abdullah's claim to territories west of the Jordan.

A royal decree read in parliament approved the formation of a new cabinet, including the Palestinians, under Premier Tewfik El Huda Pasha. The reorganization was ordered by Abdullah May 3.

The ministry of the exterior (foreign affairs) went to one of the newcomers, Rouhi Addil Hadi. He formerly was assistant secretary in the Palestine government under the British mandate.

The other Palestine Arabs are Mousa Naser, assigned to communications, and Khalousi El Kheiri, named minister of agriculture and commerce. El Kheiri formerly was a district officer at Jaffa.

Other members of the cabinet are Fawzi Pasha El Kulki, defense; Mohammed Amin El Shengiti, education; Falah Pasha El Madadha, justice; Said Pasha El Mufti, interior, and Suliman Pasha El Madadha, justice; Said Pasha El Mufti, interior, and Suliman Pasha Sukkar, finance.

Annexation of some Palestine Arab territories is regarded in Amman as already an accomplished fact.

The old cabinet approved last December the proposal of a "general Palestine congress" of Arab Palestine representatives at Jerico that Abdullah accept the crown of a unified Trans-Jordan and Palestine. This matter, however, was held in abeyance.

(Premier Husni Zayim of Syria, northern neighbor of Trans-Jordan, spoke out again Friday night against what he called imperialistic unification schemes. He declared in Damascus that Syria will shift from defensive to offensive opposition to Abdullah's "greater Syria" plan and Iraq's "fertile crescent" proposal.

(Both of these would provide for merger of Trans-Jordan, Arab Palestine, Syria, Lebanon and Iraq, but one would have the territory ruled by Abdullah and the other by the Iraq boy king, Feisal II.)

PAROLEE RELEASED TO STATE OFFICER

A 23-year-old Negro, arrested here April 23 for disturbing the peace, was released late yesterday to a state parole officer.

Monroe police said they apprehended J. L. Williams, the Negro, and booked him with disturbing the peace. Later, by employing fingerprint comparison, they discovered he was a parolee, having been sentenced in 1948 for cattle theft in Caldwell parish.

The remainder of the Negro's sentence, police said, is three years and three months. He will probably be returned to Angola Monday, according to police.

ARMED ROBBERY

SALT LAKE CITY, May 7.—(AP)—Police listed this case on their docket today as "armed robbery." A 14-year-old boy pointed his air rifle at an eight-year-old companion, forcing the latter to give up his bicycle. The younger boy told his father, who held the "robber" until police arrived. The lad was turned over to juvenile autnorities.

Billy Rose:

PITCHING HORSESHOES

While we were in Honolulu, I heard a story which has been making the rounds for several years and seems certain to wind up as one of the legends of the islands.

Some years ago, the Hawaiian government set up a school on the western tip of Oahu, and among the youngsters who enrolled was a kid named Biluki Oolaka. Biluki took to the 20th century like most boys take to a sling shot and, a few months after he started studying English, changed his name to bill.

By the time Bill was 20, he was smoking cork-tips, driving a $25 jalopy, and carrying a picture of Betty Grable in his wallet. And, what's more, he was always telling anyone who would listen that diseases are caused by viruses, not voodoo, and that the ancient system of tabus and temples was so much mumbo-jumbo.

It happened that around that time a friend of Bill's folks—an overseer of a plantation—approached his employer and asked for the hand of his daughter in marriage. When the rich man laughed at him and ordered him off the plantation, the overseer invoked the curse of "kahuna anaana" on him, and in Hawaii "kahuna anaana" means literally, "praying one to death." The "accursee" makes a doll-sized image of his victim, sticks pins into it and then spends most of his time in the temple concentrating on the death of his enemy.

A week after the curse was invoked, the plantation owner began to be troubled by violent stomach disorders and, realizing what had happened, retaliated with a "kahuna" of his own against the overseer. What the natives call "double kahuna" was now at work, and three months later both Hawaiians were dead.

Well, to the people who lived at the foot of the volcano where Bill had been raised, it was the ancient magic working again, but the young scoffer had a civilized and logical explanation for it. Each of the two men, he said, had complete faith in his own praying and, consequently, it never occurred to either to doubt the efficacy of his enemy's. Certain that the only course was to out-hex the other, each had worked himself into a state of hysteria and, completely absorbed in this irrational process, had neglected the usual physical and material precautions. And so, according to Bill's theory, each man had literally prayed himself to death in the belief that he was inflicting that fate on his enemy.

The young man's parents were shocked at his irreverence and made several trips to the little temple to prospitiate the God of the Mountain who, in his anger, might rain fire and destruction on them as he had in ages past, but Bill only grinned and told them to get wise to themselves.

Then another incident. A few weeks later, a guide named Paaliki, bribed by an extra large tip, walked half a dozen tourists into a temple where "haoles," or white men, were not welcome. As they entered, a ritual was in progress and one of the tourists flicked the ashes of a cigarette into a sacred urn. The priest, horrified at this blasphemy, pronounced a curse on the avaricious guide and predicted that within seven days of the profanement he would meet with violent death.

The terrified guide returned to his hut and stayed there and, as the end of the seventh day approached, his friends began to wonder if he might not beat the curse.

But a few minutes before sundown, Paaliki's neighbors saw a puff of smoke from the thatched roof and, by the time they got to his hut, the guide had been burned to death.

Well, Bill had an explanation for that one, too. As he saw it, Paaliki, crazed with fear and afraid of being taken unaware, had been unable to sleep the night before. To keep awake during the last day of the curse, he had chain-smoked, but finally, cigarette in mouth, he had dozed off. And, grass huts being what they are, the rest was simple.

The elders of Bill's village, frightened by these heresies in their midst, sent a committee to reason with him. But the iconoclast stood his ground and the next day, to prove his point, walked into the temple and spat at the foot of the God of the Mountain. The enraged priest pronounced a malediction on Bill and prophesied that exactly one week hence death would rain down on him from the skies.

The young man smiled at this allusion to a volcanic eruption—he had live in the shadow of the volcano all his life and, as recently as three days before, had climbed down into the dead crater to examine it.

Nevertheless, the eve of the seventh day he had trouble falling asleep, and shortly before sunup thought he heard a far-off rumbling in the air. He dressed quickly and went outside, and the sun hitting the top of the volcano seemed to edge it with fire.

"Might as well play it safe," he told himself, jumped into his jalopy and drove along the coast road to the east. By the time he reached the bay, both the volcano and his fears were miles to the west and he felt ashamed of having run away.

"A swim will clear my head," he said to himself, and pulled the car off the road. A few minutes later, he ran down the beach and, once in the water, he smiled—here he was safe from the curse, for even an accidental death by drowning would defeat the prophecy.

But a half hour later he was dead.

The date was December 7, 1941.

Likes One-Way System

Columbia, La.
May 6, 1949.

To The Editor:

May I have the use of your columns to thank those of your citizens who are responsible for thinking up and putting into effect your one-way system of traffic control.

My business brings me to Monroe daily and I want to express myself with respect to the convenient manner we can now drive down your main stem. That with being able to find a parking place as a result of the meters makes it a pleasure to drive in the downtown area.

There is just one other thing that needs to be done up there, (if I may tell you how to run your town), and that is to get behind your police officers and help them to stop those 'slow poke' truck drivers east of Five Points on DeSiard street that try to see how slow they can drive and thereby tie up traffic for miles behind them. There should be some kind of rule or law that could handle a man who has the nerve to drive a truck on a main street as slow as 10 or 12 miles per hour, which is done every day.

On the whole, congratulations to all of you for doing a swell job.

Very truly yours,
B. R. SHERMAN.

Around Washington With

BASCOM N. TIMMONS

Probably no political development since last November's election has shocked Republican leaders in Washington so much as the decision of Sen. Raymond E. Baldwin, Republican of Connecticut, to resign his seat in the senate next December and accept an appointment to the Connecticut State supreme court.

Baldwin's decision, which will further reduce the size of the Republican minority in the senate, apparently was induced by Gov. Chester Bowles, arch New Deal Democrat, who will name his successor for the critical political year 1950.

The fact that Bowles, one time price administrator and considered farther to the left than most members of the national administration, was able to persuade Baldwin to give up his senate seat for a judgeship is what surprised the senator's G. O. P. colleagues.

For the most part, the Republican members will not grieve too much over Baldwin leaving. He has been a member of the very small group of G. O. P. senators who have on occasion voted with the Democratic majority and have unsuccessfully tried several revolts against the body's Republican leadership.

But even a rebellious Republican is better than another Democrat, from their viewpoint. This is particularly true in view of next year's situation. The Republicans have been laying major plans for a real fight next year to regain enough seats in the senate so that in 1952, they could take back control. They had counted on only one race in Connecticut next year, where Sen. Brien McMahon, had been selected as one of the prime G. O. P. targets of the year. Now they will face two races in the state, which today, at least, is under Democratic control.

In addition, the man or woman selected by Bowles to fill Baldwin's seat for nearly a year before the election, will have gained a running start on whoever secures the Republican nomination.

Not much was said publicly about Baldwin's action, but some of the private conversation in the senate cloakroom was pretty bitter.

An American businessman who has recently completed a study of one part of the operation of the British national health service program contends that this part, at least, is far more costly than under the American system.

He is Walter A. Stewart, president of the American Optical Company. He declares that the per patient cost of eye care—including professional fee and eyeglasses—is approximately 60 per cent higher in Great Britain than in the United States.

In addition, Stewart reports, original estimates of the government cost of eye care in Great Britain under its free national health plan have proven almost unbelievably low. He pointed out that the initial estimate was $10,000,000 a year, but that recent estimates of the cost of this program for its first year fix it at $60,000,000, or six times as much as had been anticipated.

If you have a "dud" shell or explosive in your home as a war souvenir, maybe it would be wise to have the war trophies safety committee look it over to be certain it is not potentially dangerous.

Last year the committee, which was formed in May, 1947, is credited with saving more than 1,500 lives through discovery and elimination of hazardous war mementoes. This credit came from the national safety council and is, if in error, probably an underestimate. At any rate, the American Society of Safety Engineers has announced that it will cooperate with the work of the committee.

During its approximately two years of activity, the war trophies safety committee had examined and rendered harmless more than 750,000 pieces of explosive ordnance. Most of the war souvenirs were small, but the committee has handled many bazookas, aerial bombs, hand grenades, rifles and the like. And one call from the possessor of a two-ton anti-aircraft gun complete with carriage.

The committee, in cooperation with the National Military Establishment, the National Rifle Association and the treasury department, will try to look over souvenirs of not only World War II, but World War I, and any war whatsoever. It simply wants to confine casualties of war-time explosives strictly to duration of war.

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

MOTHER'S DAY

I do not recall ever knowing how Mother's Day got started. When I left our country in 1917 for a six months' stay abroad and managed to prolong the absence for nearly 14 years, there was no Mother's Day. That is, every day was Mother's Day.

In those distant years, children were brought up to respect their parents. Most of us even loved our parents, and it was quite usual for children to obey their parents. Progressive education had not yet enlightened us to believe that the child was more correct than his elders, that experiences was a negligible quality, and that the child had rights which the parent might not question.

We lived in those remote times in families consisting of one father, one mother, and quite a number of children. There were also grandparents, uncles, aunts, and cousins. Divorces were rare—and the divorcee had a bad name, no matter how good the reason for the deed.

Nobody sprouted wings particularly, but there was a way of life that everybody seemed to take for granted. And mom was usually the guardian of that way of life, and nobody answered back. For instance, in those days, if anybody spoke about anybody's wife as the Puerto Rican is said to have shouted about Durocher's wife from the grandstand, a gentleman would have given him a black eye and a kick to boot.

When mother became an old fogey, the world changed. By that I mean that when children began to talk about their parents as though they were antediluvians and when mothers began to compete for youth with their daughters, many miseries came upon our people. For instance, I am sure that the peculiarities of the New Dealers, their lack of respect for tradition and experience and even knowledge, their presumptuousness, their intolerance of know-how—all these peculiarities come from the fact that they spent their youth in that mad period of American history often called the jazz age, when anything was all right and the mores of a nation changed.

Instead of the family having a mother, daddy has a wife and mamma has a husband, and often there are two or three of each kind. I think we can attribute much of our current social disorders, our hooliganism, to use a phrase that Stalin took from Hearst's "Happy Hooligan," to our amoral schools which make God illegal and elevate biology to a creed. For if mother is little more than an ovulating gestating homo sapiens, then the dictum of the moral law, "Honor thy father and thy mother: That thy days may be long . . ." Is little more than part of a speech delivered by Moses on Mount Sinai to keep the Jews in line. It might have come out of a speech by Henry Wallace or Harry Truman.

If nothing matters but how the amoeba splits off its cells to explain how you and I came to be, then why worry about morals and ethics and the manners of life based on them? Someone once said that morals are private and manners public, and that one minds his business about morals as long as the manners are right.

Curiously, when man loses his morals his manners become debased. For manners are a reflection of the soul, as the eye is of personality. The young lady with a pancake finish and a mink jacket who screams at the umpire, "kill da bum!" lacks manners, of course. When she translates that sentence as she sometimes does at a prizefight, into language which would make this column unprintable, her personality reeks of that lack of restraint which only exists where morals are weak.

And so, my old mother, I salute you in your very old age. You may never have heard of a pancake finish and you never once got into a gossip, column, but I have never seen you drunk, nor have you shamed our household because you had to live your own life. You brought God into our home and taught us to live in His shadow, to love right, to seek truth, to try to be just, to walk through this world humbly and faithfully. God bless you.

of primitive cars could reach it, to be squeezed so as to expel air that would make a noise something like that of a child's Christmas horn. So it was called, and you blew it by pressure.

We now make a sound, nothing whatever like that of a horn, by closing an electric current. Still, the instrument is called a horn, or, in England, a hooter. And outside scores of garages in New York you see the warning: "Blow your horn!"

It's the same way with the telephone hook. We still say "Jiggle the hook and maybe you can get the operator."

On most of the telephones in these parts, hooks passed away years ago. You place the instrument in what's called a cradle. The name of the thing you jiggle I do not know, but it isn't a hook.

Robert Whitlow, singer, who recently made his debut at Town Hall, is hailed by critics as one of the coming stars. . . . A book that came my way lately in a de luxe limited edition is "The Beloved Spy," a study of John Andre, beautifully published by Caxton, of Caldwell, Idaho. And Caxton, away out there where New York publishers think buffalo eat tourists, is showing what publishers can do with the aid of low overhead plus brains and artistry. . . . Hope to tell you more about that book, written by Harry Stanton Tillotson, later.

But here's a book that kept me up half of last night. It's "The Dictionary of Humorous Quotations," edited by Evan Esar, a young man whom I'd love to know, for he has a sense of humor (Doubleday).

The Nation Today

JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—Let's get confused together. Just read this.

There was plenty of confusion in the galleries this week when congress scuffled with the labor bill. This story will spread the confusion.

All the house members can be sitting there, doing business as the house. Nobody leaves. They're all still there but—

Suddenly the house members decide they'll stop doing business as the house and start doing business as the committee of the whole. Why?

Because, under the house rules, they can do business faster as the committee of the whole than they can as the house.

But when they get through doing business as the committee of the whole they have to start doing business as the house again.

And whatever they approve while they're the committee of the whole they have to re-approve when they become the house again, or it doesn't count.

If you're not well boxed-up at this point, just wait till we get on with this story about what happened to the labor bill.

There were really two labor bills, one offered by Representative Lesinski, Michigan Democrat, and the other offered by Representative Wood, Georgia Democrat.

President Truman, his lieutenants and organized labor wanted the Lesinski bill passed. It would have wiped out the Taft-Hartley act. They were against the Wood bill, which would have kept much of T-H.

Last week the house—as the house—decided to consider the Lesinski bill. But then to save time it turned itself into the committee of the whole. Then this happened:

1. The enemies of the Lesinski bill offered the Wood bill as an amendment to the Lesinski bill. If it were adopted, the Lesinski bill would have kept the name Lesinski but it really would have been the Wood bill. Because the Wood bill would have changed the Lesinski bill entirely.

2. After days of argument, while acting as the committee of the whole, the house adopted the Wood amendment to the Lesinski bill, thus wiping out the Lesinski bill.

3. Then the house ceased being the committee of the whole and became the house again. So then the house had to vote all over again on what it had just approved while it was the committee of the whole.

4. So the question was: Should the house adopt the Wood amendment which it had just adopted while it was the committee of the whole? It did, by a vote of 217 to 203. This was a bad setback for the Trumanites.

5. This wasn't all. The house as the house had only passed the Wood amendment to the Lesinski bill. Now the question was: Should it pass the Lesinski bill as amended?

6. Howya doing?

7. Just at that point—before the house could vote on the Lesinski bill as amended—this would have been the final vote—Representative Marcantonio of New York, only member of the American Labor party in congress, got up. He asked that the house be furnished with an "engrossed copy" of the bill before the final vote.

Since the government printer must work hours to get out an "engrossed copy" of a bill, and it was already 7 p. m., the house quit until the next day without taking the final vote on the Lesinski bill as amended.

8. Came the next day. The house had the "engrossed" copy. It was ready for the final vote on the Lesinski bill as amended. Nothing could stop that vote except one thing: If someone stood up and asked for a vote on sending the bill back to the house labor committee for further consideration. Representative Welch, California Republican who didn't like the Wood bill, got up.

9. He asked the question. So the house had to vote, not on passage of the Lesinski bill as amended by the Wood bill, but on whether the whole business should be sent back to the labor committee. The vote was 212 to 209 for sending it back to the labor committee.

This was a victory for the Trumanites because by sending the bill back to the labor committee the house voted not to let itself vote on passage of the Lesinski bill as amended.

What the house really did was knock itself out of any labor bill at all.

PRESS PURSUIT OF PRINCESS SCORNED

OXFORD, Eng., May 7.—(AP)—Attorney General Sir Hartley Shawcross said tonight the press caused "great disgust" with its pursuit of Princess Margaret during her holiday in Italy.

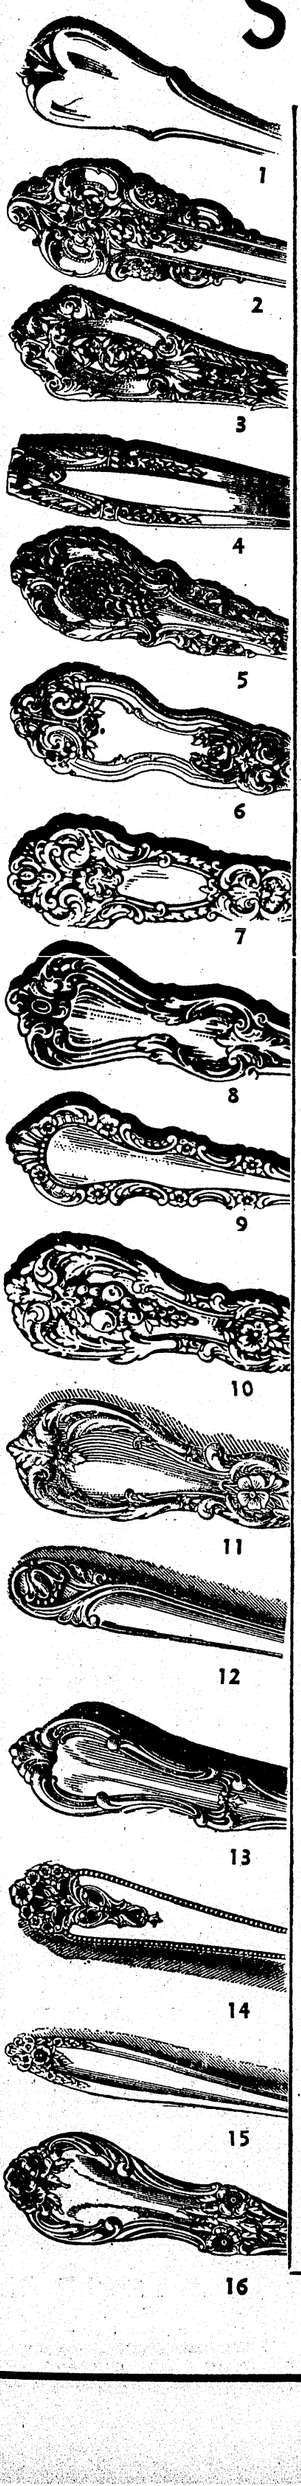

He objected particularly to the long range photographing of the shapely princess in a bathing suit at Capri. His remarks were made in a discussion of British newspapers during a speech at the Oxford University Labor Party Club.

"Some of the newspapers are often vulgar," Sir Hartley said. "The way in which they pursued a member of the royal family on private holiday, taking photographs with telescopic lenses, has caused great disgust."

Photographers — American, British and Italian—were kept away from the princess by Italian police during most of her stay at Capri. Some newspapers in Italy and Britain were critical of the police action.

Mother's Day

Mother has been the object of adoration since the dawn of time. In terms of refining influence and devotion, two qualities which knit the human race together and make its interrelationships endurable, mother is the decisive influence.

The distaff side has a more formidable job on its hands than ever before. The world is in turmoil and values are shifting. Not long ago homes and communities were guided by certain fixed principles. It remained only for mother, with whatever assistance she could get from father, to follow the accepted rules. Now the taboos of society are relaxed in many ways.

Principles which once held sway have been succeeded by other principles. Even the tenets of child training have changed. A home trying to adhere to old rules encounters the obstacle of new ideas the child picks up in association with his fellows. Much of the blame for juvenile delinquency can be laid to the confusion which has beset society.

The successful mother can somehow, despite all the handicaps, instill morality and character into the child, providing the off spring with an impenetrable armor of precept. But that is not an irrevocably reliable indice, for each must learn by his own experience.

Mother has all the old moral values, all the findings of modern science, for her assistance. She has environment as a constant challenge. Motherhood is a greater responsibility than ever before.

Mr. Hartley Is Picketed

Throwing a picket line in front of the Northeast Junior College auditorium last Monday night in an effort to embarrass former Representative Fred Hartley and the sponsors of his address here was perhaps the most unique display of pique ever seen here. We really had given officers of the Monroe Central Trades and Labor Council credit for having more sound judgment and practical leadership than to throw themselves and their members "wide open" for the criticism they have received as a result of this childish prank.

In the first place, the co-author of the Taft-Hartley act is no longer a member of congress and the pickets could have no possible influence (and neither could he) or any action that might be taken in Washington by such antics; in the second place, neither members of the organization which brought Mr. Hartley here nor others who wanted to hear what he had to say could be termed anti-labor just because of their presence. Undoubtedly many persons would turn out to hear John L. Lewis or William Green or Phillip Murray if any of the three were to appear here but that wouldn't indicate that the audience was necessarily endorsing the philosophies of either of those three gentlemen.

And in the third place, the marchers were picketing the very things they have so loudly defended vocally—the right of free speech and free assembly.

Mr. Hartley said that he "never thought I would be picketed in the state of Louisiana." What Mr. Hartley doesn't know is that some of the seamier practices of labor unions in the north and east have seeped into the south, practices which are not condoned by many sincere union members. In fact, several defenders of unionism expressed regret that Mr. Hartley was picketed because they, themselves, wanted to hear what defense the ex-congressman would muster for the Taft-Hartley act and were prevented from doing so because they naturally would not cross a picket line.

The labor movement in the Twin Cities gained nothing by this display of intolerance. For Town Hall, it was perhaps a larger audience than usual; for Mr. Hartley, it was the collection of a fee paid the better known personalities who regularly appear in such engagements; and for the labor unions, it was the loss of some of the respect which they have held in the community.

Klan Unmasked In Atlanta

The City Council of Atlanta, Ga., has restored to masks their original function as the trappings of pageants and buffoonery. It has ordained that they shall be worn, at least in Atlanta, only on festive occasions such as Halloween. Anyone ignoring the order will be subject to a $200 fine and 30 days in jail.

This decision was late in coming. But when it did come it couldn't have happened in a better place. For a gang of Atlantans, some 30 years ago, began wearing masks on occasions that were far from festive. Beneath a silly surface of titles and rituals such as little boys use when playing "secret lodge," they conducted a campaign of terrorism and murder.

Their treacherous idea spread. Soon many states had similar gangs of men, and women, too—craven, ignorant, bigoted, cruel people who aped the terrorism and childish ceremonies of the Atlanta founders. They became, in some states, the ruling political power. At last the revulsion of sensible people drove them underground and nearly destroyed them. But since the war they have reappeared in some sections of the south.

Now things are going to be different, at least in Atlanta.

These people who claim to be 100 per cent Americans may no longer hide their proud faces from other Americans. They may still prefer to carry on their brave work under the protection of darkness. But they will no longer be able to frighten, beat and murder in faceless anonymity.

These people who profess to be the protectors of our American institutions will now find it harder to flout the law which is the keystone of those institutions.

For Atlanta, at long, long last, has unmasked the Ku Klux Klan.

DeWitt Mackenzie:

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

Your columnist has encountered an unusual analysis of China's crisis, by an interesting personality—Dr. Hu Shih, Chinese philosopher, educator and diplomat who was ambassador to Washington in 1938-42.

The distinguished Dr. Hu has just arrived in New York from his homeland on a tour to study the world situation, and I had a chat with him in his apartment over a cup of tea which he himself brewed. I asked him what he thought of the testimony before the senate armed services committee by General Claire Chennault who said America still could save China (and Asia) from Communist control by assistance costing about $1,000,000 a day.

"I'm not a military expert," replied Dr. Hu, "and am not qualified to pass judgment on that estimate. Of course material aid is needed but I don't believe the exact amount of help matters nearly so much as would the moral support of America.

"That's the great thing—the assurance that the United States is with us.

"The greatest weakness of Nationalist China now is lowered morale due to the belief that she has lost American support. I can tell you now that the collapse of the Nanking government resulted from the reports that the United States could do nothing more for China.

"Such news spreads rapidly in my country. You mustn't forget that at least 50,000 of our intellectuals were educated in the United States. (Dr. Hu himself is a graduate of Cornell and has honorary degrees from many American universities.) Naturally they keep in close touch with the United States and any reaction here towards China is quickly recognized and the news spreads."

The doctor emphasized all this with never-ceasing gestures of his very expressive hands. He is a vivid personality who talks as much with his hands as he does with his tongue. He should go far as a pantomimist.

I pointed to the very grave military position of the Nationalist forces in face of the great Communist drive, and asked Dr. Hu if he felt the Nationalists still had a chance to win. He nodded, and said:

"As I see it, our position is no worse today than was that of say France and Belgium after they were invaded by the Germans in the late war. Both those countries were overrun by the enemy. Their positions were as desperate as could be. But the people didn't lose their courage. Why? Because they knew the allied powers would stand by them. And in due course the Germans were evicted.

"I believe the Nationalist cause isn't lost. We still can win."

I asked Dr. Hu if he subscribed to the idea that the Chinese Communists are hooked directly with Moscow.

"Of course they are," he exclaimed, and raced into an adjoining room, to return with a copy of the Chinese Communist party's constitution. He read an extract which committed the party to the Moscow line.

"Because of that," said the doctor, "the fate of all Asia is involved in the Chinese civil war. If China should be taken over, then the rest of the Orient would fall under control of Russia."

SOCIALIZED MEDICINE

LONDON, England—Those who believe in socialized medicine are those who believe in state control, who believe that the state can do things better for the people than the people can do these things for themselves. They prefer the welfare state to individual freedom.

What results can they marshall to support their belief? None, that history records. It continues to be an illusive will o' the wisp of wishful thinking that is all fancy and no fact. It ignores the tangible results of the free enterprise system, and dreams of a socialistic utopia.

One of the welfare measures that the welfare staters always concentrate upon is socialized medicine, a complete health service for all provided at government expense. This was one of the promises in the platform of the present socialist government as it came into power in Great Britain. It was therefore made a part of Britain's social security program, providing medical and dental service, medicine, dentures, spectacles, hot water bottles, corsets, wigs and transformations, and all other appurtenances supposedly pertaining to the health and well-being of the people.

Of course, good health is desirable for the people of any nation. Naturally, a complete health service for all is one of the ways to ensure good health. The question is whether the particular nation interested can afford to provide for this service in its general budget. The further question is whether, provided it can be afforded, it is best to turn the health of the people over to the state or let the people retain control over their own health.

So far as Great Britain is concerned, the people are now finding out that they were not able to afford socialized medicine in their national budget. It is costing at the rate of $1,040,000,000 per year, or approximately one-twelfth of the total budget, far and beyond all estimates. In the recent budget message, the government had to tell the people, "there is indeed very good argument for imposing some special charge or tax in connection with the health service, both for help to finance it and to bring home to the people generally that it has to be paid for out of taxation. It is argued with some force that this might help people be more economical in making use of the service." And this when the people had been led to believe it was all free, when they had been led to believe there was no end to the benefits thy could receive by redistribution of the national wealth!

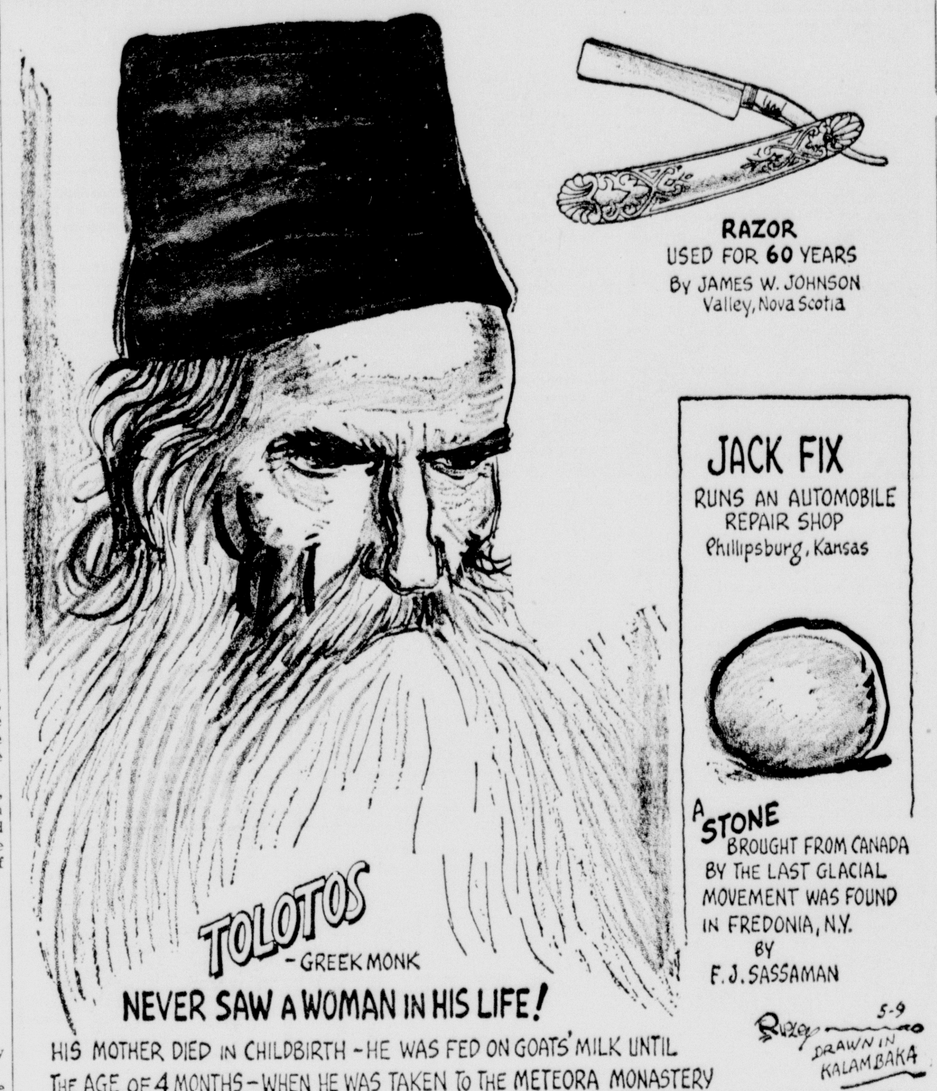

No wonder someone commented the other day that Britain is now a nation of "weeping and wailing and nationalization of teeth." The people have been disillusioned. The "fair share for all" is turning out to be nothing more than a fair share of austerity for all, with no prospects now held out by even the socialist government for any immediate improvement. The meat supply is dwindling, due to the bungling and inefficiency of government bulk purchasing, and the people have nothing to do with their new teeth except bite their fingernails. They have nothing to look at with their new spectacles except an empty plate.

But even if Great Britain could afford socialized medicine—and the people would realize they cannot a great deal more if their government were not being subsidized by American aid—there is no evidence thus far that this is the best way to provide health for all. The British Medical Association was against it from the beginning, because they realized they would thereby surrender their freedom and their initiative to government control. The act being passed, however, all of them except the finest specialists, who would have no trouble commanding private patients, were forced into the service. These doctors are now paid by the government for the patients under their control at an annual fee rate of $3.60 "per head." Patients are no longer individuals; they are units. The personal relationship between doctor and patient is gone.

The maximum number of patients any doctor is allowed is 4,000. This, of course, is more than any one doctor can adequately wait upon, and the average number of patients is much less. Since all the doctor's overhead must come out of his government compensation, this means that the average doctor's income has been reduced far below that which his profession deserves. The British Medical Association is now demanding a larger fee per patient, and has even formed a union of its own, the British Medical Guild, to protect the interests of the doctors in the state health service. In an effort to force all doctors into the service, the government is refusing free medicine to all private patients, but there is much evidence that the people are becoming greatly dissatisfied with their "free" health service and are beginning to realize that now they "have what they want, they don't want it."

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

BREATH TAKING EXTRAVAGANCE: Pal Antal Eszterhazy, prince of Galantha, count of Edelstetten, and hereditary Lord of Forchtenstein (1786-1866) was the owner of the most princely fortune on the European continent. His personal holdings included 21 castles, 60 boroughs, 621 villages, and over 100,000 acres of land. For 30 years Prince Eszterhazy was the most picturesque wastrel on the continent of Europe. He squandered more than 24,000,000 gulden (about $3,600,000) in addition to his revenue, a colossal sum for his day. The two most talked about feats were the shooting of the Derby winner and the destruction of a priceless Titian original with which he lined his coat.

PATRONAGE AND PARTIES

Most editors deplore, without qualification, President Truman's openly taken position that Democratic congressmen failing to support their party's program will not receive patronage privileges. But a small minority argues that the president has only openly and honestly admitted an established American political practice necessary to the maintenance of party policy and discipline. Majority opinion is that Truman's "ineptness" will strengthen the Republican-Southern Democrat coalition.

SAVANNAH (Ga.) Morning News (Ind.): "Harry Truman's warning to Democrats, who do not support his program, that they are 'wasting their time' if they come to him asking for patronage jobs, is another example of the Missourian's type of pseudo-statesmanship. . . . When Truman holds that the test of party loyalty is whether or not a member of his party votes for all the measures advocated by the White House, regardless of whether or not those measures are wise, he is dipping the presidency to the lowest state of ward heeler politics."

Dayton (Ohio) Daily News (Ind.-Dem.): "The problem of holding together a congressional majority in support of a consistent policy . . . is a formidable and often impossible one. . . . Congressman feel themselves much strengthened at home by the presidential patronage they receive. . . . It isn't nice when it is called bribing a congressman. It isn't nice, but it is always done. President Truman, mentioning patronage, was merely open and honest with a universal rule."

Philadelphia (Pa.) Bulletin (Ind.): "The president's view that the platform . . . should become party law reflects elemental honesty too often cynically brushed aside in the past. But politics is the art of the possible, and the reality is that discordant elements in parties frequently make living up to platforms impossible. The patronage club can be brought down successfully on individual heads, but when rebels form a large bloc, the threat of reprisals can be a boomerang. And that is what the president now faces with much of his program."

Duluth (Minn.) Herald (Ind.): "President Truman is only doing, in an inept manner and at a badly chosen time, what practically any president, under our form of government, must do. He is trying to restore discipline in a confused situation. He lacks the suavity and the persuasiveness that make leadership easy for some men and so he must make greater and more open use of force—rewards and punishment—methods that are less graceful but can be effective at times."

New York Herald Tribune (Ind.-Rep.): "The desire to see a greater degree of party discipline has been recurrent among statesmen and philosophers. Woodrow Wilson longed to make our system more nearly resemble that of the British. . . . A skillful leader can hold his party together, can create harmony among its dissident elements, and succeed in putting through a program more or less intact. But when the attempt is made as blatantly as by Mr. Truman, it inevitably tails."

Washington (D. C.) Star (Ind.): "It is gratifying that some Democratic members of congress have had the courage to express openly their resentment of the president's tactics. What the final result will be is hard to say. . . . In either event, however, the true character of the administration's tactics comes to light."

Christian Science Monitor (Ind.): "No one should deny an individual congressman the right to follow conscience instead of party. . . . But conscience also demands that platform pledges be carried out. And if a representative finds his party's policies continually in conflict with his principles, he should stop trying to get elected under that party's label."

El Paso (Texas) Herald-Post (Ind.): "Many men in congress, who consider themselves loyal Democrats, believe sincerely that . . . an attempt to accomplish everything Mr. Truman says the platform requires, plus everything else he promised various groups . . . would subject the people to intolerable new tax burdens and result in economic disaster."

Denver (Colo.) Post (Ind.): "The lesson of the Roosevelt purge should be graven in the White House handbook of 'do's' and 'don'ts' but, if it is, Harry Truman must have skipped the page. For he has now made the same unhappy move toward guaranteeing the deathless hostility of the southern bloc. . . . It promises to forge the final link in the Republican coalition."

Work Of Congress May Be Left Unfinished

By Edward Jamieson
(World Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Prospects that congress, still facing a mountain of unfinished business after four months of work, will quit with its legislative calendar only partially cleaned up are growing rapidly.

Following a stormy week of sessions on proposed changes in the Taft-Hartley labor management act which netted nothing in the way of new legislation, the house of representatives has returned to work on less controversial bills. But the temporary calm will end soon, when other of president's "Fair Deal" bills reach the house floor.

Meanwhile, the senate is moving even more slowly than the house and signs of a speed-up in that body are lacking. In addition, the senate will soon lay aside consideration of bills for a lengthy debate on the North Atlantic pact.

Adjournment of congress on July 31, the date fixed in the congressional reorganization act, would certainly mean postponement, at least, of action on many pieces of major legislation now pending before congress. Congressional leaders, however, are now talking of recessing about July 31 for six or eight weeks, and then returning for a fall session which could run virtually straight through until the second session begins in January.

This program appeals to many members who face primary and election campaigns next year. They would like to get away from Washington early enough to wage their campaigns adequately. They would also like to get their votes on controversial bills far enough behind them by election time that some of the voters, at least, would have forgotten.

Offsetting this desire, however, will be the actual physical discomfort of members of the house if they return in the fall for a continuation of the present session.

Plans are now well advanced for the installation of a new roof on the house chamber, to begin immediately after congress either adjourns or recesses this summer. Put off throughout the war, despite serious warnings sounded by engineers, the roof must now be put on, in the opinion of house leaders, concerned over a possible disaster.

Thus, if congress returns in the fall, the house will be forced to meet in the much smaller and uncomfortable caucus room in the house office building. House leaders are seriously wondering how long they can keep the house at work under these conditions.

As yet, there is no official list, compiled by either President Truman or congressional leaders, of what might be considered "must" legislation. The unofficial list, however, based upon presidential recommendations and preliminary action by the congress itself, is a long one. In addition, of course, there are hundreds of lesser bills that individual members or groups of members are anxious to get approved at the present session.

The more important measures which generally have been considered as demanding action one way or another this year include:

1. A new labor bill to replace the Taft-Hartley act. Despite the setback in the house, administration leaders appear determined to continue efforts to secure final approval of a new bill.

2. Appropriations. Bills providing funds for the operation of the government, of course, be passed and passed before July 1, the start of the new fiscal year, if possible. The house, in an unusual burst of speed, completed approval of all the regular appropriation measures before the Easter recess. The senate, however, has yet to act upon a single one. The first one to reach the senate floor, providing funds for the labor department and federal security agency, was sent back for reduction by an economy-minded senate majority. Until a general policy on fund cuts can be reached, other bills will be withheld in the appropriations committee.

3. Taxes. President Truman has demanded a hike in federal taxes this year, but the house ways and means committee, which must originate tax legislation, has not even begun consideration of a tax measure. Chairman Robert Doughton, who takes a dim view of a tax increase, has announced that his committee will not even be called to discuss the president's request until late this month.

4. Social security expansion. President Truman's social security expansion program has been under consideration by the ways and means committee for nearly two months. General expectation is that the committee will only approve a part of the program. The whole question is also expected to arouse a likely fight in the senate.

5. Long-range farm legislation. The administration, through Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan, has proposed a comprehensive substitute farm program for that adopted by the Republican controlled 80th congress. The plan, however, has aroused a major controversy and no solution in the near future appears in sight. Unwilling to allow the Aiken act to become effective January 1, 1950, Democratic farm leaders in congress may finally decide upon a one-year stop-gap bill, which would mean that the whole subject would have to be taken up again next year.

6. Housing. The senate, always more friendly toward low-cost housing legislation than the house, has already approved a comprehensive bill, but it will be sometime before the bill reaches the house floor. Administration leaders are determined to get a house vote on the legislation this year, after the house killed a similar senate measure in the 80th congress.

7. Inflation control. President Truman has recommended a series of measures designed to curb inflation and which some administration leaders contend could also be used to control the more likely deflation. The president is still insisting upon action on these measures, but most of them appear destined for pigeon-holes. Nevertheless, pressure for action upon some of them will be exerted right to the end.

8. Civil rights. This highly combustible issue, which took up several weeks of the senate's time earlier this year, is bound to return before the session is ended. Plans are already underway to bring at least the anti-poll tax and anti-lynching bills to the floor of the house. Both will take time and again flame the membership of the two bodies, not only threatening adjournment but other legislation as well.

There are scores of other bills which could be included. Members of congress, who have worked unusually long hours so far this session even though the results are meager, shudder when they glance at the calendar. For them, it is going to be a rough year whether they quit this summer, or continue through the fall.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK—Thinking out loud: Nostalgia with a wallop hits me behind the ear upon reading a note from Friend Elgia Koontz, informing me that Old Schoolmate George Rakestraw is wrecking our old Alma Mater, Lewis Academy, of Wichita.

The building was sold to the Y. W. C. A. immediately after my graduating class filed out, in 1909, and has been used as a girls' dormitory since. The school was 23 years old when it closed, so the building, now 63, probably was becoming even more decrepit than some of its alumni.

This was one of those small denominational academies that used to flourish throughout this country, but now are almost a phenomenon of the past. This one was Presbyterian, but, while it had a religious atmosphere, and chapel each morning was compulsory, there was no emphasis upon creed.

Lewis graduated only 300 students in its lifetime. Most of them went on to college with a more thorough preparation than could be had in the high schools of that time and place.

For the sake of fond memories, I hope George will send me a little sliver or something from the old chapel.

We still see, on highways and at garage exits and entrances, the warning sign, "Blow your horn." Now, everybody knows that the present generation never saw or heard a blowing horn on a motor vehicle, unless on a museum piece. Few drivers even know that there ever was a bulb of rubber mounted where drivers

LANSING, Mich., May 7.—(AP)—A young Democratic governor works all day at a wide desk here in a time-worn statehouse that looks across a lawn loud with robins.

He is 38-year-old G. Mennen ("Soapy") Williams, whose friends believe he will some day dwell in the White House.

Right now the robins on the statehouse lawn aren't making nearly as much noise as the Republican legislators inside. And what these legislators are doing to the young governor's New Deal program is something he feels shouldn't happen to a Democrat.

For he works in a house divided. There is a broad river of dissent between the young governor and the Republican - dominated legislature. And the river is in flood.

There are those who think Williams became "the miracle man of Michigan politics" last November when, solidly backed by labor, he defeated Kim Sigler by 163,854 votes. But there are those, too, who think his victory merely reflected a decline in the popularity of Sigler, who was seeking re-election.

The new governor has both class and mass appeal. He has been a political protege of Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy and he is an heir to the Mennen shaving soap fortune. He had to mortgage his home in Grosse Pointe, a salad suburb of Detroit, to pay his campaign expenses.

Williams is 6 feet 3 1/2 inches tall, friendly and easy going. He invariably wears a bow tie, an engaging grin—and a cowlick of stubborn dark hair.

When I went in to see him, I had a moment of wonder. The first flash of his smile was startingly reminiscent of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Williams not only follows FDR's policies—he looks like FDR's sons.

The governor is personally popular with the Republican legislators, who regard him tolerantly as "a well-intentioned young man." But he is acutely aware of the fact that in the last five months they have jettisoned most of his New Deal program.

"This session has done practically nothing," he said. "About all we've gotten in some partial improvements in workmen's compensation and unemployment compensation."

One thing Williams feels will be adopted in time is a four per cent corporation franchise tax he has pressed for without result.

"The state is going broke otherwise," he said.

Michigan has a three per cent state sales tax but no personal income tax.

The governor's term in office is two years in Michigan, and Williams has already indicated he will run again.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

It is always safe to speak against sin theoretically, or in general terms. Everybody—like the minister whose sermon President Coolidge laconically reported—is "against it."

It is only when one gets down to personalities and cases, when one says, "Thou art the man," or "That action was diabolical," that sinners get nasty and strike back.

In the vigorous denunciations of sin during His last days, Jesus got down to both personalities and cases. When He spoke of hypocricy, He named the Scribes and Pharisees, the official representatives and established "authorities" of religion; and He attacked their specific acts of hypocrisy and evil-doing. If there were devout and earnest Scribes and Pharisees, as there undoubtedly were, who had never devoured widows' houses, or done the things that Jesus denounced, they had no reason to take His charges to themselves. But there were plenty to whom His words applied.

"He taught them as one having authority, and not as their Scribes." Those words mark a strange fact and a striking contrast. The Scribes were officially and ostensibly the repository of authority, the interpreters of the law; yet here was a young man from a hill town, unimportant Nazareth, neither a Scribe, nor a priest, with no official standing, presuming to teach, and finding a response in the people who heard Him gladly.

It was no wonder that they said, "By what authority doest Thou these things? And who gave Thee this authority?" It is the way in which official authority has always challenged the unofficial teacher, prophet, and doer; and to a certain extent the challenge is justified. It would be a dangerous and preposterous situation if we had no standards for those who teach in our schools, or who practice medicine in our communities, or even for those who preach in our pulpits.

But a license, and an evidence of authority, do not guarantee either honesty or efficiency in those who possess them. We well know that there are incompetent teachers and even some surgeons.

Authority has its true validity in the power actually to be and to do what the authority authorizes. In a world of necessary standards it would be preposterous if an Edison could not give the world his work because he did not happen to be a professor of physics, or if a D. L. Moody could not do his great work of evangelism because no ordaining hands of bishops, or of council, has been laid upon him.

The mistake that the Scribes made was two-fold: first, in not being and doing what by their claim of authority they professed to be and do; and second, in their failure to judge Jesus by what He was and did.

There was one Pharisee who knew better. When Nicodemus came to Jesus he said, "Master we know that Thou art a teacher come from God; for no man can do these miracles that Thou doest; except God be with him."

A world of "authority" needs more men of the spirit of Nicodemus.

PONDER SCORES UPSET VICTORY IN DERBY

FAVORED OLYMPIA POOR 6TH; CAPOT COMES IN SECOND

Calumet's 16-To-1 Shot Wins By Three Lengths; Palestinian Third

By Gayle Talbot

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 7.—(AP)—Ponder, doughty son of a former derby winner, came flying in the final furlong today to win the 75th Kentucky Derby going away as a great crowd of over 90,000 roared its amazed disbelief.

So far back a half-mile from home that he appeared hopelessly beaten, the Calumet farm's beauty turned it on as the field of 14 entered the long stretch at Churchill Downs and made the favored Olympia and all the rest look as if they were standing still.

Forty yards from the finish the dark brown son of Pensive flashed past Greentree stable's Capot, his last rival for the $91,600 prize, and went under the wire three full lengths to the good.

Olympia, which had been backed down to an odds-on choice, led all the way until the field thundered into the final quarter, and then folded despite Eddie Arcaro's franctic efforts to hold him up. He finished a badly beaten sixth.

So little regard had the crowd held for Ponder, despite the fact that he was trained by that modern wizard of the turf, Ben Jones, that the winner rewarded his scattered backers with $34 in the mutuels.

Capot, which ran a consistently fine race behind Olympia for the first mile, and then went past the tiring favorite and looked like the winner a furlong from home, paid $9.60 to place. Isidor Bieber's Palestinian, third choice in the betting, came on to take third, four and a half lengths back of Capot, and paid $4.80 for show.

Strung far out behind the three leaders, in order, came Old Rockport, the second betting choice; Halt, Olympia, Model Cadet, Duplicator, Johns Joy, Ky. Colonel, Lextown, Jacks Town, Wine List and finally Senecas Coin.

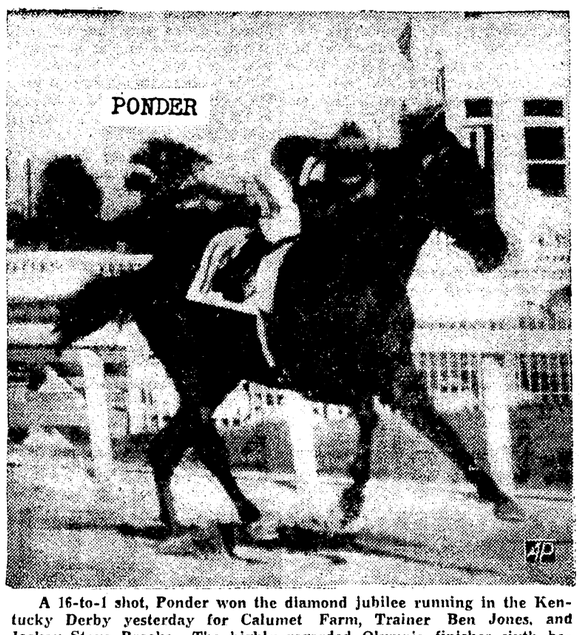

Ponder, ridden by Steve Brooks, was out of the starting gate a dead last, and still was in that unhappy position when the field streamed past the half-mile pole in the bright sunshine.

At the three-quarters Brooks had

College Athletics 'Essential,' Declares Pow Wow Editorially

'Idea Is Not To Overstress Sports, But To Maintain Them,' Says Writer

Th. Pow Wow, student newspaper of Northeast Junior College here, came out editorially this week, expressing dissatisfaction with the stepchild athletics at the institution, bemoaning the one-sport policy now in effect, and issuing a challenge for workable remedies to give N. J. C. a well rounded sports program.

At one time N. J. C. was "majoring" in three sports—football, basketball, and boxing. Football alone reigns now although feeble efforts are being maintained to keep basketball and baseball going with insufficient budgets.

The Pow Wow editorial, written by Ray Holland, the paper's sports editor, is as follows:

"What is N. J. C.? Is it a branch of L. S. U., whose students merely bide their time until they go down to "the big campus?" Or is it a school with an identity of its own?

"We claim to believe the latter. N. J. C. has a definite personality. But it does not have that most important facet of the personality of a college—a well-rounded athletic program.

"Why should N. J. C., a branch of one of the largest and best universities of the south, dwindle until it has no prestige as a junior college? One thing alone is the chief cause that should alarm persons who can improve our situation. That is the need for an expanded athletic program.

"What do we need? First, more financial aid for sports. No college can offer many types of sport activities without sufficient funds. N. J. C. had to settle with one sport (football) in order to hold her own in competition with surrounding junior colleges.

"Football has been a great lever for enrollment increase here. and when we add other sports we will see added numbers interested in our school.

"When a junior college doesn't offer as many sports activities as surrounding high schools it will soon be looked upon as "merely an overrated high school. Do we want this to happen? No. The only way we can prevent it is to arouse enough public support and interest to warrant speedy action.

"What would improve N. J. C.'s program? The answer is threefold: a stadium and gymnasium enlarged enough to accommodate the growing crowds that witness football and basketball games, a full-time paid assistant coach, and funds to enable competition with other junior colleges in baseball, track and basketball.

"It is absolutely pathetic to see such games as baseball and basketball offered on such a minor sport basis. Our baseball team schedules games with other schools, but transportation to and from the various colleges is a great problem. Since the sport has no operating budget, the team must depend on some person offering the use of his private car. Also, the players must buy their own meals on these trips, because money taken in at these games must be used for the upkeep of equipment.

"N. J. C. is surrounded by high schools which have many talented football, baseball, and basketball players. Also trackmen are numerous in this area, but what can we offer them at N. J. C. except education in subject matter? We grant that education is essential but these men can get both education and sports in other colleges.

"Our limited athletic program applies also to girls. The only sports available to them are intramural activities. Why can't our budget be expanded to provide opportunities for coed basketball teams to compete with other schools?

"Benefit derived from such an expansion would be reflected in many ways. School spirit at N. J. C. would be accelerated by sports. Pride in the school is a great incentive for doing better scholastic work. Therefore, a greatly enlarged athletic program will not only increase enrollment, but aso public interest and student achievement.

"We of N. J. C. can't be among those people who are willing to sit back and watch our sports dwindle to nothing but an occasional ping pong game. Now is the time to realize that potential action is stored up in the school and public. Our job is to awaken these people to their responsibility. The main idea is not to overstress sports, but to maintain them. If N. J. C. students, alumni, and fans want to see athletics continually diminishing, let them keep on making passes at idleness."

MATCH EXPECTED TO SETTLE FEUD OVER MAT CROWN

Bill Barney Will Face 'Gorilla' Macias In Semi-Final At Kallio's

Champion Jack Curtis and Challenger Charlie Laye, after two straight disputed matches, will return to Gus Kallio's Arena here Tuesday night with hopes of a satisfactory settlement in their current feud in which Laye was given a bloody outside-the-ring beating in their first engagement and then knocked out with a pile driver last week.

The first meeting went only two falls, with Curtis winning the first and both wrestlers being counted out in the second with Referee Bill Barney awarding Curtis the match over the objections of Laye who claimed Curtis should have been disqualified in the second.

Then last week it was a two-fall setto once more with the two wrestlers winding up in a brawl outside the ring that ended when Laye was the victim of a pile driver that banged his head on the hardwood floor. Laye, unconscious for 22 minutes, was unable to answer the bell for the third fall.

Referee Claude Skidmore, declaring the wrestlers were bound to decide the championship inside the ring and not out among the customers, said Laye should have been awarded the crown in the second meeting, but he made no ruling one way or the other. Promoter Kallio handed the belt back to Curtis.

Explaining his action, Kallio said yesterday:

"Charlie Laye was knocked out. Dr. French and some others were working over him in the dressing room. Curtis and his friends were looking for Commissioner Silverstein. They got after me and I joined them in seeking the commissioner, but we learned he had left the championship belt at the ticket office and left for his home.

"The belt was left with no instructions as to what to do with it—who should get it. As for myself, busy with checking up and running the business end of the match, I didn't see the windup of the match or what happened outside the ring. I knew Curtis was champion when the match started, and felt that if the belt had changed hands Commissioner Silverstein would have remained to give the title to the new champion.

"So, with no orders regarding disposal of the belt, I gave it back to the man it had belonged to. The wrestlers' end of the gate was split 50-50."

Feeling that a rematch so soon wouldn't be good advertising, Kallio approached Laye regarding the possibility of a tag team match for this week. Laye turned the offer down because, he said, his usual partner, Chris Belkas, is not available, and he said he wouldn't attempt a tag scrap without the classy little Greek.

"But I'll tell you what I will do," Laye offered. "I know Curtis can make all kinds of alibis now as to why he shouldn't give me another title match soon, but I know his weak spot now. Curtis is money crazy. Oh, how that man loves money. I'll put up $100 extra from my end of the gate just to get Curtis in that ring again and end all this fuss we've started. As far as I'm concrened, Curtis is not near through with me."

"Charley, you talk like an oldtime wrestler now," answered Kallio. "I'm going to help you get that match, and whatever it takes, I'll pay half of it. I know a rematch is what the fans want. So many of the fans are disputing the rseults lately in their own minds that they'd like to see a definite settlement as well as the rest of us."

With Laye ready and willing, Kallio headed for Commisisoner Dave Silverstein's office to get his approval. The commissioner, a ringside witness last week, had his hat knocked off in the ruckus, and when Curtis knocked down Referee Claude Skidmore, the referee fell flat on Silverstein's topper. Silverstein said he wasn't asking a rematch explaining "if they'd stay away for a while it would be better to have a tag match than another repetition of the brawls they've had the last two weeks."

But the commissioner wasn't opposed to the rematch if the wrestlers agreed.

Kallio later explained Laye's offer to Curtis and the champion took him up. "I think I can take as much punishment as he can, and last through just as many matches, so I'll be there," said Curtis.

The wrestlers agreed to accept Skidmore again as referee.

For the semi-final, Kallio is sending Bill Barney, West Monroe automobile mechanic into action against "Gorilla" Macias, the burly Mexican.

The SCOREBOARD

By Harry Grayson

NEW YORK, May 7.—(NEA)—The Yankees may have another Lou Gehrig in Dick Kryhoski.

Jerry Coleman was the best third baseman in the American Association two years ago, and has a grand chance to establish himself as an American League star at any one of three infield positions.

Dick Kryhoski

This doesn't come from Oscar Hocks, the wildest-eyed of all Yankee fans, or anyone like that.

It is the studied opinion of Bill Meyer, one of the smarter baseball men, who manages the Pirates.

Meyer should know.

He managed in the minors for 22 years, most of it in the American League chain, before getting his big chance in Pittsburgh at the age of 56.

Kryhoski was sent to him two years ago.

Coleman helped him win the American Association pennant in 1947.

"Kryhoski has the power and speed and he is supple," says the man who succeeded Joe McCarthy as the Louisville leader when the winningest manager of them all was graduated to the Cubs in 1926.

"He doesn't throw too well, but good enough, and I'll tell you a story about that.

"Although he had only one year's experience, Kryhoski, a fine kid, was ordered to report to my Triple A club in training at Lake Wales, Fla., in the spring of 1947.

"I quickly fell in love with him, too, just talking to him, and, of course, because he hit .396 for Wellesville of the Pony League the previous summer.

"Kryhoski, then only 22, ran all over the place, worked so hard the first day, that I cautioned him to take it easy, finally sent him to the shower.

"While taking his bath, he fainted dead away, and, as it had to happen, fell on his left, or throwing shoulder. This caused a separation that kept him out for some time, although he did manage to get in 100 or more games with Binghampton of the Eastern League."

At 6-2 1/2, the 200-pound Kryhoski enjoys all the physical advantages of a natural lefthander around first base.

And the left-handed pull hitter's only drawback is the lack of experience.

Had America's No. 1 heel healed, Tommy Henrich no doubt would be playing first base.

That would have frozen out Kryhoski and tall Jack Phillips, who are alternating there dependent upon the opposing pitching.

Little Scooter Rizzuto's arm trouble gave Coleman a shot at shortstop, and when Snuffy Stirnweiss hurt his wrist, the former dive bomber took over at second.

With DiMaggio sidelined, Casey Stengel had to look at more young outfielders when King Kong Keller tore a ligament in his already bad back.

That brought out Cliff Mapes, Hank Bauer and Gene Woodling.

ATTENDANCE AWARD WON BY GREENWOOD DODGERS

HELENA, Ark., May 7.—(AP)—The Greenwood (Miss.) Dodgers won the Al Haraway trophy for the largest opening day attendance in the Cotton States Baseball League.

This was announced here today by Haraway, league president. He said Greenwood's opening game attendance was 3,296. The ranking of other clubs: Greenville, Miss., 2,668; Pine Bluff, Ark., 2,328; Hot Springs, Ark., 2,004; Helena, Ark., 1,354; El Dorado, Ark., 1,340; Clarksdale, Miss., 1,096, and Natchez, Miss., 682.

Haraway said adverse weather affected materially all clubs opening this season. Natchez held its opener in a drizzle and several other clubs had to delay their initial contests. Seventeen of the first 20 scheduled games were rained out, and attendance is below the comparable figure for last year, Haraway said.

FOUR EVANGELINE LEAGUE PLAYERS GET SUSPENSIONS

One Benched For Hitting Umpire; Three Involved In Shop-Lifting

LAFAYETTE, La., May 7.—(AP)—Four Abbeville baseball players have been suspended, one indefinitely, Evangeline League President Edmond L. Deramee advised the Lafayette Daily Advertiser today.

Those suspended are Pitchers Nick Pappas, Bill Alonzo, and Jimmy Perez and Infielder Gaspar Del Toro of the Abbeville Athletics.

Pappas has been suspended for five days, said Deramee (speaking from Thibodaux) for charging an umpire, striking at him and striking him. The incident occurred during argument with Umpire Tex Burnett in Houma Wednesday night.

Del Toro has been suspended indefinitely, and Deramee said that he had recommended to President George Trautman of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues that he be barred indefinitely.

Perex and Alonzo both drew five-day suspensions pending further investigation.

Deramee declined to disclose the offenses of the latter three until Trautman's examination, but when queried, Houma Supreintendent of Police A. Charrier said that the three had been "caught shop-lifting."

Charrier said that the players took "a few sport shirts and a couple of belts." He said that the merchant suspected the players, and reported the incident to Abbeville manager Nat Love. Love questioned the players,

Billy Rose:

PITCHING HORSESHOES

While we were in Honolulu, I heard a story which has been making the rounds for several years and seems certain to wind up as one of the legends of the islands.

Some years ago, the Hawaiian government set up a school on the western tip of Oahu, and among the youngsters who enrolled was a kid named Biluki Oolaka. Biluki took to the 20th century like most boys take to a sling shot and, a few months after he started studying English, changed his name to bill.

By the time Bill was 20, he was smoking cork-tips, driving a $25 jalopy, and carrying a picture of Betty Grable in his wallet. And, what's more, he was always telling anyone who would listen that diseases are caused by viruses, not voodoo, and that the ancient system of tabus and temples was so much mumbo-jumbo.

It happened that around that time a friend of Bill's folks—an overseer of a plantation—approached his employer and asked for the hand of his daughter in marriage. When the rich man laughed at him and ordered him off the plantation, the overseer invoked the curse of "kahuna anaana" on him, and in Hawaii "kahuna anaana" means literally, "praying one to death." The "accursee" makes a doll-sized image of his victim, sticks pins into it and then spends most of his time in the temple concentrating on the death of his enemy.

A week after the curse was invoked, the plantation owner began to be troubled by violent stomach disorders and, realizing what had happened, retaliated with a "kahuna" of his own against the overseer. What the natives call "double kahuna" was now at work, and three months later both Hawaiians were dead.

Well, to the people who lived at the foot of the volcano where Bill had been raised, it was the ancient magic working again, but the young scoffer had a civilized and logical explanation for it. Each of the two men, he said, had complete faith in his own praying and, consequently, it never occurred to either to doubt the efficacy of his enemy's. Certain that the only course was to out-hex the other, each had worked himself into a state of hysteria and, completely absorbed in this irrational process, had neglected the usual physical and material precautions. And so, according to Bill's theory, each man had literally prayed himself to death in the belief that he was inflicting that fate on his enemy.

The young man's parents were shocked at his irreverence and made several trips to the little temple to prospitiate the God of the Mountain who, in his anger, might rain fire and destruction on them as he had in ages past, but Bill only grinned and told them to get wise to themselves.

Then another incident. A few weeks later, a guide named Paaliki, bribed by an extra large tip, walked half a dozen tourists into a temple where "haoles," or white men, were not welcome. As they entered, a ritual was in progress and one of the tourists flicked the ashes of a cigarette into a sacred urn. The priest, horrified at this blasphemy, pronounced a curse on the avaricious guide and predicted that within seven days of the profanement he would meet with violent death.

The terrified guide returned to his hut and stayed there and, as the end of the seventh day approached, his friends began to wonder if he might not beat the curse.

But a few minutes before sundown, Paaliki's neighbors saw a puff of smoke from the thatched roof and, by the time they got to his hut, the guide had been burned to death.

Well, Bill had an explanation for that one, too. As he saw it, Paaliki, crazed with fear and afraid of being taken unaware, had been unable to sleep the night before. To keep awake during the last day of the curse, he had chain-smoked, but finally, cigarette in mouth, he had dozed off. And, grass huts being what they are, the rest was simple.

The elders of Bill's village, frightened by these heresies in their midst, sent a committee to reason with him. But the iconoclast stood his ground and the next day, to prove his point, walked into the temple and spat at the foot of the God of the Mountain. The enraged priest pronounced a malediction on Bill and prophesied that exactly one week hence death would rain down on him from the skies.

The young man smiled at this allusion to a volcanic eruption—he had live in the shadow of the volcano all his life and, as recently as three days before, had climbed down into the dead crater to examine it.

Nevertheless, the eve of the seventh day he had trouble falling asleep, and shortly before sunup thought he heard a far-off rumbling in the air. He dressed quickly and went outside, and the sun hitting the top of the volcano seemed to edge it with fire.

"Might as well play it safe," he told himself, jumped into his jalopy and drove along the coast road to the east. By the time he reached the bay, both the volcano and his fears were miles to the west and he felt ashamed of having run away.

"A swim will clear my head," he said to himself, and pulled the car off the road. A few minutes later, he ran down the beach and, once in the water, he smiled—here he was safe from the curse, for even an accidental death by drowning would defeat the prophecy.

But a half hour later he was dead. The date was December 7, 1941.

Likes One-Way System

Columbia, La.
May 6, 1949.

To The Editor:

May I have the use of your columns to thank those of your citizens who are responsible for thinking up and putting into effect your one-way system of traffic control.

My business brings me to Monroe daily and I want to express myself with respect to the convenient manner we can now drive down your main stem. That with being able to find a parking place as a result of the meters makes it a pleasure to drive in the downtown area.

There is just one other thing that needs to be done up there, (if I may tell you how to run your town), and that is to get behind your police officers and help them to stop those 'slow poke' truck drivers east of Five Points on DeSiard street that try to see how slow they can drive and thereby tie up traffic for miles behind them. There should be some kind of rule or law that could handle a man who has the nerve to drive a truck on a main street as slow as 10 or 12 miles per hour, which is done every day.

On the whole, congratulations to all of you for doing a swell job.

Very truly yours,
B. R. SHERMAN.

BASCOM N. TIMMONS

Probably no political development since last November's election has shocked Republican leaders in Washington so much as the decision of Sen. Raymond E. Baldwin, Republican of Connecticut, to resign his seat in the senate next December and accept an appointment to the Connecticut State supreme court.

Baldwin's decision, which will further reduce the size of the Republican minority in the senate, apparently was induced by Gov. Chester Bowles, arch New Deal Democrat, who will name his successor for the critical political year 1950.

The fact that Bowles, one time price administrator and considered farther to the left than most members of the national administration, was able to persuade Baldwin to give up his senate seat for a judgeship is what surprised the senator's G. O. P. colleagues.

For the most part, the Republican members will not grieve too much over Baldwin leaving. He has been a member of the very small group of G. O. P. senators who have on occasion voted with the Democratic majority and have unsuccessfully tried several revolts against the body's Republican leadership.

But even a rebellious Republican is better than another Democrat, from their viewpoint. This is particularly true in view of next year's situation. The Republicans have been laying major plans for a real fight next year to regain enough seats in the senate so that in 1952, they could take back control. They had counted on only one race in Connecticut next year, where Sen. Brien McMahon, had been selected as one of the prime G. O. P. targets of the year. Now they will face two races in the state, which today, at least, is under Democratic control.

In addition, the man or woman selected by Bowles to fill Baldwin's seat for nearly a year before the election, will have gained a running start on whoever secures the Republican nomination.

Not much was said publicly about Baldwin's action, but some of the private conversation in the senate cloakroom was pretty bitter.

An American businessman who has recenily completed a study of one part of the operation of the British national health service program contends that this part, at least, is far more costly than under the American system.

He is Walter A. Stewart, president of the American Optical Company. He declares that the per patient cost of eye care—including professional fee and eyeglasses—is approximately 60 per cent higher in Great Britain than in the United States.

In addition, Stewart reports, original estimates of the government cost of eye care in Great Britain under its free national health plan have proven almost unbelievably low. He pointed out that the initial estimate was $10,000,000 a year, but that recent estimates of the cost of this program for its first year fix it at $60,000,000, or six times as much as had been anticipated.

If you have a "dud" shell or explosive in your home as a war souvenir, maybe it would be wise to have the war trophies safety committee look it over to be certain it is not potentially dangerous.

Last year the committee, which was formed in May, 1947, is credited with saving more than 1,500 lives through discovery and elimination of hazardous war mementoes. This credit came from the national safety council and is, if in error, probably an underestimate. At any rate, the American Society of Safety Engineers has announced that it will cooperate with the work of the committee.

During its approximately two years of activity, the war trophies safety committee had examined and rendered harmless more than 750,000 pieces of explosive ordnance. Most of the war souvenirs were small, but the committee has handled many bazookas, aerial bombs, hand grenades, rifles and the like. And one call from the possessor of a two-ton anti-aircraft gun complete with carriage.

The committee, in cooperation with the National Military Establishment, the National Rifle Association and the treasury department, will try to look over souvenirs of not only World War II, but World War I, and any war whatsoever. It simply wants to confine casualties of war-time explosives strictly to duration of war.

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

MOTHER'S DAY

I do not recall ever knowing how Mother's Day got started. When I left our country in 1917 for a six months' stay abroad and managed to prolong the absence for nearly 14 years, there was no Mother's Day. That is, every day was Mother's Day.

In those distant years, children were brought up to respect their parents. Most of us even loved our parents, and it was quite usual for children to obey their parents. Progressive education had not yet enlightened us to believe that the child was more correct than his elders, that experiences was a negligible quality, and that the child had rights which the parent might not question.

We lived in those remote times in families consisting of one father, one mother, and quite a number of children. There were also grandparents, uncles, aunts, and cousins. Divorces were rare—and the divorcee had a bad name, no matter how good the reason for the deed.

Nobody sprouted wings particularly, but there was a way of life that everybody seemed to take for granted. And mom was usually the guardian of that way of life, and nobody answered back. For instance, in those days, if anybody spoke about anybody's wife as the Puerto Rican is said to have shouted about Durocher's wife from the grandstand, a gentleman would have given him a black eye and a kick to boot.

When mother became an old fogey, the world changed. By that I mean that when children began to talk about their parents as though they were antediluvians and when mothers began to compete for youth with their daughters, many miseries came upon our people. For instance, I am sure that the peculiarities of the New Dealers, their lack of respect for tradition and experience and even knowledge, their presumptuousness, their intolerance of know-how—all these peculiarities come from the fact that they spent their youth in that mad period of American history often called the jazz age, when anything was all right and the mores of a nation changed.

Instead of the family having a mother, daddy has a wife and mamma has a husband, and often there are two or three of each kind. I think we can attribute much of our current social disorders, our hooliganism, to use a phrase that Stalin took from Hearst's "Happy Hooligan," to our amoral schools which make God illegal and elevate biology to a creed. For if mother is little more than an ovulating gestating homo sapiens, then the dictum of the moral law, "Honor thy father and thy mother: That thy days may be long . . ." Is little more than part of a speech delivered by Moses on Mount Sinai to keep the Jews in line. It might have come out of a speech by Henry Wallace or Harry Truman.

If nothing matters but how the amoeba splits off its cells to explain how you and I came to be, then why worry about morals and ethics and the manners of life based on them? Someone once said that morals are private and manners public, and that one minds his business about morals as long as the manners are right.

Curiously, when man loses his morals his manners become debased. For manners are a reflection of the soul, as the eye is of personality. The young lady with a pancake finish and a mink jacket who screams at the umpire, "kill da bum!" lacks manners, of course. When she translates that sentence as she sometimes does at a prizefight, into language which would make this column unprintable, her personality reeks of that lack of restraint which only exists where morals are weak.

And so, my old mother, I salute you in your very old age. You may never have heard of a pancake finish and you never once got into a gossip, column, but I have never seen you drunk, nor have you shamed our household because you had to live your own life. You brought God into our home and taught us to live in His shadow, to love right, to seek truth, to try to be just, to walk through this world humbly and faithfully. God bless you.

of primitive cars could reach it, to be squeezed so as to expel air that would make a noise something like that of a child's Christmas horn. So it was called, and you blew it by pressure.

We now make a sound, nothing whatever like that of a horn, by closing an electric current. Still, the instrument is called a horn, or, in England, a hooter. And outside scores of garages in New York you see the warning: "Blow your horn!"

It's the same way with the telephone hook. We still say "Jiggle the hook and maybe you can get the operator."

On most of the telephones in these parts, hooks passed away years ago. You place the instrument in what's called a cradle. The name of the thing you jiggle I do not know, but it isn't a hook.

Robert Whitlow, singer, who recently made his debut at Town Hall, is hailed by critics as one of the coming stars. . . . A book that came my way lately in a de luxe limited edition is "The Beloved Spy," a study of John Andre, beautifully published by Caxton, of Caldwell, Idaho. And Caxton, away out there there where New York publishers think buffalo eat tourists, is showing what publishers can do with the aid of low overhead plus brains and artistry. . . . Hope to tell you more about that book, written by Harry Stanton Tillotson, later.

But here's a book that kept me up half of last night. It's "The Dictionary of Humorous Quotations," edited by Evan Esar, a young man whom I'd love to know, for he has a sense of humor (Doubleday).

The Nation Today

JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—Let's get confused together. Just read this.

There was plenty of confusion in the galleries this week when congress scuffled with the labor bill. This story will spread the confusion.

All the house members can be sitting there, doing business as the house. Nobody leaves. They're all still there but—

Suddenly the house members decide they'll stop doing business as the house and start doing business as the committee of the whole. Why?

Because, under the house rules, they can do business faster as the committee of the whole than they can as the house.

But when they get through doing business as the committee of the whole they have to start doing business as the house again.

And whatever they approve while they're the committee of the whole they have to re-approve when they become the house again, or it doesn't count.

If you're not well boxed-up at this point, just wait till we get on with this story about what happened to the labor bill.

There were really two labor bills, one offered by Representative Lesinski, Michigan Democrat, and the other offered by Representative Wood, Georgia Democrat.

President Truman, his lieutenants and organized labor wanted the Lesinski bill passed. It would have wiped out the Taft-Hartley act. They were against the Wood bill, which would have kept much of T-H.

Last week the house—as the house—decided to consider the Lesinski bill. But then to save time it turned itself into the committee of the whole. Then this happened:

1. The enemies of the Lesinski bill offered the Wood bill as an amendment to the Lesinski bill. If it were adopted, the Lesinski bill would have kept the name Lesinski but it really would have been the Wood bill. Because the Wood bill would have changed the Lesinski bill entirely.

2. After days of argument, while acting as the committee of the whole, the house adopted the Wood amendment to the Lesinski bill, thus wiping out the Lesinski bill.

3. Then the house ceased being the committee of the whole and became the house again. So then the house had to vote all over again on what it had just approved while it was the committee of the whole.

4. So the question was: Should the house adopt the Wood amendment which it had just adopted while it was the committee of the whole? It did, by a vote of 217 to 203. This was a bad setback for the Trumanites.

5. This wasn't all. The house as the house had only passed the Wood amendment to the Lesinski bill. Now the question was: Should it pass the Lesinski bill as amended?

6. Howya doing?

7. Just at that point—before the house could vote on the Lesinski bill as amended—this would have been the final vote—Representative Marcantonio of New York, only member of the American Labor party in congress, got up. He asked that the house be furnished with an "engrossed copy" of the bill before the final vote.

Since the government printer must work hours to get out an "engrossed copy" of a bill, and it was already 7 p. m., the house quit until the next day without taking the final vote on the Lesinski bill as amended.

8. Came the next day. The house had the "engrossed" copy. It was ready for the final vote on the Lesinski bill as amended. Nothing could stop that vote except one thing: If someone stood up and asked for a vote on sending the bill back to the house labor committee for further consideration. Representative Welch, California Republican who didn't like the Wood bill, got up.

9. He asked the question. So the house had to vote, not on passage of the Lesinski bill as amended by the Wood bill, but on whether the whole business should be sent back to the labor committee. The vote was 212 to 209 for sending it back to the labor committee.

This was a victory for the Trumanites because by sending the bill back to the labor committee the house voted not to let itself vote on passage of the Lesinski bill as amended.

What the house really did was knock itself out of any labor bill at all.

PRESS PURSUIT OF PRINCESS SCORNED

OXFORD, Eng., May 7.—(AP)—Attorney General Sir Hartley Shawcross said tonight the press caused "great disgust" with its pursuit of Princess Margaret during her holiday in Italy.

He objected particularly to the long range photographing of the shapely princess in a bathing suit at Capri. His remarks were made in a discussion of British newspapers during a speech at the Oxford University Labor Party Club.

"Some of the newspapers are often vulgar," Sir Hartley said. "The way in which they pursued a member of the royal family on private holiday, taking photographs with telescopic lenses, has caused great disgust."

Photographers—American, British and Italian—were kept away from the princess by Italian police during most of her stay at Capri. Some newspapers in Italy and Britain were critical of the police action.

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—Clint (Floppy) Hartung came up with one of the best performances of his career today as he pitched the New York Giants to a three-hit 9-1, triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Hartung, a converted outfielder, held the Cards to one hit going into the ninth. With one down, Marty Marion singled, moved to second on a groundout and scored as Enos Slaughter dropped a single in short right.

Chandler's War on Rowdyism Doesn't Mean Fans Can't Root

By Dan Daniel

CINCINNATI—(NEA)—May 7.—As Leo Durocher returned to his job, Commissioner Albert B. Chandler opened war on rowdyism in the ball parks of the major leagues.

Acting not only on evidence of the Polo Grounds incident which brought the temporary suspension of Durocher, but reports of generally disturbing conditions elsewhere, Chandler called on the club owners to eject all offenders immediately on their overstepping the bounds of decency, and to add to their police and usher forces.

From now on, club owners will be held strictly responsible for all park situations tending to disturb the public peace, on and off the field.

Fans are to be kept in their proper seats.

Chandler wants it to be impossible for Fred Boysen, for example, again "Happy" Chandler to invade the box section at the Polo Grounds, and carry on a heckling campaign at close quarters.

"Hoodlums are not going to run any park in the major leagues," said Chandler.

"The responsibility of taking proper precautions, and summary action against abuses, lies not only with club officials, but with league presidents.

Expel Obscene Hecklers

"Ford Frick came to the Durocher hearing at my request because I wanted to tell him about this new policy on policing the parks.

"In the hearing, I told Horace Stoneham that he was to show no timidity against offenders of any race, and that he had a mandate to expel obscene hecklers without warning.

"If permitted to grow, conditions which have developed in certain places could lead to rioting."

The commissioner made it emphatic that he did not seek a parlor atmosphere in ball parks, and that he was very much in favor of decent rooting.

The exoneration of Durocher on charges of having attacked Boysen came largely on the report presented by Bob Boyle, Chandler's FBI man, who spent several days in New York, and who had been investigating conditions in other parks.

Boyle found that in Comiskey Park, Chicago, teen age fans who were turned down autographs had got into the habit of spattering ink over players' uniforms.

In Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds, young fans were stealing even the belts off players' uniforms, as well as caps and gloves.

Horace Stoneham at first was inclined to resent the charge that he was largely responsible for the Durocher incident, because the Polo Grounds was inadequately policed.

Later Stoneham admitted that he had temporized too long with rowdies operating in the Giants' park, and that the commissioner's charge was not without foundation.

He also admitted that he had cautioned Polo Grounds police not to touch off a fuse.

"Now, we have our orders from Chandler, and we are going to obey them, to the limit," Hoarce added.

TECH NIPS LIONS TO CAPTURE 5TH TRIUMPH IN ROW

Bulldogs Nose Out Southeastern Louisiana, 8 To 7, At Ruston

RUSTON, May 7.—(Special)—Winning their fifth consecutive baseball game in the Gulf States Conference, the Louisiana Tech diamond men edged Southeastern of Hammond 8-7 here Saturday afternoon.

Louis Pipes, freshman Bulldog fireballer, chalked up his second victory in two days in relief roles.

Tobey Smith, Tech right fielder, led the hit parade, with three doubles and a single out of five trips to the plate.

The Bulldogs opened the scoring in the first inning with two runs. Brasher singled, stole second and scored on Smith's two-base knock. E. J. Albritton singled to bring Smith home.

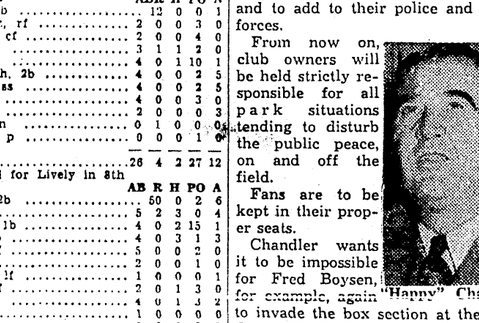

Southeastern knotted the count in the second. Blackwell, hit by a pitched ball, advanced on a single by Graves and scored on a base blow by Childs. Vinning, also hit by the pitcher, loaded the bags. Stephenson walked to force a run by Graves.

The Hammond Lions forged ahead in the fourth. Childs was on by fielder's choice. Stephenson singled. Power walked and Ramboli singled to score Childs and Stephenson.

Tech scored one run in the fifth, as Burks walked and scored on a long two-bagger by Smith.

The Bulldogs bunched five runs in the sixth. After scores by Pipes, Holstead, and Brasher, Albritton clouted a homer with Smith on second to climax the Tech scoring.

A ninth-inning rally by Southeastern fell short by one tally. Luckawacki batted a home run with Stephenson and Power on bases to end the scoring.

PONDER SCORES UPSET VICTORY IN DERBY

Calumet's 16-To-1 Shot Wins By Three Lengths; Palestinian Third

By Gayle Talbot

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 7.—(AP)—Ponder, doughty son of a former derby winner, came flying in the final furlong today to win the 75th Kentucky Derby going away as a great crowd of over 90,000 roared its amazed disbelief.

So far back a half-mile from home that he appeared hopelessly beaten, the Calumet farm's beauty turned it on as the field of 14 entered the long stretch at Churchill Downs and made the favored Olympia and all the rest look as if they were standing still.

Forty yards from the finish the dark brown son of Pensive flashed past Greentree stable's Capot, his last rival for the $91,600 prize, and went under the wire three full lengths to the good.

Olympia, which had been backed down to an odds-on choice, led all the way until the field thundered into the final quarter, and then folded despite Eddie Arcaro's franctic efforts to hold him up. He finished a badly beaten sixth.

So little regard had the crowd held for Ponder, despite the fact that he was trained by that modern wizard of the turf, Ben Jones, that the winner rewarded his scattered backers with $34 in the mutuels.

Capot, which ran a consistently fine race behind Olympia for the first mile, and then went past the tiring favorite and looked like the winner a furlong from home, paid $9.60 to place. Isidor Bieber's Palestinian, third choice in the betting, came on to take third, four and a half lengths back of Capot, and paid $4.80 for show.

Strung far out behind the three leaders, in order, came Old Rockport, the second betting choice; Halt, Olympia, Model Cadet, Duplicator, Johns Joy, Ky. Colonel, Lextown, Jacks Town, Wine List and finally Senecas Coin.

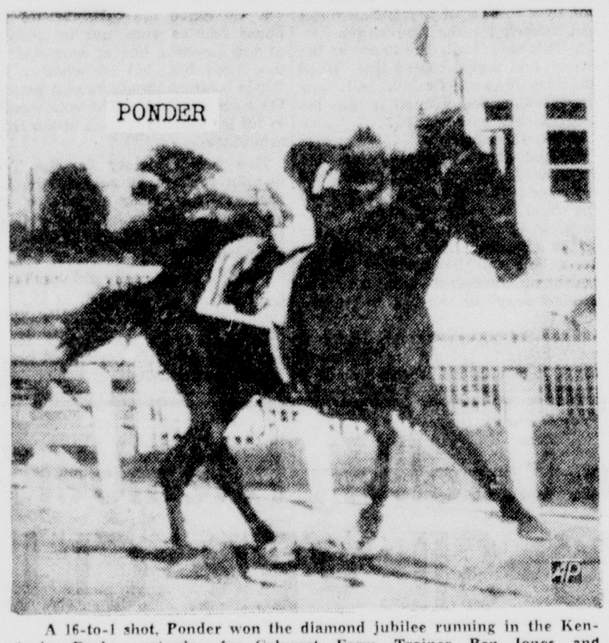

Ponder, ridden by Steve Brooks, was out of the starting gate a dead last, and still was in that unhappy position when the field streamed past the half-mile pole in the bright sunshine.

At the three-quarters Brooks had

'Idea Is Not To Overstress Sports, But To Maintain Them,' Says Writer

Th. Pow Wow, student newspaper of Northeast Junior College here, came out editorially this week, expressing dissatisfaction with the stepchild athletics at the institution, bemoaning the one-sport policy now in effect, and issuing a challenge for workable remedies to give N. J. C. a well rounded sports program.

At one time N. J. C. was "majoring" in three sports—football, basketball, and boxing. Football alone reigns now although feeble efforts are being maintained to keep basketball and baseball going with insufficient budgets.

The Pow Wow editorial, written by Ray Holland, the paper's sports editor, is as follows:

"What is N. J. C.? Is it a branch of L. S. U., whose students merely bide their time until they go down to "the big campus?" Or is it a school with an identity of its own?

"We claim to believe the latter. N. J. C. has a definite personality. But it does not have that most important facet of the personality of a college—a well-rounded athletic program.

"Why should N. J. C., a branch of one of the largest and best universities of the south, dwindle until it has no prestige as a junior college? One thing alone is the chief cause that should alarm persons who can improve our situation. That is the need for an expanded athletic program.

"What do we need? First, more financial aid for sports. No college can offer many types of sport activities without sufficient funds. N. J. C. had to settle with one sport (football) in order to hold her own in competition with surrounding junior colleges.

"Football has been a great lever for enrollment increase here and when we add other sports we will see added numbers interested in our school.

"When a junior college doesn't offer as many sports activities as surrounding high schools it will soon be looked upon as "merely an overrated high school. Do we want this to happen? No. The only way we can prevent it is to arouse enough public support and interest to warrant speedy action.

"What would improve N. J. C.'s program? The answer is threefold: a stadium and gymnasium enlarged enough to accommodate the growing crowds that witness football and basketball games, a full-time paid assistant coach, and funds to enable competition with other junior colleges in baseball, track and basketball.

"It is absolutely pathetic to see such games as baseball and basketball offered on such a minor sport basis. Our baseball team schedules games with other schools, but transportation to and from the various colleges is a great problem. Since the sport has no operating budget, the team must depend on some person offering the use of his private car. Also, the players must buy their own meals on these trips, because money taken in at these games must be used for the upkeep of equipment.

"N. J. C. is surrounded by high schools which have many talented football, baseball, and basketball players. Also trackmen are numerous in this area, but what can we offer them at N. J. C. except education in subject matter? We grant that education is essential but these men can get both education and sports in other colleges.

"Our limited athletic program applies also to girls. The only sports available to them are intramural activities. Why can't our budget be expanded to provide opportunities for coed basketball teams to compete with other schools?

"Benefit derived from such an expansion would be reflected in many ways. School spirit at N. J. C. would be accelerated by sports. Pride in the school is a great incentive for doing better scholastic work. Therefore, a greatly enlarged athletic program will not only increase enrollment, but aso public interest and student achievement.

"We of N. J. C. can't be among those people who are willing to sit back and watch our sports dwindle to nothing but an occasional ping pong game. Now is the time to realize that potential action is stored up in the school and public. Our job is to awaken these people to their responsibility. The main idea is not to overstress sports, but to maintain them. If N. J. C. students, alumni, and fans want to see athletics continually diminishing, let them keep on making passes at idleness."

MATCH EXPECTED TO SETTLE FEUD OVER MAT CROWN

Bill Barney Will Face 'Gorilla' Macias In Semi-Final At Kallio's

Champion Jack Curtis and Challenger Charlie Laye, after two straight disputed matches, will return to Gus Kallio's Arena here Tuesday night with hopes of a satisfactory settlement in their current feud in which Laye was given a bloody outside-thering beating in their first engagement and then knocked out with a pile driver last week.

The first meeting went only two falls, with Curtis winning the first and both wrestlers being counted out in the second with Referee Bill Barney awarding Curtis the match over the objections of Laye who claimed Curtis should have been disqualified in the second.

Then last week it was a two-fall setto once more with the two wrestlers winding up in a brawl outside the ring that ended when Laye was the victim of a pile driver that banged his head on the hardwood floor. Laye, unconscious for 22 minutes, was unable to answer the bell for the third fall.

Referee Claude Skidmore, declaring the wrestlers were bound to decide the championship inside the ring and not out among the customers, said Laye should have been awarded the crown in the second meeting, but he made no ruling one way or the other. Promoter Kallio handed the belt back to Curtis.

Explaining his action, Kallio said yesterday:

"Charlie Laye was knocked out. Dr. French and some others were working over him in the dressing room. Curtis and his friends were looking for Commissioner Silverstein. They got after me and I joined them in seeking the commissioner, but we learned he had left the championship belt at the ticket office and left for his home.

"The belt was left with no instructions as to what to do with it—who should get it. As for myself, busy with checking up and running the business end of the match, I didn't see the windup of the match or what happened outside the ring. I knew Curtis was champion when the match started, and felt that if the belt had changed hands Commissioner Silverstein would have remained to give the title to the new champion.

"So, with no orders regarding disposal of the belt, I gave it back to the man it had belonged to. The wrestlers' end of the gate was split 50-50."

Feeling that a rematch so soon wouldn't be good advertising, Kallio approached Laye regarding the possibility of a tag team match for this week. Laye turned the offer down because, he said, his usual partner, Chris Belkas, is not available, and he said he wouldn't attempt a tag scrap without the classy little Greek.

"But I'll tell you what I will do," Laye offered. "I know Curtis can make all kinds of alibis now as to why he shouldn't give me another title match soon, but I know his weak spot now. Curtis is money crazy. Oh, how that man loves money. I'll put up $100 extra from my end of the gate just to get Curtis in that ring again and end all this fuss we've started. As far as I'm concrened, Curtis is not near through with me."

"Charley, you talk like an oldtime wrestler now," answered Kallio. "I'm going to help you get that match, and whatever it takes, I'll pay half of it. I know a rematch is what the fans want. So many of the fans are disputing the rseults lately in their own minds that they'd like to see a definite settlement as well as the rest of us."

With Laye ready and willing, Kallio headed for Commisisoner Dave Silverstein's office to get his approval. The commissioner, a ringside witness last week, had his hat knocked off in the ruckus, and when Curtis knocked down Referee Claude Skidmore, the referee fell flat on Silverstein's topper. Silverstein said he wasn't asking a rematch explaining "if they'd stay away for a while it would be better to have a tag match than another repetition of the brawls they've had the last two weeks."

But the commissioner wasn't opposed to the rematch if the wrestlers agreed.

Kallio later explained Laye's offer to Curtis and the champion took him up. "I think I can take as much punishment as he can, and last through just as many matches, so I'll be there," said Curtis.

The wrestlers agreed to accept Skidmore again as referee.

For the semi-final, Kallio is sending Bill Barney, West Monroe automobile mechanic into action against "Gorilla" Macias, the burly Mexican.

The SCOREBOARD

By Harry Grayson

NEW YORK, May 7.—(NEA)—The Yankees may have another Lou Gehrig in Dick Kryhoski.

Jerry Coleman was the best third baseman in the American Association two years ago, and has a grand chance to establish himself as an American League star at any one of three infield positions.

This doesn't come from Oscar Hocks, the wildest-eyed of all Yankee fans, or anyone like that.

It is the studied opinion of Bill Meyer, one of the smarter baseball men, who manages the Pirates.

Meyer should know.

Dick Kryhoski

He managed in the minors for 22 years, most of it in the American League chain, before getting his big chance in Pittsburgh at the age of 56.

Kryhoski was sent to him two years ago.

Coleman helped him win the American Association pennant in 1947.

"Kryhoski has the power and speed and he is supple," says the man who succeeded Joe McCarthy as the Louisville leader when the winningest manager of them all was graduated to the Cubs in 1926.

"He doesn't throw too well, but good enough, and I'll tell you a story about that.

"Although he had only one year's experience, Kryhoski, a fine kid, was ordered to report to my Triple A club in training at Lake Wales, Fla., in the spring of 1947.

"I quickly fell in love with him, too, just talking to him, and, of course, because he hit .336 for Wellesville of the Pony League the previous summer.

"Kryhoski, then only 22, ran all over the place, worked so hard the first day, that I cautioned him to take it easy, finally sent him to the shower.

"While taking his bath, he fainted dead away, and, as it had to happen, fell on his left, or throwing shoulder. This caused a separation that kept him out for some time, although he did manage to get in 100 or more games with Binghampton of the Eastern League."

At 6-2 1/2, the 200-pound Kryhoski enjoys all the physical advantages of a natural lefthander around first base. And the left-handed pull hitter's only drawback is the lack of experience.

Had America's No. 1 heel healed, Tommy Henrich no doubt would be playing first base.

That would have frozen out Kryhoski and tall Jack Phillips, who are alternating there dependent upon the opposing pitching.

Little Scooter Rizzuto's arm trouble gave Coleman a shot at shortstop, and when Snuffy Stirnweiss hurt his wrist, the former dive bomber took over at second.

With DiMaggio sidelined, Casey Stengel had to look at more young outfielders when King Kong Keller tore a ligament in his already bad back.

That brought out Cliff Mapes, Hank Bauer and Gene Woodling.

ATTENDANCE AWARD WON BY GREENWOOD DODGERS

HELENA, Ark., May 7.—(AP)—The Greenwood (Miss.) Dodgers won the Al Haraway trophy for the largest opening day attendance in the Cotton States Baseball League.

This was announced here today by Haraway, league president. He said Greenwood's opening game attendance was 3,296. The ranking of other clubs: Greenville, Miss., 2,668; Pine Bluff, Ark., 2,328; Hot Springs, Ark., 2,004; Helena, Ark., 1,354; El Dorado, Ark., 1,340; Clarksdale, Miss., 1,096, and Natchez, Miss., 682.

Haraway said adverse weather affected materially all clubs opening this season. Natchez held its opener in a drizzle and several other clubs had to delay their initial contests. Seventeen of the first 20 scheduled games were rained out, and attendance is below the comparable figure for last year, Haraway said.

FOUR EVANGELINE LEAGUE PLAYERS GET SUSPENSIONS

One Benched For Hitting Umpire; Three Involved In Shop-Lifting

LAFAYETTE, La., May 7.—(AP)—Four Abbeville baseball players have been suspended, one indefinitely, Evangeline League President Edmond L. Deramee advised the Lafayette Daily Advertiser today.

Those suspended are Pitchers Nick Pappas, Bill Alonzo, and Jimmy Perez and Infielder Gaspar Del Toro of the Abbeville Athletics.

Pappas has been suspended for five days, said Deramee (speaking from Thibodaux) for charging an umpire, striking at him and striking him. The incident occurred during argument with Umpire Tex Burnett in Houma Wednesday night.

Del Toro has been suspended indefinitely, and Deramee said that he had recommended to President George Trautman of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues that he be barred indefinitely.

Perex and Alonzo both drew five-day suspensions pending further investigation.

Deramee declined to disclose the offenses of the latter three until Trautman's examination, but when queried, Houma Supreintendent of Police A. Charrier said that the three had been "caught shop-lifting."

Charrier said that the players took "a few sport shirts and a couple of belts." He said that the merchant suspected the players, and reported the incident to Abbeville manager Nat Love. Love questioned the players,

Cleveland Noses Out Red Sox, 4 To 3; Tigers Defeat Athletics

CHICAGO, May 7.—(AP)—Bob Porterfield, sophomore New York Yankee pitcher, toed the rubber for the first time this season today and pitched the Yankees to a 8-1 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

Porterfield, who injured his arm in an exhibition game in Brooklyn April 16, scattered ten hits. He allowed a hit in every inning except the first and not more than one until the ninth when the Sox bunched three for their lone run.

Baton Rouge High Wins State Class AA Track Diadem

MAROON SPIKEMEN WALLOP OLE MISS

UNIVERSITY, Miss., May 7.—(AP)—Paced by Tilford Neely, Mississippi State scored a 75 2/3-55 1/3 track victory over Mississippi University here today.

Racing with a five-mile wind but on cinders that did nothing to aid his time, Neely beat the Rebel ace, Dixie Howell, by three yards in the century run. Neely's time was 9.5.

Recently he turned in a 9.2 wind-pushed mark against Louisiana State. The accepted world mark is 9.3 seconds.

Neely repeated in the 220, starting on a curve, in the good time of 21.1.

Mississippi State outscored Ole Miss 35 1/3-18 2/3 in the field events and beat Ole Miss 57-20 on the cinders.

Besides Neely, Don Speed in the hurdles races was a double winner.

LOUISIANA COLLEGE NIPS SOUTHERN CLUB, 3 TO 1

PINEVILLE, La., May 7.—(AP)—Louisiana College defeated Mississippi Southern 3-1 in baseball at the new college field here today.

The game wound up as a mound duel between Louisiana College's Smith and Southern's Legross. The Mississippi team got only three hits while Louisiana collected six.

Frank Cicero led the victorious batsmen with a double and two singles in three time up.

SOUTHWESTERN ROUTS SPRING HILL BADGERS

LAFAYETTE, La., May 7.—(AP)—Southwestern Louisiana Institute pounded out 13 base hits here today to swamp Spring Hill, Mobile, 12-1.

Southwestern, leading the Gulf States Conference, got a five-run start in the first inning.

NEW YORK—"He looks funny back there," said Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees. He was talking about Larry (Yogi) Berra, left, the hard-hitting Yankee with the scatter arm. Stengel wants to make use of Yogi's bat. That's why he has Bill Dickey, former star Yankee catcher, showing Yogi how to hold the ball for a throw. Yogi is remembered as the guy who almost threw the Yankee World Series hopes of 1947 into center field.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—About a dozen horses will parade to the post at Churchill Downs late this afternoon with their backers fervently hoping that something will happen to bring Olympia back to the field and make a real race out of the 75th Kentucky Derby. . . . Chances are that nothing can happen that will be quite as strange as King Nadi's misfortune in 1925. . . . King Nadi was a great horse on a muddy track but just ordinary when it was fast and owner John Troxler entered him over-night in the hope that it would be muddy on derby day. . . . It doesn't cost a cent to enter a horse once he has been nominated but it was $500 then if he started. . . . At two o'clock Saturday afternoon, the sun was shining and the track fast so Troxler scratched King Nadi to save the 500 bucks. . . . Then just at that sentimental moment when derby fans from Broadway, Bismarck, N.D., and Bird-In-Hand, Pa., shed tears as the band strikes up "Kentucky Home" and the first horse appears on the track, a veritable cloudburst swept over the Downs. . . . The track was sloppy as you've ever seen when the race was run and an outsider, Flying Ebonq, splashed home in front . . . . Even today you'll find guys around the Downs who'll tell you regretfully it would have been a cinch for King Nadi.

Mat-Rimonial Venture

Sportsmention

The new Garden boxing setup is hopeful of landing another Willie Pep-Sandy Saddler fight via Joe Louis. . . . Story was that Lou Viscusi, Pep's manager, wouldn't give Mike Jacobs a look-in because of an argument over $3,800 in "chicken feed." . . . Dick Maher, Notre Dame catcher who was hitting .375 at last report, is the son of Charley, Western Michigan baseball coach. And Irish outfielder Don Grieve is the son of Bill, the American League umpire. . . . Wake Forest College has a 300-pound freshman golfer named Dick Tiddy who has been knocking chunks off par regularly. Strange thing is that he does it not by belting the ball a mile but by fine putting.

Check Signals

FAVORED OLYMPIA

moved him up a couple of notches, and then he began calling on his horse for some run. He got it. By that time they hit the head of the stretch and straightened out on that final quarter-mile, where derby hopes so often are shattered, the Calumet horse was a staunch sixth.

A furlong out, when the crowd was roaring for Capot, Brooks drove Ponder into third place, and a second later he was pulling up beside the Greentree runner. From there on he was much the best horse.

Jones, who saddled the great Citation and his stablemate, Coaltown, in last year's Derby and who now has had a record-breaking five victories in the three-year-old classic, forgot all dignity and ran out on the track to greet Ponder when Brooks brought him in to receive the traditional blanket of roses.

Only two days ago the man from Parnell, Mo., vowed that he would be a happy man if Ponder's number went up as good as third in the big race. He declared seriously that Ponder wasn't "the same kind of horse" as Citation or Coaltown. Perhaps he is not. But his winning time of 2:04 1/5 was better than Citation's 2:05 2/5 last year and the same as Pensive's time in winning the 1944 Kentucky Derby.

The derby record of 2:01 2/5 was set by Whirlaway, another Calumet whizzer in winning the '41 derby. But Ponder at least showed that he had the old vim when he needed it most and that was sufficient for his purpose.

Besides Ponder, Pensive, Whirlaway and Citation, Jones saddled the winning Larwin in 1938. Before today's victory he was deadlocked with Derby Dick Thompson for derby training honors.

Up to today, Ponder had not won a single stake race and his total earnings were only $8,950. He ran probably his best previous race in the Derby Trial, where he finished a hard-running second to Olympia. Many who saw that race thought Ponder looked like he might have gone another quarter-mile, but they didn't think it seriously enough to give him important backing today.

Brooks, who gave the winner a beautiful ride all the way and had him rated perfectly while the leaders wore themselves out, had ridden in only one previous derby, finishing sixth on Star Reward in the '47 race. He is a 28-year-old ex-cowboy from McCook, Neb.

Warren Easton's Lester Kennedy Highest Individual Winner

BATON ROUGE, La., May 7.—(AP)—Baton Rouge High School won the championship in the AA division at the Louisiana High School Track and Field Rally here today.

It was the first time in seven years that the AA championship went to a high school outside New Orleans.

Baton Rouge scored 56 points. Second was Holy Cross, New Orleans, 38 1/2; Warren Easton, New Orleans 34; Istrouma, Baton Rouge, 32 1/2, and Jesuit, New Orleans, 27 1/2.

Bossier City won the A division with 55 points. Newman, New Orleans, was second, 34 1/2.

In the B class Mamou took the championship; and in C, it was Port Sulphur.

The two-way track and field meet closed here late today. Baton Rouge's AA victory was due largely to a fine relay quarter, which set a new record in the 880-yard event yesterday and equalled the record (44.3) in the 440 today. Baton Rouge's outstanding individual performer was John Burton, who set a new state record (49.9) for the 440-yard dash.

Highest individual point winner of the entire meet was Lester Kennedy of Warren Easton, who made a total of 14 points. In the broad jump he broke Billy Christopher's 1929 record of 22 feet 9 inches by leaping 22 feet 10 inches. Kennedy also set a new mark (22.7) for the 200-yard low hurdles. Kennedy also took second place in the hop-skip and jump.

JOHNSON SEA-HORSE OUTBOARD MOTORS

The true value of an outboard motor is not what you pay for it new, but, instead, it's a combination of several factors such as resale and trade-in value later on, the kind of service that is readily available close by, if needed, and the satisfaction of knowing you own a reputable and accepted brand, one that gives you that "pride of ownership" feeling.

Johnson is not the highest nor the lowest priced motor, but it unquestionably is the most widely accepted motor the world over.

A recent survey by a leading sporting publication showed that Johnson was the national preference by almost a 3 to 1 majority over its nearest competitor.

More convincing proof that Johnson enjoys the highest public acceptance of all makes is the fact that Johnson has produced motors at peak capacity for the last four years and is the ONLY manufacturer that has not slowed down production or laid off personnel because of slackening demand for its product.

See and try any model Johnson from 2½ H.P. to 22 H.P. any day in the week. Demonstrations given every Sunday from 2 till 6 o'clock at our docks, rear of building, 712 South Grand.

Chandler's War on Rowdyism Doesn't Mean Fans Can't Root

By Dan Daniel

CINCINNATI—(NEA)—May 7.—As Leo Durocher returned to his job, Commissioner Albert B. Chandler opened war on rowdyism in the ball parks of the major leagues.

Acting not only on evidence of the Polo Grounds incident which brought the temporary suspension of Durocher, but reports of generally disturbing conditions elsewhere, Chandler called on the club owners to eject all offenders immediately on their overstepping the bounds of decency, and to add to their police and usher forces.

"Happy" Chandler

From now on, club owners will be held strictly responsible for all park situations tending to disturb the public peace, on and off the field.

Fans are to be kept in their proper seats.

Chandler wants it to be impossible for Fred Boysen, for example, again to invade the box section at the Polo Grounds, and carry on a heckling campaign at close quarters.

"Hoodlums are not going to run any park in the major leagues," said Chandler.

"The responsibility of taking proper precautions, and summary action against abuses, lies not only with club officials, but with league presidents.

Expel Obscene Hecklers

"Ford Frick came to the Durocher hearing at my request because I wanted to tell him about this new policy on policing the parks.

"In the hearing, I told Horace Stoneham that he was to show no timidity against offenders of any race, and that he had a mandate to expel obscene hecklers without warning.

"If permitted to grow, conditions which have developed in certain places could lead to rioting."

The commissioner made it emphatic that he did not seek a parlor atmosphere in ball parks, and that he was very much in favor of decent rooting.

The exoneration of Durocher on charges of having attacked Boysen came largely on the report presented by Bob Boyle, Chandler's FBI man, who spent several days in New York, and who had been investigating conditions in other parks.

Boyle found that in Comiskey Park, Chicago, teen age fans who were turned down autographs had got into the habit of spattering ink over players' uniforms.

In Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds, young fans were stealing even the belts off players' uniforms, as well as caps and gloves.

Horace Stoneham at first was inclined to resent the charge that he was largely responsible for the Durocher incident, because the Polo Grounds was inadequately policed.

Later Stoneham admitted that he had temporized too long with rowdies operating in the Giants' park, and that the commissioner's charge was not without foundation.

He also admitted that he had cautioned Polo Grounds police not to touch off a fuse.

"Now, we have our orders from Chandler, and we are going to obey them, to the limit," Hoarce added.

TECH NIPS LIONS TO CAPTURE 5TH TRIUMPH IN ROW

Bulldogs Nose Out Southeastern Louisiana, 8 To 7, At Ruston

RUSTON, May 7.—(Special)—Winning their fifth consecutive baseball game in the Gulf States Conference, the Louisiana Tech diamond men edged Southeastern of Hammond 8-7 here Saturday afternoon.

Louis Pipes, freshman Bulldog fireballer, chalked up his second victory in two days in relief roles.

Tobey Smith, Tech right fielder, led the hit parade, with three doubles and a single out of five trips to the plate.

The Bulldogs opened the scoring in the first inning with two runs. Brasher singled, stole second and scored on Smith's two-base knock. E. J. Albritton singled to bring Smith home.

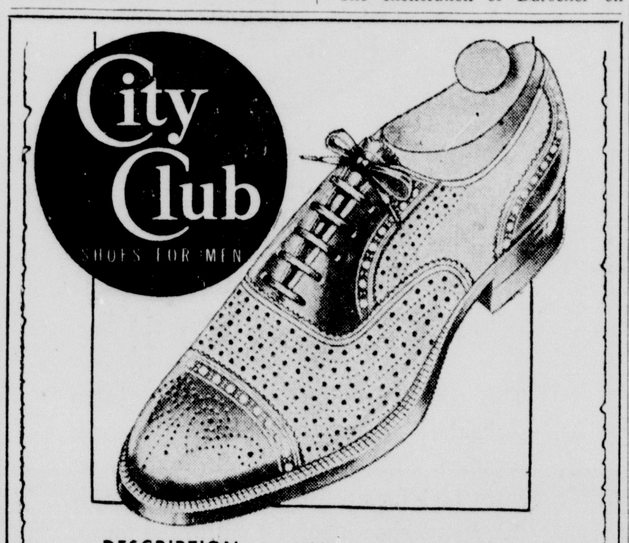

Southeastern knotted the count in the second. Blackwell, hit by a pitched ball, advanced on a single by Graves and scored on a base blow by Childs. Vinning, also hit by the pitcher, loaded the bags. Stephenson walked to force a run by Graves.

The Hammond Lions forged ahead in the fourth. Childs was on by fielder's choice. Stephenson singled. Power walked and Ramboli singled to score Childs and Stephenson.

Tech scored one run in the fifth, as Burks walked and scored on a long two-bagger by Smith.

The Bulldogs bunched five runs in the sixth. After scores by Piper, Holstead, and Brasher, Albritton clouted a homer with Smith on second to climax the Tech scoring.

A ninth-inning rally by Southeastern fell short by one tally. Luckawacki batted a home run with Stephenson and Power on bases to end the scoring.

PAUL BIENZ RUNS HIS FASTEST 220 IN 'BAMA EVENT

Equals World's Record Which Is Broken By Patton Few Minutes Later

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., May 7.—(AP)—Tulane's Paul Bienz tied the world record in the 220-yard dash today shortly before Mel Patton of the University of Southern California bettered it.

Aided by a favoring wind, Bienz finished in 20.3 seconds, only a couple of steps ahead of Alabama's Charley Davis.

But in Los Angeles, Patton sprinted the dash in 20.2 and bested the world record by one-tenth of a second.

Alabama won the dual meet here, 83-48, with Sophomore Dick Hanson scoring first in four events, both hurdles and both jumps.

The husky Bienz took the 100 in 9.7 seconds.

Hanson was the big show for Alabama, which won 10 of the 15 events. He took the broad jump with a leap of 23 feet, one-eighth inch. That was the best he's done this season.

Hanson soared 6 feet, 1 7/8 inches to top the high jumpers, triumphed in the 120-yard low hurdles in 16 flat, and bagged the 220-yard low hurdles with a 25.3 effort.

Next to Bienz's dash work, the meet's best time was Charley Davis' 48.3 in the 440-yard dash.

CHOCTAW SPIKEMEN NIP FLORIDA STATE RIVALS

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 7.—(AP)—The Mississippi College Choctaws grabbed a slim lead early in the afternoon and then clung on to their margin to defeat the Florida State University Seminoles, 70 1/2 to 60 1/2, in a dual track meet here today.

The Seminoles pulled up to within five points of the Mississippians late in the meet and only needed a victory 1 the final relay, last event on the card, for a tie. The Choctaws, however, got off to a quick lead to take the race and the meet.

Brick Bradford of Florida State was high point man with firsts in the discus and shot put and a second in the javelin throw. Halton of Mississippi won the 100 and 220 yard dashes for second honors.

Florida State and Mississippi College will compete next in the Dixie Conference meet at Macon, Ga., May 20 and 21.

GRADES COME FIRST TO FLORIDA TENNIS COACH

GAINEVILLE, Fla., May 7.—(AP)—Florida's Tennis Coach Harry Fogleman believes strongly enough in brainwork in athletics to leave his number 1 and number 3 players at home while the team is taking a crack at the Southeastern Conference championship.

So Bill Oughterson (No. 1) and Warren D'Allessandro (No. 3) will not be along when the team goes to New Orleans.

Both are eligible under conference rules, but they are enrolled in the tough Florida law course and Fogleman doesn't believe they can afford to miss a week's work right now. The boys, like any other college athlete, would head for New Orleans tomorrow if the coach hadn't laid down the law.

The quartet who will represent Florida in the S. E. C. tournament are Berney Segal, Frank Wood, Frank Skillman and Jack Borling.

As students, the Gators have a scholastic average of better than a "C" grade. As tennis players, they have won 14 and lost four. Dual scraps are on deck against L. S. U. and Tulane before the tournament begins Thursday.

CLIPPERS HOSTS TO BONITA-JONES IN LEAGUE SCRAP

Lake Providence Appears In First Home Northeast Loop Game Today

LAKE PROVIDENCE, May 7.—(Special)—With the taste of victory still sweet in their mouths, the Lake Providence Clippers will attempt to please the home fans with more of the same Sunday afternoon when they play host to Bonita-Jones in American Legion Park here.

Sunday's tilt will mark the Clippers' initial home stand of the Northeast Louisiana League season. The Clips were to have opened with Monroe here last Sunday, but the weatherman threw cold water on those plans—both literally and figuratively—as a hard rain forced postponement of the clash.

However, the Lake Providence club got off to a good start by knocking off the Winnsboro Red Sox in Winnsboro by a score of 8-3 Wednesday night. A game slated against Oak Grove in Oak Grove Thursday afternoon was cancelled.

Manager Van Hicks, present Lake Providence High School baseball and basketball coach and a former Louisiana Tech star in both sports, will probably pin his home opening hopes on Southpaw Johnny Bruce, who hurled for the Ole Miss Rebels last year.

Game time is 3 o'clock, and a capacity crowd is expected to jam the

Big Eight League Opens Season With Four Games on Tap Today

First Contests Scheduled For Ruston, Sterlington, Dubach, Marion

RUSTON, May 7.—(AP)—(Special)—With all eight clubs boasting of their improvement, the Big Eight League will open its 1949 season today when each of its members launch a 28-game schedule in what is expected to be the most successful year ever.

Opening day tilts find the Ruston Rebels entertaining Bernice, Ruston Volunteers at Dubach, Hodge will journey to Marion, and Simsboro going to Sterlington.

Last year the Big Eight enjoyed a very successful year with the Ruston Volunteers, managed by Berry Hinton, winning the championship for their third straight pennant. The annual All-Star game will be played July 4, at Bernice.

Officials of the circuit include Larry Fox, president; Don Lomax, vice-president; G. L. McIlveene, treasurer; Raymond Jeffress, secretary; and Bobby Henderson, publicity. Bob Wynn is the umpire-in-chief.

The Vols will be without their star twirler, Tom Herrin, who entered professional baseball, but such hitters as Ozzie Payne, Tobey Smith, "Round Man" Willett, and Berry Hinton will give them extra power at the plate.

The Ruston Rebels, managed by Huey Williamson, have been greatly strengthened by the addition of new players and possess a well-balanced ball club. The "Gashouse Gang" of Dubach is always a real contender and the hitting of "Nig" Roberson and Charles Colvin will give their opponents something to worry about.

Sterlington also has a good hitting team with such sluggers as Duncan, Tim Taylor, Gene Roswell, and Carl Guinn to help produce the hits and runs. They have a well-balanced pitching staff in Max Crow, Ed Higgs, "Lefty" Taylor, and Charlie Savage.

Manager Fenton of Hodge is well pleased over the performance of his young high school twirler, Wilson, against the Rebels recently in an exhibition game and believes he will develop into a topnotch hurler. Such reliables as Grady Staggs, Ronald Dennis, "Red" Woods, and Marvin Coleman will definitely make them hard to beat.

Bernice possesses one of the most powerful sluggers in the league in Glen Post, their manager. Henry Albritton, last year's most valuable Big 8 player, will share the pitching chores with Jesse Tucker, and Tanner, who are all first class twirlers. Lights were installed recently at Bernice, also they have always been known to produce fine ball clubs.

The dark-horses of the league, Simsboro and Marion, are determined to make a good showing and have been strengthened by new players. These two teams have the reputation of knocking off first division clubs and should be in the thick of the pennant race.

The league boasts a $797.95 bank account and a policy that encourages the development of high school, Legion, and college players. League rules do not permit paying ball players, thereby enabling youngsters to play without jeopardizing their amateur status.

$50,000 Per Keeps Gal Grappler In Groceries

By Frank Eck
(A.P. Newsfeatures Sports Editor)

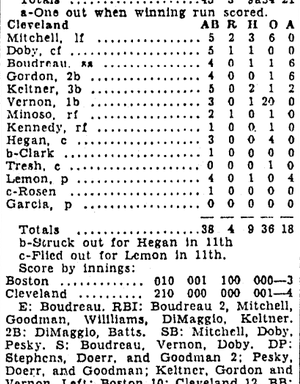

NEWARK, N. J. Some people might say it's almost impossible for Mildred Burke to lose a wrestling match because her husband, Billy Wolfe, makes the matches. Of course, these people would be the ones who don't know the inside story.

Among the trade—the lady wrestlers' trade—they say Mildred Burke is tops in her field. She's never been thrown during her 13 years and though she weighs but 135 pounds she once tossed a 190-pound gal, Mae Young, in Houston, Tex.

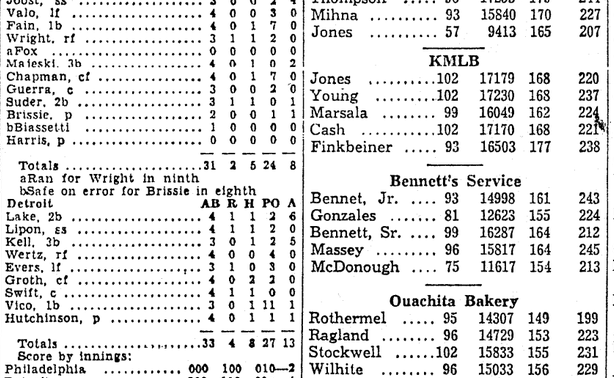

The 33-year-old five-foot-two blue-eyed matlady with auburn hair and sparkling blue eyes recalls a match she had in Mexico City a few years ago.

"I came up with a fever a few hours before," says Miss Burke. "I had a high temperature but had to wrestle. No substitute was available. My opponent took advantage by belting me in the stomach at the start of the match. It was the first time I ever crawled for the ropes to gasp for air. I really had the wind knocked out of me. When I returned to the ring I tossed her all around the ring. Each time she tried to submit I tossed her some more before I finally ended it. I certainly taught that girl a lesson."

Mildred gets a big kick out of wrestling, not to mention a comfortable living. She grosses about $50,000 a year, wrestling anywhere from three to six nights a week for eight months or 15 to 20 per cent of the gate. Her expenses come pretty high, like $4,500 every year for a new car on which she puts 100,000 miles, plus plane fare for a one-night stand hundreds of miles off her swing, hotel and meal bills and about $200 a week for phone calls.

MILDRED BURKE

Mae Weston tries for body scissors on Mildred

Born in Coffeeville, Kans., Miss Burke now lives in Los Angeles where she has bought two homes, one for her mother who, while Mildred is on tour, takes care of her 14-year-old son by a former marriage.

The lady wrestler with the waist of a follies girl and arm and shoulder muscles of a female Atlas, advises sports, even wrestling, for women.

"Wrestling for fun is good sport. Amateur wrestling keeps the body agile. But in pro wrestling it has got to be rough or the customers won't come out. They want showmanship and we give it to them. There's no fooling around and no feigning helplessness like with the men. And I think lady wrestling is much faster. There are about 100 female wrestlers in the country and about 16 are real good."

Miss Burke got her chance to become a wrestler almost 15 years ago in Kansas City. "I pestered Billy to let me wrestle with some amateurs. I weighed only 115 pounds then, Billy got so tired of me bothering him that one day he hired a gypsy boy for $1. He gave the boy instructions to throw me. I pinned the boy and soon turned pro.

"Billy decided to take me on tour. There weren't many women wrestlers then so I wrestled against men weighing 125 pounds. In some towns we had to put ads asking for matches with men within ten pounds of my weight."

Toughest match she ever had was against Betty Nichols at Columbus, O., back around 1938. "In the first match she blackened my eye and the bout was so rough it was stopped after 20 minutes," says Mildred. "The next week we went 30 minutes to a draw. In the third match I defeated her in about 18 minutes. Betty was so broken hearted she gave up wrestling."

Mildred has had both knees banged up, both thumbs dislocated and has a scar on her left eyelid. Yet in everyday attire she would pass for a Sunday school teacher.

There are only six states in which women do not wrestle. They are New York, California, Connecticut, Michigan, Illinois and Kansas, says Wolfe. "It's not illegal in those states," he adds.

"It's just that they don't give licenses to women."

Miss Burke seldom loses her head even when some opponent plays the villain, as her rivals often do. But there was the time in Toledo when she kicked the referee.

"The announcer immediately informed the crowd that the commission had fined me $5 for kicking the referee," recalls Mildred. "Some fan sent up a $10 bill with a note to give the money to the referee with another kick to boot. I handed the $10 to the referee and said, 'Here, I have another kick coming.'"

Here's an idea of her schedule on a recent eastern tour: Friday—Philadelphia; Saturday—Trenton; Monday—Camden; Tuesday—Baltimore; Wednesday—Washington; Thursday—New Brunswick; Friday—Neward and Saturday—Teaneck, N. J.

She makes only two or three showings a year in the same city. "Too many appearances would kill the sport," she says. She's booked until June and already has a booking for December in the Boston Garden where she's shown her full Nelson, hammer holds and alligator clutch before 14,000 fans.

CHICAGO, May 7.—(AP)—Bob Porterfield, sophomore New York Yankee pitcher, toed the rubber for the first time this season today and pitched the Yankees to a 8-1 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

Baton Rouge High Wins State Class AA Track Diadem

MAROON SPIKEMEN WALLOP OLE MISS

UNIVERSITY, Miss., May 7.—(AP)—Paced by Tilford Neely, Mississippi State scored a 75 2/3-55 1/3 track victory over Mississippi University here today.

Racing with a five-mile wind but on cinders that did nothing to aid his time, Neely beat the Rebel ace, Dixie Howell, by three yards in the century run. Neely's time was 9.5.

Recently he turned in a 9.2 wind-pushed mark against Louisiana State. The accepted world mark is 9.3 seconds.

Neely repeated in the 220, starting on a curve, in the good time of 21.1.

Mississippi State outscored Ole Miss 35 1/3-18 2/3 in the field events and beat Ole Miss 57-20 on the cinders.

Besides Neely, Don Speed in the hurdles races was a double winner.

LOUISIANA COLLEGE NIPS SOUTHERN CLUB, 3 TO 1

PINEVILLE, La., May 7.—(AP)—Louisiana College defeated Mississippi Southern 3-1 in baseball at the new college field here today.

The game wound up as a mound duel between Louisiana College's Smith and Southern's Legross. The Mississippi team got only three hits while Louisiana collected six.

Frank Cicero led the victorious batsmen with a double and two singles in three time up.

SOUTHWESTERN ROUTS SPRING HILL BADGERS

LAFAYETTE, La., May 7.—(AP)—Southwestern Louisiana Institute pounded out 13 base hits here today to swamp Spring Hill, Mobile, 12-1.

Southwestern, leading the Gulf States Conference, got a five-run start in the first inning.

NEW YORK—"He looks funny back there," said Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees. He was talking about Larry (Yogi) Berra, left, the hard-hitting Yankee with the scatter arm. Stengel wants to make use of Yogi's bat. That's why he has Bill Dickey, former star Yankee catcher, showing Yogi how to hold the ball for a throw. Yogi is remembered as the guy who almost threw the Yankee World Series hopes of 1947 into center field.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—About a dozen horses will parade to the post at Churchill Downs late this afternoon with their backers fervently hoping that something will happen to bring Olympia back to the field and make a real race out of the 75th Kentucky Derby. . . . Chances are that nothing can happen that will be quite as strange as King Nadi's misfortune in 1925. . . . King Nadi was a great horse on a muddy track but just ordinary when it was fast and owner John Troxler entered him over-night in the hope that it would be muddy on derby day. . . . It doesn't cost a cent to enter a horse once he has been nominated but it was $500 then if he started. . . . At two o'clock Saturday afternoon, the sun was shining and the track fast so Troxler scratched King Nadi to save the 500 bucks. . . . Then just at that sentimental moment when derby fans from Broadway, Bismarck, N.D., and Bird-In-Hand, Pa., shed tears as the band strikes up "Kentucky Home" and the first horse appears on the track, a veritable cloudburst swept over the Downs. . . . The track was sloppy as you've ever seen when the race was run and an outsider, Flying Ebonq, splashed home in front . . . . Even today you'll find guys around the Downs who'll tell you regretfully it would have been a cinch for King Nadi.

Mat-Rimonial Venture

Sportsmention

The new Garden boxing setup is hopeful of landing another Willie Pep-Sandy Saddler fight via Joe Louis. . . . Story was that Lou Viscusi, Pep's manager, wouldn't give Mike Jacobs a look-in because of an argument over $3,800 in "chicken feed." . . . Dick Maher, Notre Dame catcher who was hitting .375 at last report, is the son of Charley, Western Michigan baseball coach. And Irish outfielder Don Grieve is the son of Bill, the American League umpire. . . . Wake Forest College has a 300-pound freshman golfer named Dick Tiddy who has been knocking chunks off par regularly. Strange thing is that he does it not by belting the ball a mile but by fine putting.

Check Signals

moved him up a couple of notches, and then he began calling on his horse for some run. He got it. By that time they hit the head of the stretch and straightened out on that final quarter-mile, where derby hopes so often are shattered, the Calumet horse was a staunch sixth.

A furlong out, when the crowd was roaring for Capot, Brooks drove Ponder into third place, and a second later he was pulling up beside the Greentree runner. From there on he was much the best horse.

Jones, who saddled the great Citation and his stablemate, Coaltown, in last year's Derby and who now has had a record-breaking five victories in the three-year-old classic, forgot all dignity and ran out on the track to greet Ponder when Brooks brought him in to receive the traditional blanket of roses.

Only two days ago the man from Parnell, Mo., vowed that he would be a happy man if Ponder's number went up as good as third in the big race. He declared seriously that Ponder wasn't "the same kind of horse" as Citation or Coaltown. Perhaps he is not. But his winning time of 2:04 1/5 was better than Citation's 2:05 2/5 last year and the same as Pensive's time in winning the 1944 Kentucky Derby.

The derby record of 2:01 2/5 was set by Whirlaway, another Calumet whizzer in winning the '41 derby. But Ponder at least showed that he had the old vim when he needed it most and that was sufficient for his purpose.

Besides Ponder, Pensive, Whirlaway and Citation, Jones saddled the winning Larwin in 1938. Before today's victory he was deadlocked with Derby Dick Thompson for derby training honors.

Up to today, Ponder had not won a single stake race and his total earnings were only $8,950. He ran probably his best previous race in the Derby Trial, where he finished a hard-running second to Olympia. Many who saw that race thought Ponder looked like he might have gone another quarter-mile, but they didn't think it seriously enough to give him important backing today.

Brooks, who gave the winner a beautiful ride all the way and had him rated perfectly while the leaders wore themselves out, had ridden in only one previous derby, finishing sixth on Star Reward in the '47 race. He is a 28-year-old ex-cowboy from McCook, Neb.

Warren Easton's Lester Kennedy Highest Individal Winner

BATON ROUGE, La., May 7.—(AP)—Baton Rouge High School won the championship in the AA division at the Louisiana High School Track and Field Rally here today.

It was the first time in seven years that the AA championship went to a high school outside New Orleans.

Baton Rouge scored 56 points. Second was Holy Cross, New Orleans, 38 1/2; Warren Easton, New Orleans 34; Istrouma, Baton Rouge, 32 1/2, and Jesuit, New Orleans, 27 1/2.

Bossier City won the A division with 55 points. Newman, New Orleans, was second, 34 1/2.

In the B class Mamou took the championship; and in C, it was Port Sulphur.

The two-way track and field meet closed here late today. Baton Rouge's AA victory was due largely to a fine relay quarter, which set a new record in the 880-yard event yesterday and equalled the record (44.3) in the 440 today. Baton Rouge's outstanding individual performer was John Burton, who set a new state record (49.9) for the 440-yard dash.

Highest individual point winner of the entire meet was Lester Kennedy of Warren Easton, who made a total of 14 points. In the broad jump he broke Billy Christopher's 1929 record of 22 feet 9 inches by leaping 22 feet 10 inches. Kennedy also set a new mark (22.7) for the 200-yard low hurdles. Kennedy also took second place in the hop-skip and jump.

Opening dates for the Senior Softball League for boys and the Girls' Softball League have been fixed, Jack Hesketh, Monroe recreation director, said yesterday.

The Senior League, open to teams of boys 19 years old or younger, will open May 17, and the deadline for accepting entries is next Thursday. Teams already entered are Monroe Auto Auction, West Monroe Independents, Northside, and Braden Woodmen of the World. Games will be played on Tuesday and Friday nights of each week.

The Girls' League opening has been set for May 18, but so far only three teams have been entered. A fourth club is needed. Ready for action are Red Shield Club, Southern Bell, and Lovers' Lane Pharmacy.

Director Hesketh said plans are also being made to organize the Recreation Baseball League, catering to boys 18 years old and under, playing only on Saturdays. Teams desiring to enter should contact Hesketh at the Monroe Recreation Center, phone 4785.

A league is also planned for boys desiring to play Sunday baseball.

JOHNSON SEA-HORSE OUTBOARD MOTORS

The true value of an outboard motor is not what you pay for it new, but, instead, it's a combination of several factors such as resale and trade-in value later on, the kind of service that is readily available close by, if needed, and the satisfaction of knowing you own a reputable and accepted brand, one that gives you that "pride of ownership" feeling.

Johnson is not the highest nor the lowest priced motor, but it unquestionably is the most widely accepted motor the world over.

A recent survey by a leading sporting publication showed that Johnson was the national preference by almost a 3 to 1 majority over its nearest competitor.

More convincing proof that Johnson enjoys the highest public acceptance of all makes is the fact that Johnson has produced motors at peak capacity for the last four years and is the ONLY manufacturer that has not slowed down production or laid off personnel because of slackening demand for its product.

See and try any model Johnson from 2½ H.P. to 22 H.P. any day in the week. Demonstrations given every Sunday from 2 till 6 o'clock at our docks, rear of building, 712 South Grand.

WOMEN KEGLERS HANDED AWARDS FOR YEAR'S WORK

Championship Teams And Individual Winners Recognized At Supper

Trophies and medals in recognition of outstanding bowling play during the season here were awarded last night at the annual banquet of the members of the Ladies' League of the Monroe Bowling Association.

The Clyde Nash Insurance trophy for the league championship was presented by Nash to Morris Johnson, sponsor of the titled Clover Leaf Dairy keglers, and individual medals were presented by the league to Ella Cash, Norma Brown, Freddie DeCelle, Ella Johnson, and Rosie Joiner, members of the titled outfit.

W. L. Rothermel, serving as toastmaster, extended special recognition to the outgoing officers of the league, Irma Lee Peddy, president; Norma Brown, vice-president; Louise Massey, secretary; Lucille Knipping, treasurer; and to the new president, Ella Johnson; secretary, Claudie Stockwell; and sergeant-at-arms, Ella Cash. Mrs. Knipping was returned as league treasurer.

At the same time the City Tournament trophy was presented to Hazel Painich, member of the winning Silverstein's team; and recognition for individual tournament accomplishments went to Hulda Banford, singles champion; Hazel Painich, high game winner; and Colleen Dent and Pearl Lofton, doubles champions.

Medals were presented to Norma Brown, Clover Leafs, for the league's high series of the season and also the best average. Betty Mallery, Howard Brothers, won the medal for high game of the season, a 235.

Comic statuettes were passed out, adding humor to the gathering. One such presentation was made to the last place club, and the others went to Cecil and Lucille Massey for no other reason than they laughed louder than anyone else (in the toastmaster's opinion) as the gift to the last place team was made.

Eleven members of the league were cited for never having missed a bowling date all season. They were Ella Cash, Hazel Painich, Freddie DeCelle, Nettie Mae Spurlock, Claudia Stockwell, Ruth Sparks, Jackie Mang, Julia Bryan, Margaret Pitts, Lois Waldroup, and Ella Johnson.

The guest speaker for the occasion was Edna Meek, president of the Louisiana Women's Bowling Association. She made a brief talk on the value of sportsmanship and urged the women to keep their bowling on a sportmanship basis at all times.

The league also recognized L. B. Herron, operator of Herron's Bowling Lanes where their league activity took place; to Charles Snowden, foul official for the lanes; and to Paul Martin, News-Star—World sports editor.

Entertaining musical features were offered by Bertie Ann Cash and Marjorie Russ, and a piano solo by Margaret Pitts who also accompanied the singing skits of Misses Cash and Russ.

Erskine Johnson: IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD —(NEA)— "Sunset Boulevard" has been shooting for two weeks, but Billy Wilder and Charley Brackett still haven't written the final scenes for the picture. They never do.

"We've got five different endings," Billy told me, "and we can use any of them. We'll see how it plays first."

They did the same thing with "A Foreign Affair." When Millard Mitchell, as the colonel, turned in such a swell performance, they wrote an ending featuring him.

There's a reconciliation just around the corner for Kirk Douglas and his wife, Diana . . . A nurse accompanied Jane Greer on that Mexico trek to complete "The Big Steal." Jane's expecting her second child within a few weeks.

Marie Wilson will collect $15,000 lending her name and figure to a new type waterproof bathing suit.

Peggy Cummins and Derek Dunnett, heir to an English fortune, will announce their engagement in London this summer. He just returned to England after visiting here. . . . The Theater Guild is talking to June Havoc and Desi Arnaz about co-starring in "Round Trip to Cuba."

Note from Lee Anderson at the Palm Springs Tennis Club:

"You left us too soon. You should have seen a girl in a violet-colored bathing suit diving into our pool. Within three minutes the water in the pool turne dviolet. The girl fled in embarrassment and we haven't seen her since."

Jimmy Durante is warbling a new tune, "My Girl Friends Don't Want My Money," Really?

John Payne and Gloria de Haven have agreed on a property settlement . . . French capital is backing construction of a new film studio on the Riviera. It will be for the use of Hollywood studios using up overseas frozen funds . . . Paul Muni will do the Lee Cobb role in "Death of a Salesman" on the London stage.

Phil Pemberton can take a bow for Paramount's new product trailer, "Eyes on Hollywood." Not just because I'm in it, either.

Bette Davis' husband, Willliam Grant Sherry, opened his first one-man art show at the British-American Art Center in New York. The exhibit features a painting of their young daughter, Barbara.

Paramount is disturbed over the Bea Wain-Andre Baruch short, "Mr. and Mrs. Music." The studio has a film in the works for Bing titled "Mr. Music" and they don't like the title similarity.

Paramount is after the film rights to Sinclair Lewis' "Kingsblood Royal" for Macdonald Carey. . . Bruce Bennett, who was Herman Brix, the Olympic shot-putting champ, is shooting a home film series starring his 2-year-old son, titled "How To Train Children to Be Athletes."

Howard Duff and Ava Gardner are off to the Riviera Pacifico in Ensenada for magazine layouts against Mexican backgrounds.

Today's game at Columbia is a Monroe "home" game. Wednesday night the Sports visit Winnsboro for another home date. Regularly scheduled games are at Oak Grove Thursday afternoon, beginning at 4 o'clock, and next Sunday at Urania.

"We appreciate the cooperation of Winnsboro and Columbia in showing us consideration in changing out home playings sites," Malone said. "Without their help we would be in a tough situation with no park yet ready at home, and the outlook indefinite as to when the proposed park will be ready."

'Boss' Hague Is Aimed Again At N. J. Political Control

JERSEY CITY, N. J., May 7.—(AP)—Frank Hague—the boss—is back on the campaign trail.

Those are the words you hear today in this industrial city, one of the nation's Democratic bastions known for old line rough and tumble politics.

The septuagenarian Democratic leader who has been in semi-retirement the past two years isn't a candidate for office. He's stumping for his ticket in Tuesday's city commission election.

It's one of the toughest battles of Hague's stormy career which dates back some 30 years when he climbed into the driver's seat of the tightly-knit Democratic organization.

The veteran political chieftain has pulled out all the stops to win the fight. Numerous personal appearances, aerial displays, parades, rallies, and other hoopla employed during Hague's hey-day have been the order of the day.

The city commission election may well hold the key to the political future of Hague who always has been able to deliver tremendous Democratic majorities from Jersey City in state and national elections.

Should he lose in Jersey City, Hague's chances of electing a Democratic governor this fall will suffer. His continuance as state leader and national Democratic vice-chairman also may be affected.

Two years ago the 73-year-old Hague stopped down as mayor of this crowded city of 300,000 persons across the Hudson river from New York City. He had been mayor since 1917.

He turned over the reign to his nephew, Frank Hague Eggers, who now is mayor and heads the Hague ticket in the city election.

The boss moved out of the political spotlight. He kept his hands on the throttle of the Democratic machinery but let his younger lieutenants blow the whistle. Since 1947 his deep, thumping voice has been heard mostly in the background in city, state and national campaigns.

But now, smelling political blood, the iron-fisted Hague is again in the center of the platform.

Old timers say this election is one of the bitterest ever. There are four tickets in the field. Most observers agree the fight is between th incumbent Hague forces and the freedom ticket, a fusion group.

Five commissioners to serve four years are to be elected.

The fusion slate is headed by John V. Kenny, a wealthy contractor and one-time protege of Hague. In fact, Kenny's father introduced Hague into politics.

The fusionists charge that Hague is a dictator, trying to set up a dynasty.

The Hague forces retort that if they are defeated, the underworld with accompanying vice and immorality will take over the city.

Outsiders aren't rushing to pick the winner. Insiders are divided—depending on whose camp they are in.

What About YOUR PAY CHECK AND ADVERTISING?

Perhaps You've Never Heard It Explained This Simply Before

YOU'LL agree that the advertising you see and hear has one main purpose . . . to sell goods and services.

When a company sells more goods or services, there's just naturally more work to be done in that company. That means more jobs, better jobs, more security, more chance for promotion.

What's more, the mines and mills and farms and businesses that supply that firm also have more work to do. So do the transportation lines, dealers, stores, etc., who handle the goods. So they have more and better jobs as well.

Today producing goods is a relatively simple problem. In many fields, selling the goods is the big job. And advertising is one of the lowest-cost methods of selling goods on a big scale . . . a scale that makes more jobs and plenty of them.

So whether or not you work for a company that advertises, remember—that modern method of mass personal selling you see and hear everywhere, is important to your job

It's often the spark plug that keeps the motor humming—full speed, full power. And that means more security, greater opportunity for you—and for yours!

WHAT OTHERS THINK

SECRETARY—I work in a company that advertises a grocery product. That's what has made our office grow from 17 people to 27. I've been promoted twice in 3 years. Advertising helped.

FARMER—My prices depend on supply and demand. Good advertising seems to make folks buy more goods. So I guess in the long run advertising helps my product find a ready market at a good price.

PLUMBER—Since I've been advertising my shop I've added 2 men. It's helped my business and my income all right.

SALESMAN—Ads do the same kind of work salesmen do—sell more goods. My company's advertising certainly increases my volume of business. That means both safety and more income to me.

SHIPPING CLERK—When the ads run, we are busy and happy. When our outfit cuts down on advertising, first thing you know our business slacks off and they have to cut down on help.

Other Ways Advertising Helps You:

1. Brings you better goods for less money.
2. Makes shopping more pleasant and easier.
3. Has given us the world's highest standard of living.

Advertising... BY SELLING MORE GOODS TO MORE PEOPLE Makes your job more secure

CHOCTAW SPIKEMEN NIP FLORIDA STATE RIVALS

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 7.—(AP)—The Mississippi College Choctaws grabbed a slim lead early in the afternoon and then clung on to their margin to defeat the Florida State University Seminoles, 70 1/2 to 60 1/2, in a dual track meet here today.

The Seminoles pulled up to within five points of the Mississippians late in the meet and only needed a victory 1 the final relay, last event on the card, for a tie. The Choctaws, however, got off to a quick lead to take the race and the meet.

Brick Bradford of Florida State was high point man with firsts in the discus and shot put and a second in the javelin throw. Halton of Mississippi won the 100 and 220 yard dashes for second honors.

GRADES COME FIRST TO FLORIDA TENNIS COACH

GAINEVILLE, Fla., May 7.—(AP)—Florida's Tennis Coach Harry Fogleman believes strongly enough in brainwork in athletics to leave his number 1 and number 3 players at home while the team is taking a crack at the Southeastern Conference championship.

So Bill Oughterson (No. 1) and Warren D'Allessandro (No. 3) will not be along when the team goes to New Orleans.

Both are eligible under conference rules, but they are enrolled in the tough Florida law course and Fogleman doesn't believe they can afford to miss a week's work right now. The boys, like any other college athlete, would head for New Orleans tomorrow if the coach hadn't laid down the law.

The quartet who will represent Florida in the S. E. C. tournament are Berney Segal, Frank Wood, Frank Skillman and Jack Borling.

As students, the Gators have a scholastic average of better than a "C" grade. As tennis players, they have won 14 and lost four. Dual scraps are on deck against L. S. U. and Tulane before the tournament begins Thursday.

CLIPPERS HOSTS TO BONITA-JONES IN LEAGUE SCRAP

Lake Providence Appears In First Home Northeast Loop Game Today

LAKE PROVIDENCE, May 7.—(Special)—With the taste of victory still sweet in their mouths, the Lake Providence Clippers will attempt to please the home fans with more of the same Sunday afternoon when they play host to Bonita-Jones in American Legion Park here.

Sunday's tilt will mark the Clippers' initial home stand of the Northeast Louisiana League season. The Clips were to have opened with Monroe here last Sunday, but the weatherman threw cold water on those plans—both literally and figuratively—as a hard rain forced postponement of the clash.

However, the Lake Providence club got off to a good start by knocking off the Winnsboro Red Sox in Winnsboro by a score of 8-3 Wednesday night. A game slated against Oak Grove in Oak Grove Thursday afternoon was cancelled.

Manager Van Hicks, present Lake Providence High School baseball and basketball coach and a former Louisiana Tech star in both sports, will probably pin his home opening hopes on Southpaw Johnny Bruce, who hurled for the Ole Miss Rebels last year.

Game time is 3 o'clock, and a capacity crowd is expected to jam the

Big Eight League Opens Season With Four Games on Tap Today

First Contests Scheduled For Ruston, Sterlington, Dubach, Marion

RUSTON, May 7.—(AP)—(Special)—With all eight clubs boasting of their improvement, the Big Eight League will open its 1949 season today when each of its members launch a 28-game schedule in what is expected to be the most successful year ever.

Opening day tilts find the Ruston Rebels entertaining Bernice, Ruston Volunteers at Dubach, Hodge will journey to Marion, and Simsboro going to Sterlington.

Last year the Big Eight enjoyed a very successful year with the Ruston Volunteers, managed by Berry Hinton, winning the championship for their third straight pennant. The annual All-Star game will be played July 4, at Bernice.

Officials of the circuit include Larry Fox, president; Don Lomax, vice-president; G. L. McIlveene, treasurer; Raymond Jeffress, secretary; and Bobby Henderson, publicity. Bob Wynn is the umpire-in-chief.

The Vols will be without their star twirler, Tom Herrin, who entered professional baseball, but such hitters as Czzie Payne, Tobey Smith, "Round Man" Willett, and Berry Hinton will give them extra power at the plate.

The Ruston Rebels, managed by Huey Williamson, have been greatly strengthened by the addition of new players and possess a well-balanced ball club. The "Gashouse Gang" of Dubach is always a real contender and the hitting of "Nig" Roberson and Charles Colvin will give their opponents something to worry about.

Sterlington also has a good hitting team with such sluggers as Duncan, Tim Taylor, Gene Roswell, and Carl Guinn to help produce the hits and runs. They have a well-balanced pitching staff in Max Crow, Ed Higgs, "Lefty" Taylor, and Charlie Savage.

Manager Fenton of Hodge is well pleased over the performance of his young high school twirler, Wilson, against the Rebels recently in an exhibition game and believes he will develop into a topnotch hurler. Such reliables as Grady Staggs, Ronald Dennis, "Red" Woods, and Marvin Coleman will definitely make them hard to beat.

Bernice possesses one of the most powerful sluggers in the league in Glen Post, their manager. Henry Albritton, last year's most valuable Big 8 player, will share the pitching chores with Jesse Tucker, and Tanner, who are all first class twirlers. Lights were installed recently at Bernice, also they have always been known to produce fine ball clubs.

The dark-horses of the league, Simsboro and Marion, are determined to make a good showing and have been strengthened by new players. These two teams have the reputation of knocking off first division clubs and should be in the thick of the pennant race.

The league boasts a $797.95 bank account and a policy that encourages the development of high school, Legion, and college players. League rules do not permit paying ball players, thereby enabling youngsters to play without jeopardizing their amateur status.

$50,000 Per Keeps Gal Grappler In Groceries

By Frank Eck
(A.P. Newsfeatures Sports Editor)

NEWARK, N. J. Some people might say it's almost impossible for Mildred Burke to lose a wrestling match because her husband, Billy Wolfe, makes the matches. Of course, these people would be the ones who don't know the inside story.

Among the trade—the lady wrestlers' trade—they say Mildred Burke is tops in her field. She's never been thrown during her 13 years and though she weighs but 135 pounds she once tossed a 180-pound gal, Mae Young, in Houston, Tex.

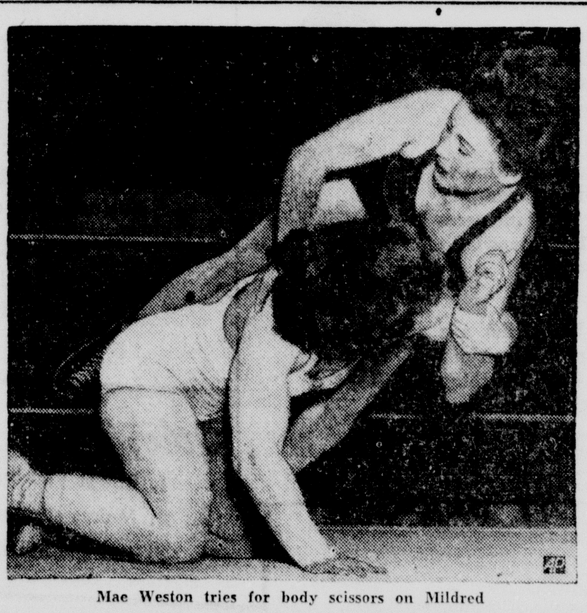

The 33-year-old five-foot-two blue-eyed matlady with auburn hair and sparkling blue eyes recalls a match she had in Mexico City a few years ago.

"I came up with a fever a few hours before," says Miss Burke. "I had a high temperature but had to wrestle. No substitute was available. My opponent took advantage by belting me in the stomach at the start of the match. It was the first time I ever crawled for the ropes to gasp for air. I really had the wind knocked out of me. When I returned to the ring I tossed her all around the ring. Each time she tried to submit I tossed her some more before I finally ended it. I certainly taught that girl a lesson."

Mildred gets a big kick out of wrestling, not to mention a comfortable living. She grosses about $50,000 a year, wrestling anywhere from three to six nights a week for eight months or 15 to 20 per cent of the gate. Her expenses come pretty high, like $4,500 every year for a new car on which she puts 100,000 miles, plus plane fare for a one-night stand hundreds of miles off her swing, hotel and meal bills and about $200 a week for phone calls.

MILDRED BURKE

Mae Weston tries for body scissors on Mildred

Born in Coffeeville, Kans., Miss Burke now lives in Los Angeles where she has bought two homes, one for her mother who, while Mildred is on tour, takes care of her 14-year-old son by a former marriage.

The lady wrestler with the waist of a follies girl and arm and shoulder muscles of a female Atlas, advises sports, even wrestling, for women.

"Wrestling for fun is good sport. Amateur wrestling keeps the body agile. But in pro wrestling it has got to be rough or the customers won't come out. They want showmanship and we give it to them. There's no fooling around and no feigning helplessness like with the men. And I think lady wrestling is much faster. There are about 100 female wrestlers in the country and about 16 are real good."

Miss Burke got her chance to become a wrestler almost 15 years ago in Kansas City. "I pestered Billy to let me wrestle with some amateurs. I weighed only 115 pounds then, Billy got so tired of me bothering him that one day he hired a gypsy boy for $1. He gave the boy instructions to throw me. I pinned the boy and soon turned pro.

"Billy decided to take me on tour. There weren't many women wrestlers then so I wrestled against men weighing 125 pounds. In some towns we had to put ads asking for matches with men within ten pounds of my weight."

Toughest match she ever had was against Betty Nichols at Columbus, O., back around 1938. "In the first match she blackened my eye and the bout was so rough it was stopped after 20 minutes," says Mildred. "The next week we went 30 minutes to a draw. In the third match I defeated her in about 18 minutes. Betty was so broken hearted she gave up wrestling."

Mildred has had both knees banged up, both thumbs dislocated and has a scar on her left eyelid. Yet in everyday attire she would pass for a Sunday school teacher.

There are only six states in which women do not wrestle. They are New York, California, Connecticut, Michigan, Illinois and Kansas, says Wolfe. "It's not illegal in those states," he adds.

"It's just that they don't give licenses to women."

Miss Burke seldom loses her head even when some opponent plays the villain, as her rivals often do. But there was the time in Toledo when she kicked the referee.

"The announcer immediately informed the crowd that the commission had fined me $5 for kicking the referee," recalls Mildred. "Some fan sent up a $10 bill with a note to give the money to the referee with another kick to boot. I handed the $10 to the referee and said, 'Here, I have another kick coming.'"

Here's an idea of her schedule on a recent eastern tour: Friday—Philadelphia; Saturday—Trenton; Monday—Camden; Tuesday—Baltimore; Wednesday—Washington; Thursday—New Brunswick; Friday—Neward and Saturday—Teaneck, N. J.

She makes only two or three showings a year in the same city. "Too many appearances would kill the sport," she says. She's booked until June and already has a booking for December in the Boston Garden where she's shown her full Nelson, hammer holds and alligator clutch before 14,000 fans.

RADIO STATIONS PIERCE CURTAIN

British, American Broadcasters Team Up To Force Way Into Russia

LONDON, May 7.—(AP)—By sheer force of numbers, British and American radio stations fired their Russian-blockade broadcasts through a jamming curtain into the Soviet Union today, the British Broadcasting Corporation declared.

About one-fourth of the 61 stations joining in the unprecedented peacetime propaganda campaign got through "completely clear of interference," a B. B. C. spokesman said. About a third of the others were clear at the start, but ran into a wall of noise at some time, he added.

By coincidence, the break through attempt began when Russia was celebrating "Radio Day," the day she declares a Russian first demonstrated radio reception in 1895. Western histories generally credit an Italian, Guglielmo Marconi, with the invention.

The B. B. C. and George V. Allen, U. S. assistant secretary of state in Washington, announced yesterday they were starting a campaign to break through a set of "very powerful jamming stations." They said the Russians have been trying to prevent British and American broadcasts from being heard by the Russian people. Heavy jamming started April 24, just before the first news of negotiations to end the Berlin blockade.

Americans broadcasts beamed to Russia today said "obviously somebody considers it dangerous to permit the Soviet people to listen to truthful information from a free radio."

British broadcasts included an extended review of British press comment on the jamming.

The B. B. C. beamed 21 new stations on the Russians today, making a total of 25. The United States turned on 36—26 more than usual. All were of different wave lengths, with the idea of sieving through the jamming stations.

Among the stations joining in the campaign were the U. S. armed forces' two powerful 100,000-watt transmitters at Munich and Stuttgart, Germany.

S. P. Bergere, director of Voice of America for Europe, said in Frankfurt: "We are very certain we are getting into Russia. In certain we are of Russia, our signal is louder than theirs."

The two stations beam Voice of America broadcasts across the iron curtain daily from midnight to 5 a.m., when normally they would be off the air.

Bergere said the Russians had been trying to interfere with the two stations for some time, "but their efforts increased when the blockade discussions started. "

The Russian press kept silent on the negotiations to end the Berlin blockade until Thursday, when it was announced with comment that the traffic restrictions would be knocked down May 12.

Bergere said the Russians have 30 to 50 jamming transmitters.

"Almost daily we are changing our tactics and procedures," he said. "We follow no set pattern. They don't know what we are going to do tomorrow—or the next day. Every time we change, it takes them from 30 minutes to five hours to get their jamming effective."

The B. B. C. spokesman said some of the 61 stations, especially the American ones, ran into heavier interference today, but the jamming stations were too busy to obliterate all.

The U. S. state department said the interference "follows a pattern similar to the systematic jamming of short-wave broadcasts."

Moscow's Radio Day observance was marked by an assertion in Izvestia, the government newspaper, that the world's first regular broadcast was from a 12-kilowatt Soviet station in August, 1922, four months before the first British broadcast. The paper said experimental broadcasts were made earlier in 1919. The claim was repeated that a Russian, Alexander Popov, invented radio, and another Russian, Prof. Rosing, was 10 to 15 years ahead of American and British scientists with television.

Station KDKA in Pittsburgh, generally credited with being the first radio station in the United States, made its first broadcast on Nov. 2, 1920.

kow on the Peiping-Hankow railway, while Anyang is 75 miles farther north.

(The Nationalists had reported as long ago as April 16 that the Reds were hotly attacking Sinsiang. Isolated for months, it and Anyang evidently put up unexpectedly strong defenses.

(This may have been a major factor in the Communist failure to assault Hankow, central China's "Chicago," when they roared across the Yangtze April 20. Now that these two blocks on the railway have been eliminated, the peril of Hankow may grow quickly.

(Fossibly the best of the remaining government armies, the 200,000-man force of Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi, is based at Hankow, but has been reported preparing to retreat southward towards Canton.)

In a dispatch from Canton, the government's provisional capital the official central news agency said the legislative Yuan approved a plan to organize and equip nine armies for Canton's defense.

(It did not say how these armies were to be manned or armed.)

Central news also said the legislative Yuan planned soon to "clarify its attitude towards the Communists." (It did not hint whether this would be a statement of further defiance, of conciliation, or just what).

Shanghai, though under the Red threat, remained preoccupied with its financial crisis. The demand for usable cash was so great that holders of U. S. currency were getting a 25 per cent bonus for cashing certified checks.

The streets swarmed with wage-earners who were trying to sell assorted commodities—everything except food—that their employers had given them in lieu of pay.

Business Outlook Clouded By Strife In Labor Camps

By G. A. Phillips

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—The business outlook was clouded by growing labor strife this week.

The Ford strike and numerous smaller ones now dotting the scene come at a time when industry—the automobile and steel makers, excepted—are battling a strong post-war deflationary tide with none too much success.

Any prolonged interruption in a major industry at this time would pile up confusion in the business world and score telling blows on business sentiment.

And any new wage increases in basic manufacturing such as steel would do much to reverse the trend to get costs down to the point where buyers will become interested in the nation's growing pile of manufactured goods.

High prices have kept many consumers from buying anything except essentials. This has received the principal credit for bringing on the most pronounced recession since the national economy was freed of wartime controls.

In recent weeks, however, signs have become more numerous that the super cautious buying policy was changing. Orders were coming in all the way from the corner store to the manufacturing level. That meant inventories were being replenished for the fall season and that most people had concluded prices were becoming stabilized.

Any increase in basic manufacturing costs at the first level of production is certain to find its way all through the entire distribution and selling system and will result in a higher price tag at retail. A little bit of this is all that will be needed to send purchasing agents back to the sidelines and intensify the drop in business.

A. W. Zelomek, widely recognized as an authority in the retail field, told a group of Texas business men that further reductions in prices is the key to the entire business situation at the moment.

"The speed with which the present business recession runs its course depends chiefly on the alacrity with which durable goods producers are able to get their costs and selling prices down," the chief economist for the international statistical bureau said.

"This applies to all kinds of durable goods—automobiles, new homes, refrigerators, other major appliances, furniture, etc. Substantial price reductions in many textile apparel items have already stimulated demand this spring, and there is no doubt a large level of demand remains for consumers' durable goods when prices are brought down to lower levels."

Highlights of this week's business chart included another dip in industrial production; additional price drops in metals, lumber, hardware, industrial chemicals and other lines that have heretofore successfully resisted the lower trend in food and clothing. Retail trade improved a bit over the previous week but was again under the 1948 period. Business loans continued to sag. There was an improvement, however, in the inventory situation.

The authorities acted on orders from Fudickar.

The club boasted a membership of approximately five hundred.

The club operated thusly: A membership card could be purchased for two dollars and the name of the new members was placed at the bottom of a list. The new member in turn was expected to get two other members. The person at the top of the list was awarded the collected membership at each meeting. Then his name would return to the bottom of the list.

Henry Carroll, proprietor of the auditorium, denied Friday night that he had anything to do with the club other than renting the building and being a member.

WESTERN

a plenary session of the constitutional convention tomorrow will touch off Germany's first general election campaign—except for the Soviet zone—since 1933.

Even the 1933 election offered little more than an opportunity to cast a "ja" ballot for the Nazis. The last really contested general election was in 1933.

Since the war, Germans have had a chance to regain election experience in state and local elections.

The constitutional convention set the stage for final adoption of the constitution by rushing it through a second reading in a seven-hour session last night.

This energetic action, after eight months of sometimes desultory debates, followed quickly upon the announcement that the Soviet zone blockade would be lifted Thursday and that the Russian, British, French and American foreign ministers would meet May 23.

Some of the delegates were rattled by the pace. They said they hardly knew which of the 147 articles they were voting on. One said, after participating in a vote that abolished capital punishment, he thought he had been voting on a tax measure.

Convention delegates said they expected only minor changes, if any, will be made in the constitution in the third and final reading starting at 3 p.m. (8 a.m. Eastern Standard Time) tomorrow.

The third reading, however, will designate the German flag. It is expected to consist of black, red and gold horizonal stripes—the flag of the old Weimar republic.

This symbol of the German Democratic era that preceded Hitlerism also has been chosen as the official flag by the Soviet zone.

The convention may put off naming the capital. Chief contestants for the honor are Frankfurt and Bonn, Rhine River University city and birthplace of Beethoveen.

CIVIL SERVICE

the second world war, he added, was the placing of enlisted men on court's martial.

Green hailed this latter move as a means of aiding discipline by familiarizing enlisted men with military justice.

At today's final session, newly elected officers and board members were inducted into office.

Officers are President Henry P. Dart, Jr., of New Orleans, Vice-President George T. Madison of Bastrop, and Secretary-Treasurer John Pat Little of New Orleans.

Members of the board of governors are Alex F. Smith of Shreveport, John Dainos of Baton Rouge, C. Ellis Ott of Bogalusa, Alvin O. King of Lake Charles, Cliffe E. Laborde, Jr., of Marksville, and Clarence J. Morrow, Rudolph A. Peyregne, James Skelly Wright and William W. Meyers, all of New Orleans.

ACCIDENTS HIGH BUT DEATHS ARE FALLING

BATON ROUGE, La., May 7.—(AP)—There were more accidents but fewer traffic deaths on Louisiana's highways during the first four months of 1949 than during the same period a year ago.

The figures were released today by State Director of Public Safety J. Goldman Grant. This year through April, he said, state police investigated 1,650 as compared with 1,350 accidents in the first four months of 1948. Fatalities dropped from 120 in 1948 to 106 in 1948, he added.

"We are encouraged with the small drop in fatalities but, considering the large increase in the number of accidents, we are inclined to believe that a lot of people have been lucky," Grant said.

Pedestrian fatalities—18 for the period—were seven higher than a year ago, he noted, warning that the same traffic rules apply whether a person is driving or afoot.

"Drivers should consider the pedestrian and his problems," the official said, "because just as soon as that motorist parks his automobile he becomes a pedestrian himself. A little courtesy on the part of both the motorist and pedestrian will go a long way in cutting down our death rate."

Grant said the state department of highways is posting signs noting speed limits throughout the state. He reminded that the limits are 60 miles per hour for automobiles, 40 for trucks and 55 for buses.

During the whole of 1948, he said, 1,700 persons were injured in 524 accidents reported.

MRS. FAULK

she devoted three years to work on the ARC Board.

Her interest in religious activities has included untiring efforts and generous financial assistance to churches for both white and colored people. She is a charter member of the Memorial Presbyterian Church West Monroe, and has helped in the erection of the McClendon Baptist Church in the rural section.

Furthering education, Mrs. Faulk was deeply interested in the establishment of the West Monroe branch of the Ouachita Public Library and the procurement of a bookmobile which could serve the needs of people in rural areas.

She has held both local and state offices in the DAR, the presidency of the Alturian Book Club, of which she is a charter member, and she is an honorary member of the Pilot Club of Monroe.

Through her work with these organizations and the influence of her Christian life upon all those with whom she associated, the judges felt that Mrs. Faulk exemplified leadership, unselfishness, desire to assist underprivileged and that she had the vision to plan for the future of the community.

Mrs. Faulk is the mother of three children, Clarence E. Faulk, Jr., of Ruston, owner and publisher of the Ruston Daily Leader and owner of radio station KRUS; Mrs. M. F. Cone, the former Eleanor Faulk of Washington, D. C., who will soon accompany her husband, Lt. Col. Cone to Paris, where he will be stationed; Robert Faulk, pilot on Delta Airlines, Atlanta, Ga.

Her four grandchildren are: Clarence III, Page and Amelia, children of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Faulk, Jr., and Michael Cone. Her sister, Mrs. Katie Morrice, is a well known West Monroe resident.

A native of Ouachita parish, Mrs. Faulk is the daughter of Josephine M. Lillier, New Orleans, and R. W. McClendon, Ouachita parish. Since her marriage she and Mr. Faulk have made their home in West Monroe.

As a symbol of fine qualities, Mrs. Faulk received a sterling bowl bearing the inscription: "Woman of the Year, 1948-49 Inter-Club Council Award." It was presented by Mrs. Erlene Adams of Altrusa Club, who said, "The three clubs feel that the judges made the best possible decision."

Speaker of the evening was Mrs. Fadra Holmes Wilson, professor of education and psychology at Louisiana State University, who was introduced by Miss Nona Martin, district governor of Pilot International. Mrs. Wilson stressed the importance of service clubs in teaching youth the proper use of leisure time. The true value of leisure, she said, is measured by what we do with it; by whether it lifts us or lowers us in the great world, not of material but of spiritual values.

Leisure is a modern factor in the United States, as far as education is concerned, Mrs. Wilson asserted. The iron man and other forms of science spell opportunity for leisure. Service groups have unlimited means to show young people what can be created through leisure. They may help to show that sin is ugly; that creative work mat be beautiful and lovely, she explained.

The speaker warned against the use of dont's instead of do's. Groups should create places where leisure may be spent in wholesome fashion—dancing, swimming and other healthy recreation.

Democracy can stand the test of war. But can democracy stand the test of uninspired leisure, she asked. "It is up to us to create a civilization that does not degenerate under leisure." This can be accomplished only by setting in operation forces making for a culture that recognizes that leisure is and must be a means and not an end, Mrs. Wilson concluded.

The program also included an invocation by the Rev. Lea Joyner, assistant pastor of the First Methodist Church and honary member of the Pilot Club of Monroe; vocal numbers by eight girls of the Ouachita Parish High School choir, directed by Miss Velma Nichols, and piano music by Mrs. Melba Liner. Serving as toastmistress was Mrs. Taunton Veazey, president of the Iinter-Club Council and member of Quota Club. She was presented by Mrs. Adrienne Carr, president of the local Altrusa Club. The program was arranged under direction of Dr. Irma Jones of the Pilot Club of Monroe.

Lebow. The donation is said to represent 10 percent of the final cost of the vehicle. The wheel chair will be sold at the end of the trip.

Lebow averages 15 miles a day. His chair is equipped with a speedometer, thermos bottle, raincoat, a few tools and an oil can. New wheels were added in Dallas but this is expected to comprise the only equipment change required. Lebow, a former hotel clerk in his home town, is accompanied on the trip by a cousin who travels in an auto to be on hand in case of need. Lebow is 43, widower, and is father of a daughter.

He will arrive sometime this week in Monroe and his making good progress this way over Highway 80. He was in Shreveport last Tuesday.

Dr. Julian C. Miller, horticultural research director, L. S. U. agricultural experiment station, announces something new under the sun. It is a yam with a future. Known as L-241, it is said to have a figure all its own. Dr. Miller assures it is excellent in cooking, highly resistent to wilt disease, moderately so as to soil rot, reasonably high in solids and nearly twice as high in pro-vitamin A content as its nearest rivals.

The Amvets Auxiliary will leave shortly after noon today for Alexandria where they will give a program at the Veterans' Hospital. Members of local bands will be included and a number of young women will make the trip and will aid in the entertainment of the disabled veterans. The purpose is to spread a little cheer on Mother's Day among men whose lives are sorely in need of all possible attention that can be paid them. One of the leaders in the party that is to make the trip today is Mrs. Allen Ritter. The party will leave from 3603 Blanks street promptly at 1 p.m.

Congratulations to John Sherrouse, Jr., who has just been elected to head the Twin City Community Chest for the ensuing year. He will succeed A. B. Patterson. Other officers elected are: Ben Parnell, vice-president, and Jake Pickens, treasurer. The board of directors includes the following new members added: Mrs. Adrianne Carr, Lee Hodges, Rev. Ernest Duncan Holloway, H. L. Rosenhein, Ben Parnell and Robert W. Dumm.

The pound master, telephone 6100, has four rather desirable dogs that are in his custody over the week-end. He describes them as follows: One police and chow, mixed breed; one red chow; an Airedale, white and brown, and a white and brown English bull dog. These are obtainable by paying the charges at the pound.

Latest campus rival of the Pow Wow, Northeast Junior College newspaper, is the Leader, official organ of the R. O. T. C. The four-page publication was started on a purely experimental basis, explained Sgt. 1/c Claude M. Allen of the college military department and adviser to the Leader staff.

Purpose of the little paper is "to carry news of all cadet activities to the boys," the sergeant said.

hTe first issue to be placed on the small news rack under the cadet bulletin board in the library building appeared March 1. Since then the Leader staff has turned out an issue each Friday.

It is still in the embryo stage, but Sergeant Allen is hoping to recruit a larger staff next fall. At present all work is done by a small group headed by Max Funderburk, with Clark Matkins and Edgar Hawkins as reporters. Vasco Tefas is responsible for the colorful front page designs featuring military insignia, while Ben Hair's cartoons found on the back page are used to burlesque military life.

The 6 by 8 inch paper is called a "fox hole" edition, and is run off on a ditto machine.

in a while" to investigate the speed-up charge.

But Ford had a different version of the strike. In a letter to all 135,000 employes, he said countless thousands of workers and company customers were being "unjustly penalized" by the walkout.

Company officials "cannot understand why a strike was called," he said, "unless it was promoted by some political situation within the union."

Ford said there had been "a great deal of loose talk about a so-called speed-up."

"Any time the health and safety of any Ford employe are endangered," he continued, "we want to know about it—and fix it immediately.

"Moreover, from the point of view of any sane management, 'speed-ups' are silly."

The U. A. W. contends that Ford has been working employes on one assembly line five to ten per cent faster than other auto companies in an effort to gain a competitive advantage.

As smaller picket lines were set up for the week-end, threats of additional plant shutdowns and worker layoffs began to mount.

Ford has said that if the strike goes on another week virtually all its 49 plants across the nation would be closed. It already has announced that 8,000 employes would be laid off Monday at plants in St. Louis, Metuchen, N. J., Los Angeles, Minnesapolis-St. Paul and Iron Mountain.

An additional 3,500 major supplier firms eventually would be affected, the company said.

One such firm, Ferro Machine in Cleveland, already has laid off 2,000 workers.

Ford reiterated in his letter his belief that the dispute should be settled either by direct negotiation or arbitration.

He insisted, however, that "this company now and always will hold to its right—fairly and firmly guaranteed under our contract—to establish work standards which will assure effieient operation without impairing in any way the health or safety of our employes."

"I am sorry," he added, "this strike had to happen."

General Practitioner Given Bright Future In Medicine

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—(AP)—Far from being a horse and buggy doctor, the general practitioner has a bright future as a "general specialist."

That's what Dr. E. C. Texter of Detroit, Mich., president of the American Academy of General Practice, told Louisiana physicians today.

He described the value of the "general specialist" as a key medical man to route patients to the right consultant in the right special field.

Dr. Texter said "the general practitioner must overcome quite a handicap in competing with the specialist in the city with his scalpel, his fancy equipment and his suite of offices."

"The public has fallen for all this drama," he continued, "and has demanded it, instead of going to a good general practitioner who could decide whether or not a specialist is required and if so, in what field, when and where."

Dr. Texter said that in reviewing 100 hospital cases, it was found that the patient had gone to 3.7 specialists.

"That means increased costs and increased waiting time," he added. "It encourages the government to stress that one-fourth of the nation is not getting the best care, instead of the fact that three-fourths get the best care in the world."

Dr. Texter spoke as the Louisiana State Medical Society concluded a three-day session here. And the Louisiana Academy of General Practice held its initial session.

Dr. D. B. Barber of Alexandria was nominated as president of the latter group, with elections scheduled at the final meeting tomorrow.

Officers elected during the day by the Louisiana Pediatric Society were Dr. W. B. Worley, Shreveport, president; Dr. J. E. Bailey, New Orleans, president-elect; Dr. Bertha N. Wexler, New Orleans, secretary, and Dr. J. E. Strange, New Orleans, treasurer.

yacht at Dayonta Beach yesterday, and was booked and held at the county jail at nearby Deland until Palm Beach authorities came to remove him.

"We were completely in love and I would never harm her," said Hammer in his jail cell at Deland. "Andrea tripped and fell coming aboard the boat, cutting her face and injuring her arm."

Hammer asserted their relations were amiable after the incident, that she had recovered from the accident and had been with him in Daytona Beach until Thursday when she left without explanation. A mild argument over disposition of their race horses might have caused her to depart, he said.

e The Hammers own Marchons 2nd, famous Argentine thoroughbred, and several less known race horses. They raced their stable at Hialeah Park, Miami, this winter.

Hammer blamed Charles Francis Coe, West Palm Beach attorney and newspaper editor who is Mrs. Hammer's counsel, for issuance of the warrant and her return to Palm Beach. Coe, however, declared:

"I had no knowledge of her return until she called me from the airport."

Edgar F. Luckenbach, Jr., owner of the steamship line and Mrs. Hammer's brother, flew here in a chartered plane from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., today. He said he heard that his sister was beaten only yesterday, and come as quickly as he could "to be of every assistance."

The Hammers lived quietly in Palm Beach during the past winter. She is a noted sports fisherman.

Her affidavit declared that Hammer was extremely abusive, had a cold attitude, and harbored the illusion that her family—especially her brother Edgar—was trying to taker her fortune away from her.

She inherited somewhat more than $3,000,000 in her own right from her father's estate.

Hammer is her third husband. Her first was to a butter and egg salesman, William F. Dobbs, over the objections of her father. They were divorced in 1944.

Next she married John Doerr, Baltimore lawyer and military hero who, she met while he was stationed in Florida. They were divorced in 1946, and the following year she married Hammer.

Hammer was noted as a horseman, and the couple was often seen at horse shows and the races.

MILITARY PERSONEL WILL GET PAY BOOST

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—A pay boost for nearly everybody in the armed services except the lowest enlisted men was voted today by a house armed services subcommittee.

It approved a bill that would grant raises varying from a little over three percent for first class privates up to nearly 50 percent for a brigadier general. The average would be about 14 percent.

The ordinary privates, recruits and apprentices would get nothing extra. The bill also would wipe out family allowances for enlisted men.

RIVER SWALLOWS SIX GRAVES IN CEMETERY

DENHAM SPRINGS, La., May 7.—(AP)—The Amite river has swallowed six graves from the century-old Amite Baptist Church Cemetery near here.

The church membership at a meeting last night adopted resolutions asking state and federal officials for help in checking the inroads of the river.

The Rev. R. L. Cook, pastor, said he hoped piling could be driven along the river bank to save the rest of the cemetery and the church. A slice of land including the graves and a large live oak tree was washed away during the past few days, he said.

FLOODWATERS REST IN LUBBOCK, TEX.

LUBBOCK, Texas, May 7.—(AP)—Floodwaters rose into 200 Lubbock homes and took one life today, raising Texas' violent weather toll to five dead and 36 injured.

Two were dead and five were injured at tornado-stricken Sundown, Texas, 45 miles west of Lubbock. Property damage there was estimated at $100,000. Fifteen homeless families were being cared for.

A loaded Greyhound bus crashed during a rain and hailstorm in Mitchell county killing one passenger, T. M. Harris of Odessa, Texas, and injuring 31 others.

At Lockney, Mrs. W. F. Pierce was killed by lightning.

Lubbock had a torrential downpour measuring 5.13 inches. Water rose in the business district and the lower residential districts.

Mrs. Ira Duke was electrocuted when she pulled a light cord after water came into her house.

His physician, Dr. Guy Tinkley, said York is a "pretty sick" man.

WIFE'S FEAR IS HUSBAND'S DEATH

Woman Severs Spouse's Head After Thinking Of 'Injustices Of Years'

SHELL LAKE, Wis., May 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Phillip Conley, 45, who said she beheaded her husband with an axe, because she feared him, was charged with first degree murder today.

She waived preliminary hearing when arraigned in municipal court at Spooner and was bound over to circuit court for trial.

Following her brief court appearance, Mrs. Conley was brought back to the Washburn county jail here. District Attorney Ward Winton said she would remain there pending disposition of his contemplated petition to have her taken to the Wisconsin General Hospital in Madison for mental observation.

Sheriff Floyd Bannister said Conley's body, his head nearly severed, was found last night in a bed at Conley farm three miles north of Shell Lake. Coroner Harry Dahl said Conley's jugular vein and the vertebrae of his neck had been cut through. He said a bloody axe, found in the barnyard, was used in the killing.

Dahl said first word of the slaying came after Mrs. Conley had gone to a neighboring farm and told them what had happened. The neighbors called the officers. The couple's two children—Michael, 19, and Margaret, 16, were absent at the time.

District Attorney Winton said Mrs. Conley told this story:

"I have lived in fear of my husband for many years. He has beaten me and the children. Lately he has been buying liquor. I have been forced to go to work to support the family.

"At suppertime he refused to come to the table but lay on the bed fully clothed. I don't know what happened. But all of a sudden all of the injustices that have been piling up made me so insanely mad I grabbed the axe."

Neighbors said both Conleys were college graduates, the wife of Sinsinawa Convent in southern Wisconsin and Columbia University. Conley was absent from home much of the wartime period on construction projects in Guam, Alaska and other foreign places. Michael, the son, is a veteran of World War II.

WESTERNERS

full four-power meeting. He will sit down with Russia's Andrei Vishinsky, Britain's Ernest Bevin and Robert Schumann of France.

The state department said it was logical the preliminary three-power talks should be held since the western powers had agreed only last month on their own program for western Germany. This includes the establishment—against bitter Russian objection—of a western German government.

A similar line was followed in London where a foreign office spokesman said the three-power discussions "are the result of contacts" among Bevin, Schumann and Acheson in the earlier Washington conference.

It was in the Washington meeting that the west finally achieved complete agreement on Germany. Then when Germans accepted the plans to set up their own government, Russia announced willingness to lift the blockade of Berlin provided mainly that the western nations would agree to a CFM meeting.

Some officials here believe that the Soviets hoped thereby to throw a monkey wrench into the western German political machinery in that they looked to the foreign ministers meetings at least to test and at most to disrupt the unity among the western powers.

Perhaps only after the Russians have sounded western strength and determination on whatever issues they choose to put forward can the west finally determine the Soviet attitude. This may bring out whether the Russians are prepared to make substantial concessions in their position on Germany and agree to the unification of the eastern and western zones.

No formal statement was made here on the three-power talks. London and Paris officials like those in Washington, generally treated the development casually. Some diplomats expected that Moscow, with a ready eye for a propaganda break, will come out with a "ganging up" charge in a few days. Such charges have been made by the Soviets before.

In fact, aside from the agreement that the Berlin blockade will be lifted Thursday and the CFM will meet in Paris 11 days thereafter officials here found little new evidence to reinflate the outlook for a new period of east-west harmony which the agreement itself had inspired earlier this week.

In Germany the Communists pleaded for non-Communist western German leaders to halt formation of their proposed new state for the western zones. But the western German leaders in effect said "no." At Bonn they completed all but the formalities for adopting a west German constitution and western military governors are expected to approve the constitution at Frankfurt Tuesday.

Speculation on the issues to come up in the foreign ministers meeting covers a variety of possible proposals by the Russians designed to minimize western influence in Germany and to block complete western control over the vital Ruhr production area.

PRESIDENT IS 65 YEARS OLD TODAY

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—President Truman will be 65 tomorrow.

It also will be the fourth anniversary of the day he announced the war had been won in Europe.

On the eve of his birthday, Mr. Truman was described by his physician, Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, "as close to being an iron man as anyone I know at his age."

Asserting the president "works too hard," Graham added: "I don't know how he does it and keeps so cheerful and full of pep."

WOMEN KEGLERS HANDED AWARDS FOR YEAR'S WORK

Championship Teams And Individual Winners Recognized At Supper

Trophies and medals in recognition of outstanding bowling play during the season here were awarded last night at the annual banquet of the members of the Ladies' League of the Monroe Bowling Association.

The Clyde Nash Insurance trophy for the league championship was presented by Nash to Morris Johnson, sponsor of the titled Clover Leaf Dairy keglers, and individual medals were presented by the league to Ella Cash, Norma Brown, Freddie DeCelle, Ella Johnson, and Rosie Joiner, members of the titled outfit.

W. L. Rothermel, serving as toastmaster, extended special recognition to the outgoing officers of the league, Irma Lee Peddy, president; Norma Brown, vice-president; Louise Massey, secretary; Lucille Knipping, treasurer; and to the new president, Ella Johnson; secretary, Claudie Stockwell; and sergeant-at-arms, Ella Cash. Mrs. Knipping was returned as league treasurer.

At the same time the City Tournament trophy was presented to Hazel Painich, member of the winning Silverstein's team; and recognition for individual tournament accomplishments went to Hulda Banford, singles champion; Hazel Painich, high game winner; and Colleen Dent and Pearl Lofton, doubles champions.

Medals were presented to Norma Brown, Clover Leafs, for the league's high series of the season and also the best average. Betty Mallery, Howard Brothers, won the medal for high game of the season, a 235.

Comic statuettes were passed out, adding humor to the gathering. One such presentation was made to the last place club, and the others went to Cecil and Lucille Massey for no other reason than they laughed louder than anyone else (in the toastmaster's opinion) as the gift to the last place team was made.

Eleven members of the league were cited for never having missed a bowling date all season. They were Ella Cash, Hazel Painich, Freddie DeCelle, Nettie Mae Spurlock, Claudia Stockwell, Ruth Sparks, Jackie Mang, Julia Bryan, Margaret Pitts, Lois Waldroup, and Ella Johnson.

The guest speaker for the occasion was Edna Meek, president of the Louisiana Women's Bowling Association. She made a brief talk on the value of sportsmanship and urged the women to keep their bowling on a sportmanship basis at all times.

The league also recognized L. B. Herron, operator of Herron's Bowling Lanes where their league activity took place; to Charles Snowden, foul official for the lanes; and to Paul Martin, News-Star—World sports editor.

Entertaining musical features were offered by Bertie Ann Cash and Marjorie Russ, and a piano solo by Margaret Pitts who also accompanied the singing skits of Misses Cash and Russ.

Erskine Johnson: IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD —(NEA)— "Sunset Boulevard" has been shooting for two weeks, but Billy Wilder and Charley Brackett still haven't written the final scenes for the picture. They never do.

"We've got five different endings," Billy told me, "and we can use any of them. We'll see how it plays first."

They did the same thing with "A Foreign Affair." When Millard Mitchell, as the colonel, turned in such a swell performance, they wrote an ending featuring him.

There's a reconciliation just around the corner for Kirk Douglas and his wife, Diana . . . A nurse accompanied Jane Greer on that Mexico trek to complete "The Big Steal." Jane's expecting her second child within a few weeks.

Marie Wilson will collect $15,000 lending her name and figure to a new type waterproof bathing suit.

Peggy Cummins and Derek Dunnett, heir to an English fortune, will announce their engagement in London this summer. He just returned to England after visiting here. . . . The Theater Guild is talking to June Havoc and Desi Arnaz about co-starring in "Round Trip to Cuba."

Do or Dye

Note from Lee Anderson at the Palm Springs Tennis Club:

"You left us too soon. You should have seen a girl in a violet-colored bathing suit diving into our pool. Within three minutes the water in the pool turne dviolet. The girl fled in embarrassment and we haven't seen her since."

Jimmy Durante is warbling a new tune, "My Girl Friends Don't Want My Money," Really?

John Payne and Gloria de Haven have agreed on a property settlement . . . French capital is backing construction of a new film studio on the Riviera. It will be for the use of Hollywood studios using up overseas frozen funds . . . Paul Muni will do the Lee Cobb role in "Death of a Salesman" on the London stage.

Phil Pemberton can take a bow for Paramount's new product trailer, "Eyes on Hollywood." Not just because I'm in it, either.

Bette Davis' husband, Willliam Grant Sherry, opened his first one-man art show at the British-American Art Center in New York. The exhibit features a painting of their young daughter, Barbara.

Paramount is disturbed over the Bea Wain-Andre Baruch short, "Mr. and Mrs. Music." The studio has a film in the works for Bing titled "Mr. Music" and they don't like the title similarity.

Paramount is after the film rights to Sinclair Lewis' "Kingsblood Royal" for Macdonald Carey. . . Bruce Bennett, who was Herman Brix, the Olympic shot-putting champ, is shooting a home film series starring his 2-year-old son, titled "How To Train Children to Be Athletes."

Howard Duff and Ava Gardner are off to the Riviera Pacifico in Ensenada for magazine layouts against Mexican backgrounds.

Desert Memories (I'm going back to Hollywood):

MONROE INVADING COLUMBIA TODAY

The Monroe Sports journey to Columbia today for their second venture in the Northeast Louisiana League against the league-leading Columbia Ramblers in a game scheduled to begin at 3 o'clock.

The rest of the Monroe lineup will be Doyle Penton, second base; Tommy Danks, third base; "Red" Holley, center field; Jerry Gregg, shortstop; Swayze, right field; Phillips, left field; and Emmett Long, first base.

General Manager James L. Malone at the same time announced the next week's slate for the Sports, giving changes in home games until such time as a park is available for their own home contests. Today's game at Columbia is a Monroe "home" game. Wednesday night the Sports visit Winnsboro for another home date. Regularly scheduled games are at Oak Grove Thursday afternoon, beginning at 4 o'clock, and next Sunday at Urania.

"We appreciate the cooperation of Winnsboro and Columbia in showing us consideration in changing out home playings sites," Malone said. "Without their help we would be in a tough situation with no park yet ready at home, and the outlook indefinite as to when the proposed park will be ready."

'Boss' Hague Is Aimed Again At N. J. Political Control

JERSEY CITY, N. J., May 7.—(AP)—Frank Hague—the boss—is back on the campaign trail.

Those are the words you hear today in this industrial city, one of the nation's Democratic bastions known for old line rough and tumble politics.

The septuagenarian Democratic leader who has been in semi-retirement the past two years isn't a candidate for office. He's stumping for his ticket in Tuesday's city commission election.

It's one of the toughest battles of Hague's stormy career which dates back some 30 years when he climbed into the driver's seat of the tightly-knit Democratic organization.

The veteran political chieftain has pulled out all the stops to win the fight. Numerous personal appearances, aerial displays, parades, rallies, and other hoopla employed during Hague's hey-day have been the order of the day.

The city commission election may well hold the key to the political future of Hague who always has been able to deliver tremendous Democratic majorities from Jersey City in state and national elections.

Should he lose in Jersey City, Hague's chances of electing a Democratic governor this fall will suffer. His continuance as state leader and national Democratic vice-chairman also may be affected.

Two years ago the 73-year-old Hague stopped down as mayor of this crowded city of 300,000 persons across the Hudson river from New York City. He had been mayor since 1917.

He turned over the reign to his nephew, Frank Hague Eggers, who now is mayor and heads the Hague ticket in the city election.

The boss moved out of the political spotlight. He kept his hands on the throttle of the Democratic machinery but let his younger lieutenants blow the whistle. Since 1947 his deep, thumping voice has been heard mostly in the background in city, state and national campaigns.

But now, smelling political blood, the iron-fisted Hague is again in the center of the platform.

Old timers say this election is one of the bitterest ever. There are four tickets in the field. Most observers agree the fight is between th incumbent Hague forces and the freedom ticket, a fusion group.

Five commissioners to serve four years are to be elected.

The fusion slate is headed by John V. Kenny, a wealthy contractor and one-time protege of Hague. In fact, Kenny's father introduced Hague into politics.

The fusionists charge that Hague is a dictator, trying to set up a dynasty.

The Hague forces retort that if they are defeated, the underworld with accompanying vice and immorality will take over the city.

Outsiders aren't rushing to pick the winner. Insiders are divided—depending on whose camp they are in.

What About YOUR PAY CHECK AND ADVERTISING?

Perhaps You've Never Heard It Explained This Simply Before

YOU'LL agree that the advertising you see and hear has one main purpose . . . to sell goods and services.

When a company sells more goods or services, there's just naturally more work to be done in that company. That means more jobs, better jobs, more security, more chance for promotion.

What's more, the mines and mills and farms and businesses that supply that firm also have more work to do. So do the transportation lines, dealers, stores, etc., who handle the goods. So they have more and better jobs as well.

Today producing goods is a relatively simple problem. In many fields, selling the goods is the big job. And advertising is one of the lowest-cost methods of selling goods on a big scale . . . a scale that makes more jobs and plenty of them.

So whether or not you work for a company that advertises, remember—that modern method of mass personal selling you see and hear everywhere, is important to your job

It's often the spark plug that keeps the motor humming—full speed, full power. And that means more security, greater opportunity for you—and for yours!

WHAT OTHERS THINK

SECRETARY—I work in a company that advertises a grocery product. That's what has made our office grow from 17 people to 27. I've been promoted twice in 3 years. Advertising helped.

FARMER—My prices depend on supply and demand. Good advertising seems to make folks buy more goods. So I guess in the long run advertising helps my product find a ready market at a good price.

PLUMBER—Since I've been advertising my shop I've added 2 men. It's helped my business and my income all right.

SALESMAN—Ads do the same kind of work salesmen do—sell more goods. My company's advertising certainly increases my volume of business. That means both safety and more income to me.

SHIPPING CLERK—When the ads run, we are busy and happy. When our outfit cuts down on advertising, first thing you know our business slacks off and they have to cut down on help.

Other Ways Advertising Helps You:

1. Brings you better goods for less money.
2. Makes shopping more pleasant and easier.
3. Has given us the world's highest standard of living.

Advertising... BY SELLING MORE GOODS TO MORE PEOPLE Makes your job more secure

Roofing paper, covering the soil under a basement-less house, helps keep the moisture low in the crawl-space between floor and earth, and decreases the danger of timber rotting and iron rusting. It lessens the need for crawl-space ventilation, thus making it easier to keep the floor warm.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—Supply and demand were in close balance in a sleepy stock market today.

Price changes were mostly in minor fractions and gains and losses well balanced.

Only skimpy business developed as many traders took the day off for a long week end and those who did show up for work were in no mood for action. Turnover was at the rate of around 300,000 shares for the two hours.

News reports scarcely grazed the surface of the market. Even those issues directly affected by current developments showed little response.

Armour and Company common and preferred, for instance, barely stirred despite the announcement late yesterday that directors had failed to take action on the preferred dividend normally due at this time. The common slipped 1/4 while the preferred lost only 1/8, both prices at new lows for the year.

Corporate bonds moved narrowly.

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—(AP)—Cotton futures advanced early here today, but gradually eased off under week-end long liquidation.

Closing prices were steady, 15 cents to 35 cents a bale lower.

The initial demand resulted from short covering and buying on encouraging export news. Trading was quiet throughout the Saturday session.

SPOT COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—(AP)—Spot cotton closed steady, 25 cents a bale lower. Sales 1,956. Low middling 27.00; middling 33.00; good middling 33.50. Receipts and stock unavoidable.

AMERICAN COTTON PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—(AP)—The average price of middling 15/16ths-inch cotton today at 10 designated southern spot markets was 40 cents a bale lower at 32.99 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days 32.50; middling 7/8ths-inch average 31.01.

New York

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—Cotton futures, following a steady opening turned slightly reactionary today. A leading spot firm continued to liquidate the May 1949 delivery either on an outright basis or switches to jury. Dealers indicated that there was a fair amount of hedges being attracted to the July delivery. Generally, however, new outside interests seemed to be curbed by a tendency to await export buying under E. C. A. While there was some liquidation for over the week end, this type of selling seemed to be held down by the fact that cotton repossessions from the loan have not been heavy despite recent price advances.

Futures closed 30 to 45 cents a bale lower than the previous close.

RADIO STATIONS PIERCE CURTAIN

British, American Broadcasters Team Up To Force Way Into Russia

LONDON, May 7.—(AP)—By sheer force of numbers, British and American radio stations fired their Russian-blockade broadcasts through a jamming curtain into the Soviet Union today, the British Broadcasting Corporation declared.

About one-fourth of the 61 stations joining in the unprecedented peacetime propaganda campaign got through "completely clear of interference," a B. B. C. spokesman said. About a third of the others were clear at the start, but ran into a wall of noise at some time, he added.

By coincidence, the break through attempt began when Russia was celebrating "Radio Day," the day she declares a Russian first demonstrated radio reception in 1895. Western histories generally credit an Italian, Guglielmo Marconi, with the invention.

The B. B. C. and George V. Allen, U. S. assistant secretary of state in Washington, announced yesterday they were starting a campaign to break through a set of "very powerful jamming stations." They said the Russians have been trying to prevent British and American broadcasts from being heard by the Russian people. Heavy jamming started April 24, just before the first news of negotiations to end the Berlin blockade.

Americans broadcasts beamed to Russia today said "obviously somebody considers it dangerous to permit the Soviet people to listen to truthful information from a free radio."

British broadcasts included an extended review of British press comment on the jamming.

The B. B. C. beamed 21 new stations on the Russians today, making a total of 25. The United States turned on 36—26 more than usual. All were of different wave lengths, with the idea of sieving through the jamming stations.

Among the stations joining in the campaign were the U. S. armed forces' two powerful 100,000-watt transmitters at Munich and Stuttgart, Germany.

S. P. Bergere, director of Voice of America for Europe, said in Frankfurt: "We are very certain we are getting into Russia. In certain we are of Russia, our signal is louder than theirs."

The two stations beam Voice of America broadcasts across the iron curtain daily from midnight to 5 a.m., when normally they would be off the air.

Bergere said the Russians had been trying to interfere with the two stations for some time, "but their efforts increased when the blockade discussions started."

The Russian press kept silent on the negotiations to end the Berlin blockade until Thursday, when it was announced with comment that the traffic restrictions would be knocked down May 12.

Bergere said the Russians have 30 to 50 jamming transmitters.

"Almost daily we are changing our tactics and procedures," he said. "We follow no set pattern. They don't know what we are going to do tomorrow—or the next day. Every time we change, it takes them from 30 minutes to five hours to get their jamming effective."

The B. B. C. spokesman said some of the 61 stations, especially the American ones, ran into heavier interference today, but the jamming stations were too busy to obliterate all.

The U. S. state department said the interference "follows a pattern similar to the systematic jamming of short-wave broadcasts."

Moscow's Radio Day observance was marked by an assertion in Izvestia, the government newspaper, that the world's first regular broadcast was from a 12-kilowatt Soviet station in August, 1922, four months before the first British broadcast. The paper said experimental broadcasts were made earlier in 1919. The claim was repeated that a Russian, Alexander Popov, invented radio, and another Russian, Prof. Rosing, was 10 to 15 years ahead of American and British scientists with television.

Station KDKA in Pittsburgh, generally credited with being the first radio station in the United States, made its first broadcast on Nov. 2, 1920.

kow on the Peiping-Hankow railway, while Anyang is 75 miles farther north.

(The Nationalists had reported as long ago as April 16 that the Reds were hotly attacking Sinsiang. Isolated for months, it and Anyang evidently put up unexpectedly strong defenses.

(This may have been a major factor in the Communist failure to assault Hankow, central China's "Chicago," when they roared across the Yangtze April 20. Now that these two blocks on the railway have been eliminated, the peril of Hankow may grow quickly.

(Possibly the best of the remaining government armies, the 200,000-man force of Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi, is based at Hankow, but has been reported preparing to retreat southward towards Canton.)

In a dispatch from Canton, the government's provisional capital the official central news agency said the legislative Yuan approved a plan to organize and equip nine armies for Canton's defense.

(It did not say how these armies were to be manned or armed.)

Central news also said the legislative Yuan planned soon to "clarify its attitude towards the Communists." (It did not hint whether this would be a statement of further defiance, of conciliation, or just what).

Shanghai, though under the Red threat, remained preoccupied with its financial crisis. The demand for usable cash was so great that holders of U. S. currency were getting a 25 per cent bonus for cashing certified checks.

The streets swarmed with wage-earners who were trying to sell assorted commodities—everything except food—that their employers had given them in lieu of pay.

Business Outlook Clouded By Strife In Labor Camps

By G. A. Phillips

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—The business outlook was clouded by growing labor strife this week.

The Ford strike and numerous smaller ones now dotting the scene come at a time when industry—the automobile and steel makers, excepted—are battling a strong post-war deflationary tide with none too much success.

Any prolonged interruption in a major industry at this time would pile up confusion in the business world and score telling blows on business sentiment.

And any new wage increases in basic manufacturing such as steel would do much to reverse the trend to get costs down to the point where buyers will become interested in the nation's growing pile of manufactured goods.

High prices have kept many consumers from buying anything except essentials. This has received the principal credit for bringing on the most pronounced recession since the national economy was freed of wartime controls.

In recent weeks, however, signs have become more numerous that the super cautious buying policy was changing. Orders were coming in all the way from the corner store to the manufacturing level. That meant inventories were being replenished for the fall season and that most people had concluded prices were becoming stabilized.

Any increase in basic manufacturing costs at the first level of production is certain to find its way all through the entire distribution and selling system and will result in a higher price tag at retail. A little bit of this is all that will be needed to send purchasing agents back to the sidelines and intensify the drop in business.

A. W. Zelomek, widely recognized as an authority in the retail field, told a group of Texas business men that further reductions in prices is the key to the entire business situation at the moment.

"The speed with which the present business recession runs its course depends chiefly on the alacrity with which durable goods producers are able to get their costs and selling prices down," the chief economist for the international statistical bureau said.

"This applies to all kinds of durable goods—automobiles, new homes, refrigerators, other major appliances, furniture, etc. Substantial price reductions in many textile apparel items have already stimulated demand this spring, and there is no doubt a large level of demand remains for consumers' durable goods when prices are brought down to lower levels."

Highlights of this week's business chart included another dip in industrial production; additional price drops in metals, lumber, hardware, industrial chemicals and other lines that have heretofore successfully resisted the lower trend in food and clothing. Retail trade improved a bit over the previous week but was again under the 1948 period. Business loans continued to sag. There was an improvement, however, in the inventory situation.

closed the doors of Carroll's auditorium, the club's meeting place.

The authorities acted on orders from Fudickar.

The club boasted a membership of approximately five hundred.

The club operated thusly: A membership card could be purchased for two dollars and the name of the new members was placed at the bottom of a list. The new member in turn was expected to get two other members. The person at the top of the list was awarded the collected membership at each meeting. Then his name would return to the bottom of the list.

Henry Carroll, proprietor of the auditorium, denied Friday night that he had anything to do with the club other than renting the building and being a member.

After his first day at his new home, Andy turned to his mother and asked "Are you sure you're my mother."

When she reassured him, he said: "I was scared you were kidding me."

The little boy's letter for his mother brought more than 1,500 offers of adoption from across the nation. But Andy held out for the one letter signed "Mother." It took three weeks but it came.

WESTERN

a plenary session of the constitutional convention tomorrow will touch off Germany's first general election campaign—except for the Soviet zone—since 1933.

Even the 1933 election offered little more than an opportunity to cast a "ja" ballot for the Nazis. The last really contested general election was in 1933.

Since the war, Germans have had a chance to regain election experience in state and local elections.

The constitutional convention set the stage for final adoption of the constitution by rushing it through a second reading in a seven-hour session last night.

This energetic action, after eight months of sometimes desultory debates, followed quickly upon the announcement that the Soviet zone blockade would be lifted Thursday and that the Russian, British, French and American foreign ministers would meet May 23.

Some of the delegates were rattled by the pace. They said they hardly knew which of the 147 articles they were voting on. One said, after participating in a vote that abolished capital punishment, he thought he had been voting on a tax measure.

Convention delegates said they expected only minor changes, if any, will be made in the constitution in the third and final reading starting at 3 p.m. (8 a.m. Eastern Standard Time) tomorrow.

The third reading, however, will designate the German flag. It is expected to consist of black, red and gold horizonal stripes—the flag of the old Weimar republic.

This symbol of the German Democratic era that preceded Hitlerism also has been chosen as the official flag by the Soviet zone.

The convention may put off naming the capital. Chief contestants for the honor are Frankfurt and Bonn. Rhine River University city and birthplace of Beethoveen.

the second world war, he added, was the placing of enlisted men on court's martial.

Green hailed this latter move as a means of aiding discipline by familiarizing enlisted men with military justice.

At today's final session, newly elected officers and board members were inducted into office.

Officers are President Henry P. Dart, Jr., of New Orleans, Vice-President George T. Madison of Bastrop, and Secretary-Treasurer John Pat Little of New Orleans.

Members of the board of governors are Alex F. Smith of Shreveport, John Dainos of Baton Rouge, C. Ellis Ott of Bogalusa, Alvin O. King of Lake Charles, Cliffe E. Laborde, Jr., of Marksville, and Clarence J. Morrow, Rudolph A. Peyregne, James Skelly Wright and William W. Meyers, all of New Orleans.

ACCIDENTS HIGH BUT DEATHS ARE FALLING

BATON ROUGE, La., May 7.—(AP)—There were more accidents but fewer traffic deaths on Louisiana's highways during the first four months of 1949 than during the same period a year ago.

The figures were released today by State Director of Public Safety J. Goldman Grant. This year through April, he said, state police investigated 1,650 as compared with 1,350 accidents in the first four months of 1948. Fatalities dropped from 120 in 1948 to 106 in 1948, he added.

"We are encouraged with the small drop in fatalities but, considering the large increase in the number of accidents, we are inclined to believe that a lot of people have been lucky," Grant said.

Pedestrian fatalities—18 for the period—were seven higher than a year ago, he noted, warning that the same traffic rules apply whether a person is driving or afoot.

"Drivers should consider the pedestrian and his problems," the official said, "because just as soon as that motorist parks his automobile he becomes a pedestrian himself. A little courtesy on the part of both the motorist and pedestrian will go a long way in cutting down our death rate."

Grant said the state department of highways is posting signs noting speed limits throughout the state. He reminded that the limits are 60 miles per hour for automobiles, 40 for trucks and 55 for buses.

During the whole of 1948, he said, 1,700 persons were injured in 524 accidents reported.

she devoted three years to work on the ARC Board.

Her interest in religious activities has included untiring efforts and generous financial assistance to churches for both white and colored people. She is a charter member of the Memorial Presbyterian Church West Monroe, and has helped in the erection of the McClendon Baptist Church in the rural section.

Furthering education, Mrs. Faulk was deeply interested in the establishment of the West Monroe branch of the Ouachita Public Library and the procurement of a bookmobile which could serve the needs of people in rural areas.

She has held both local and state offices in the DAR, the presidency of the Alturian Book Club, of which she is a charter member, and she is an honorary member of the Pilot Club of Monroe.

Through her work with these organizations and the influence of her Christian life upon all those with whom she associated, the judges felt that Mrs. Faulk exemplified leadership, unselfishness, desire to assist underprivileged and that she had the vision to plan for the future of the community.

Mrs. Faulk is the mother of three children, Clarence E. Faulk, Jr., of Ruston, owner and publisher of the Ruston Daily Leader and owner of radio station KRUS; Mrs. M. F. Cone, the former Eleanor Faulk of Washington, D. C., who will soon accompany her husband, Lt. Col. Cone to Paris, where he will be stationed; Robert Faulk, pilot on Delta Airlines, Atlanta, Ga.

Her four grandchildren are: Clarence III, Page and Amelia, children of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Faulk, Jr., and Michael Cone. Her sister, Mrs. Katie Morrice, is a well known West Monroe resident.

A native of Ouachita parish, Mrs. Faulk is the daughter of Josephine M. Lillier, New Orleans, and R. W. McClendon, Ouachita parish. Since her marriage she and Mr. Faulk have made their home in West Monroe.

As a symbol of fine qualities, Mrs. Faulk received a sterling bowl bearing the inscription: "Woman of the Year, 1948-49 Inter-Club Council Award." It was presented by Mrs. Erlene Adams of Altrusa Club, who said, "The three clubs feel that the judges made the best possible decision."

Speaker of the evening was Mrs. Fadra Holmes Wilson, professor of education and psychology at Louisiana State University, who was introduced by Miss Nona Martin, district governor of Pilot International. Mrs. Wilson stressed the importance of service clubs in teaching youth the proper use of leisure time. The true value of leisure, she said, is measured by what we do with it; by whether it lifts us or lowers us in the great world, not of material but of spiritual values.

Leisure is a modern factor in the United States, as far as education is concerned, Mrs. Wilson asserted. The iron man and other forms of science spell opportunity for leisure. Service groups have unlimited means to show young people what can be created through leisure. They may help to show that sin is ugly; that creative work mat be beautiful and lovely, she explained.

The speaker warned against the use of dont's instead of do's. Groups should create places where leisure may be spent in wholesome fashion—dancing, swimming and other healthy recreation.

Democracy can stand the test of war. But can democracy stand the test of uninspired leisure, she asked. "It is up to us to create a civilization that does not degenerate under leisure." This can be accomplished only by setting in operation forces making for a culture that recognizes that leisure is and must be a means and not an end, Mrs. Wilson concluded.

The program also included an invocation by the Rev. Lea Joyner, assistant pastor of the First Methodist Church and honary member of the Pilot Club of Monroe; vocal numbers by eight girls of the Ouachita Parish High School choir, directed by Miss Velma Nichols, and piano music by Mrs. Melba Liner. Serving as toastmistress was Mrs. Taunton Veazey, president of the Iinter-Club Council and member of Quota Club. She was presented by Mrs. Adrienne Carr, president of the local Altrusa Club. The program was arranged under direction of Dr. Irma Jones of the Pilot Club of Monroe.

Lebow averages 15 miles a day. His chair is equipped with a speedometer, thermos bottle, raincoat, a few tools and an oil can. New wheels were added in Dallas but this is expected to comprise the only equipment change required. Lebow, a former hotel clerk in his home town, is accompanied on the trip by a cousin who travels in an auto to be on hand in case of need. Lebow is 43, widower, and is father of a daughter.

He will arrive sometime this week in Monroe and his making good progress this way over Highway 80. He was in Shreveport last Tuesday.

Dr. Julian C. Miller, horticultural research director, L. S. U. agricultural experiment station, announces something new under the sun. It is a yam with a future. Known as L-241, it is said to have a figure all its own. Dr. Miller assures it is excellent in cooking, highly resistent to wilt disease, moderately so as to soil rot, reasonably high in solids and nearly twice as high in pro-vitamin A content as its nearest rivals.

The Amvets Auxiliary will leave shortly after noon today for Alexandria where they will give a program at the Veterans' Hospital. Members of local bands will be included and a number of young women will make the trip and will aid in the entertainment of the disabled veterans. The purpose is to spread a little cheer on Mother's Day among men whose lives are sorely in need of all possible attention that can be paid them. One of the leaders in the party that is to make the trip today is Mrs. Allen Ritter. The party will leave from 3603 Blanks street promptly at 1 p.m.

Congratulations to John Sherrouse, Jr., who has just been elected to head the Twin City Community Chest for the ensuing year. He will succeed A. B. Patterson. Other officers elected are: Ben Parnell, vice-president, and Jake Pickens, treasurer. The board of directors includes the following new members added: Mrs. Adrianne Carr, Lee Hodges, Rev. Ernest Duncan Holloway, H. L. Rosenhein, Ben Parnell and Robert W. Dumm.

The pound master, telephone 6100, has four rather desirable dogs that are in his custody over the week-end. He describes them as follows: One police and chow, mixed breed; one red chow; an Airedale, white and brown, and a white and brown English bull dog. These are obtainable by paying the charges at the pound.

Latest campus rival of the Pow Wow, Northeast Junior College newspaper, is the Leader, official organ of the R. O. T. C. The four-page publication was started on a purely experimental basis, explained Sgt. 1/c Claude M. Allen of the college military department and adviser to the Leader staff.

Purpose of the little paper is "to carry news of all cadet activities to the boys," the sergeant said.

hTe first issue to be placed on the small news rack under the cadet bulletin board in the library building appeared March 1. Since then the Leader staff has turned out an issue each Friday.

It is still in the embryo stage, but Sergeant Allen is hoping to recruit a larger staff next fall. At present all work is done by a small group headed by Max Funderburk, with Clark Matkins and Edgar Hawkins as reporters. Vasco Tefas is responsible for the colorful front page designs featuring military insignia, while Ben Hair's cartoons found on the back page are used to burlesque military life.

The 6 by 8 inch paper is called a "fox hole" edition, and is run off on a ditto machine.

in a while" to investigate the speed-up charge.

But Ford had a different version of the strike. In a letter to all 135,000 employes, he said countless thousands of workers and company customers were being "unjustly penalized" by the walkout.

Company officials "cannot understand why a strike was called," he said, "unless it was promoted by some political situation within the union."

Ford said there had been "a great deal of loose talk about a so-called speed-up."

"Any time the health and safety of any Ford employe are endangered," he continued, "we want to know about it—and fix it immediately.

"Moreover, from the point of view of any sane management, 'speed-ups' are silly."

The U. A. W. contends that Ford has been working employes on one assembly line five to ten per cent faster than other auto companies in an effort to gain a competitive advantage.

As smaller picket lines were set up for the week-end, threats of additional plant shutdowns and worker layoffs began to mount.

Ford has said that if the strike goes on another week virtually all its 49 plants across the nation would be closed. It already has announced that 8,000 employes would be laid off Monday at plants in St. Louis, Metuchen, N. J., Los Angeles, Minnesapolis-St. Paul and Iron Mountain.

An additional 3,500 major supplier firms eventually would be affected, the company said.

One such firm, Ferro Machine in Cleveland, already has laid off 2,000 workers.

Ford reiterated in his letter his belief that the dispute should be settled either by direct negotiation or arbitration.

He insisted, however, that "this company now and always will hold to its right—fairly and firmly guaranteed under our contract—to establish work standards which will assure effieient operation without impairing in any way the health or safety of our employes."

"I am sorry," he added, "this strike had to happen."

General Practitioner Given Bright Future In Medicine

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—(AP)—Far from being a horse and buggy doctor, the general practitioner has a bright future as a "general specialist."

That's what Dr. E. C. Texter of Detroit, Mich., president of the American Academy of General Practice, told Louisiana physicians today.

He described the value of the "general specialist" as a key medical man to route patients to the right consultant in the right special field.

Dr. Texter said "the general practitioner must overcome quite a handicap in competing with the specialist in the city with his scalpel, his fancy equipment and his suite of offices."

"The public has fallen for all this drama," he continued, "and has demanded it, instead of going to a good general practitioner who could decide whether or not a specialist is required and if so, in what field, when and where."

Dr. Texter said that in reviewing 100 hospital cases, it was found that the patient had gone to 3.7 specialists.

"That means increased costs and increased waiting time," he added. "It encourages the government to stress that one-fourth of the nation is not getting the best care, instead of the fact that three-fourths get the best care in the world."

Dr. Texter spoke as the Louisiana State Medical Society concluded a three-day session here. And the Louisiana Academy of General Practice held its initial session.

Dr. D. B. Barber of Alexandria was nominated as president of the latter group, with elections scheduled at the final meeting tomorrow.

Officers elected during the day by the Louisiana Pediatric Society were Dr. W. B. Worley, Shreveport, president; Dr J. E. Bailey, New Orleans, president-elect; Dr. Bertha N. Wexler, New Orleans, secretary, and Dr. J. E. Strange, New Orleans, treasurer.

yacht at Dayonta Beach yesterday, and was booked and held at the county jail at nearby Deland until Palm Beach authorities came to remove him.

"We were completely in love and I would never harm her," said Hammer in his jail cell at Deland. "Andrea tripped and fell coming aboard the boat, cutting her face and injuring her arm."

Hammer asserted their relations were amiable after the incident, that she had recovered from the accident and had been with him in Daytona Beach until Thursday when she left without explanation. A mild argument over disposition of their race horses might have caused her to depart, he said.

e The Hammers own Marchons 2nd, famous Argentine thoroughbred, and several less known race horses. They raced their stable at Hialeah Park, Miami, this winter.

Hammer blamed Charles Francis Coe, West Palm Beach attorney and newspaper editor who is Mrs. Hammer's counsel, for issuance of the warrant and her return to Palm Beach. Coe, however, declared:

"I had no knowledge of her return until she called me from the airport."

Edgar F. Luckenbach, Jr., owner of the steamship line and Mrs. Hammer's brother, flew here in a chartered plane from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., today. He said he heard that his sister was beaten only yesterday, and come as quickly as he could "to be of every assistance."

The Hammers lived quietly in Palm Beach during the past winter. She is a noted sports fisherman.

Her affidavit declared that Hammer was extremely abusive, had a cold attitude, and harbored the illusion that her family—especially her brother Edgar—was trying to taker her fortune away from her.

She inherited somewhat more than $3,000,000 in her own right from her father's estate.

Hammer is her third husband. Her first was to a butter and egg salesman, William F. Dobbs, over the objections of her father. They were divorced in 1944.

Next she married John Doerr, Baltimore lawyer and military hero who, she met while he was stationed in Florida. They were divorced in 1946, and the following year she married Hammer.

Hammer was noted as a horseman, and the couple was often seen at horse shows and the races.

MILITARY PERSONEL WILL GET PAY BOOST

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—A pay boost for nearly everybody in the armed services except the lowest enlisted men was voted today by a house armed services subcommittee.

It approved a bill that would grant raises varying from a little over three percent for first class privates up to nearly 50 percent for a brigadier general. The average would be about 14 percent.

The ordinary privates, recruits and apprentices would get nothing extra. The bill also would wipe out family allowances for enlisted men.

RIVER SWALLOWS SIX GRAVES IN CEMETERY

DENHAM SPRINGS, La., May 7.—(AP)—The Amite river has swallowed six graves from the century-old Amite Baptist Church Cemetery near here.

The church membership at a meeting last night adopted resolutions asking state and federal officials for help in checking the inroads of the river.

The Rev. R. L. Cook, pastor, said he hoped piling could be driven along the river bank to save the rest of the cemetery and the church. A slice of land including the graves and a large live oak tree was washed away during the past few days, he said.

FLOODWATERS REST IN LUBBOCK, TEX.

LUBBOCK, Texas, May 7.—(AP)—Floodwaters rose into 200 Lubbock homes and took one life today, raising Texas' violent weather toll to five dead and 36 injured.

WIFE'S FEAR IS HUSBAND'S DEATH

SHELL LAKE, Wis., May 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Phillip Conley, 45, who said she beheaded her husband with an axe, because she feared him, was charged with first degree murder today.

She waived preliminary hearing when arraigned in municipal court at Spooner and was bound over to circuit court for trial.

Following her brief court appearance, Mrs. Conley was brought back to the Washburn county jail here. District Attorney Ward Winton said she would remain there pending disposition of his contemplated petition to have her taken to the Wisconsin General Hospital in Madison for mental observation.

Sheriff Floyd Bannister said Conley's body, his head nearly severed, was found last night in a bed at Conley farm three miles north of Shell Lake. Coroner Harry Dahl said Conley's jugular vein and the vertebrae of his neck had been cut through. He said a bloody axe, found in the barnyard, was used in the killing.

Dahl said first word of the slaying came after Mrs. Conley had gone to a neighboring farm and told them what had happened. The neighbors called the officers. The couple's two children—Michael, 19, and Margaret, 16, were absent at the time.

District Attorney Winton said Mrs. Conley told this story:

"I have lived in fear of my husband for many years. He has beaten me and the children. Lately he has been buying liquor. I have been forced to go to work to support the family.

"At suppertime he refused to come to the table but lay on the bed fully clothed. I don't know what happened. But all of a sudden all of the injustices that have been piling up made me so insanely mad I grabbed the axe."

Neighbors said both Conleys were college graduates, the wife of Sinsinawa Convent in southern Wisconsin and Columbia University. Conley was absent from home much of the wartime period on construction projects in Guam, Alaska and other foreign places. Michael, the son, is a veteran of World War II.

full four-power meeting. He will sit down with Russia's Andrei Vishinsky, Britain's Ernest Bevin and Robert Schumann of France.

The state department said it was logical the preliminary three-power talks should be held since the western powers had agreed only last month on their own program for western Germany. This includes the establishment—against bitter Russian objection—of a western German government.

A similar line was followed in London where a foreign office spokesman said the three-power discussions "are the result of contacts" among Bevin, Schumann and Acheson in the earlier Washington conference.

It was in the Washington meeting that the west finally achieved complete agreement on Germany. Then when Germans accepted the plans to set up their own government, Russia announced willingness to lift the blockade of Berlin provided mainly that the western nations would agree to a CFM meeting.

Some officials here believe that the Soviets hoped thereby to throw a monkey wrench into the western German political machinery in that they looked to the foreign ministers meetings at least to test and at most to disrupt the unity among the western powers.

Perhaps only after the Russians have sounded western strength and determination on whatever issues they choose to put forward can the west finally determine the Soviet attitude. This may bring out whether the Russians are prepared to make substantial concessions in their position on Germany and agree to the unification of the eastern and western zones.

No formal statement was made here on the three-power talks. London and Paris officials like those in Washington, generally treated the development casually. Some diplomats expected that Moscow, with a ready eye for a propaganda break, will come out with a "ganging up" charge in a few days. Such charges have been made by the Soviets before.

In fact, aside from the agreement that the Berlin blockade will be lifted Thursday and the CFM will meet in Paris 11 days thereafter officials here found little new evidence to reinflate the outlook for a new period of east-west harmony which the agreement itself had inspired earlier this week.

In Germany the Communists pleaded for non-Communist western German leaders to halt formation of their proposed new state for the western zones. But the western German leaders in effect said "no." At Bonn they completed all but the formalities for adopting a west German constitution and western military governors are expected to approve the constitution at Frankfurt Tuesday.

Speculation on the issues to come up in the foreign ministers meeting covers a variety of possible proposals by the Russians designed to minimize western influence in Germany and to block complete western control over the vital Ruhr production area.

PRESIDENT IS 65 YEARS OLD TODAY

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—President Truman will be 65 tomorrow.

It also will be the fourth anniversary of the day he announced the war had been won in Europe.

On the eve of his birthday, Mr. Truman was described by his physician, Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, "as close to being an iron man as anyone I know at his age."

Asserting the president "works too hard," Graham added: "I don't know how he does it and keeps so cheerful and full of pep."

Roofing paper, covering the soil under a basement-less house, helps keep the moisture low in the crawl-space between floor and earth, and decreases the danger of timber rotting and iron rusting. It lessens the need for crawl-space ventilation, thus making it easier to keep the floor warm.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—Supply and demand were in close balance in a sleepy stock market today.

Price changes were mostly in minor fractions and gains and losses well balanced.

Only skimpy business developed as many traders took the day off for a long week end and those who did show up for work were in no mood for action. Turnover was at the rate of around 300,000 shares for the two hours.

News reports scarcely grazed the surface of the market. Even those issues directly affected by current developments showed little response.

Armour and Company common and preferred, for instance, barely stirred despite the announcement late yesterday that directors had failed to take action on the preferred dividend normally due at this time. The common slipped 1/4 while the preferred lost only 1/8, both prices at new lows for the year.

Corporate bonds moved narrowly.

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—(AP)—Cotton futures advanced early here today, but gradually eased off under week-end long liquidation.

Closing prices were steady, 15 cents to 35 cents a bale lower.

The initial demand resulted from short covering and buying on encouraging export news. Trading was quiet throughout the Saturday session.

SPOT COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—(AP)—Spot cotton closed steady, 25 cents a bale lower. Sales 1,956. Low middling 27.00; middling 33.00; good middling 33.50. Receipts and stock unavoidable.

AMERICAN COTTON PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—(AP)—The average price of middling 15/16ths-inch cotton today at 10 designated southern spot markets was 40 cents a bale lower at 32.99 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days 32.80; middling 7/8ths-inch average 31.01.

New York

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—Cotton futures, following a steady opening turned slightly reactionary today. A leading spot firm continued to liquidate the May 1949 delivery either on an outright basis or switches to jury. Dealers indicated that there was a fair amount of hedges being attracted to the July delivery. Generally, however, new outside interests seemed to be curbed by a tendency to await export buying under E. C. A. While there was some liquidation for over the week end, this type of selling seemed to be held down by the fact that cotton repossessions from the loan have not been heavy despite recent price advances.

Futures closed 30 to 45 cents a bale lower than the previous close.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 7.—(AP)—Grains slumped toward the close on the board of trade today, giving up gains scored in early dealings. Some of the selling represented evening-up operations by local traders prior to the week end.

Wheat closed 2 to 2 1/8 lower, May $2.21 3/4-$2.22, corn was 3/4-1 1/2 lower, May $1.32 3/8-1/4, oats were 1/8 to 1 cent lower, May 66 3/4-5/8, rye was 3/4 to 1 cents lower, May $1.27 1/4, soybeans were 1 1/2 lower to 1/4 higher, May $2.29-$2.29 1/4, and lard was unchanged to 13 cents a hundred pounds lower, May $11.67.

DUTCH, INDONESIA PLAN COMPROMISE

Guerrilla Warfare Will Be Halted; Republic To Be Reestablished

BATAVIA, Java, May 7.—(AP)—The Dutch and Republican Indonesians agreed to a compromise program today to settle the Indonesian problem.

The Indonesians agreed to order a stop to guerrilla warfare estimated to be taking 100 lives daily.

The Dutch agreed to reestablish the Indonesian Republic in its Javanese capital, the residency of Jogjakarta, an area 40 miles across.

As soon as the Republic is reestablished, the Republicans said they would participate in a round table conference at The Hague for the purpose of speeding the "unconditional transfer of real and complete sovereignty" to a United States of Indonesia.

The Dutch on Feb. 2 set midsummer as a time target for the transfer of soverieignty. But today's agreement was nearly two months behind the Dutch schedule. The transfere would be accomplished by the creation of a simultaneous creation of a union in which the Dutch kingdom and the U. S. of I. would be equal partners under the Dutch crown.

The compromise was reached under auspices of the United Nations commission on Indonesia which has been steering informal talks between the parties here for the past two weeks.

In the final give and take, the Dutch gave way on their plan to restrict the restored Republic to the city of Jogjakarta and its immediate suburbs. The residency of Jogjakarta, over which they will recognize the free exercise of the Republic's functions, is the same territory as the sultanate of Jogjakarta. The sultan is pro-Republican.

Harmon Believes In Peas For Cattle

R. G. Harmon, chairman of the board of supervisors of the Boeuf River Soil Conservation district, and firm believer in the power of Singletary peas, takes a first-hand survey (above) of a pea patch on his 500-acre farm approximately five miles south of Monroe. On his farm, Harmon boasts a growth of cotton, beef cattle, dairy cattle, hay and seed products.

Southerners In Washington

By Gordon Brown
(AP Special Washington Service)

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—If President Truman strictly applies part of his party loyalty test formula to this week's labor bill votes in the house, it's goodbye patronage for all Mississippi and most Louisiana representatives.

The president, you will recall has said that he would regard votes on repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor bill as a test of loyalty to the Democratic party.

And party loyalty is one of the big considerations in deciding matters of patronage—meaning federal jobs.

Well, the house had two big votes on labor bills.

One was on approval of the Wood bill, which was offered as a substitute for the administration-backed Lessinski measure. Hence a vote for the Wood bill was a vote against the administration bill.

On this test, all of Mississippi's seven representatives and five of Louisiana's eight voted for the Wood substitute.

Voting with the administration forces were Representatives Boggs, Allen and Morrison, all of Louisiana. Against the administration were Mississippi's Abernethy, Colmer, Rankin, Whitten, Whittington, Williams and Winstead, and Louisiana's Hebert, Brooks, Larcade, Passman and Willis.

Next day came another test—a vote on recommittal of the Wood bill to the house labor committee. The administration wanted the bill recommitted and it was, by a 3-vote margin.

Again the Mississippians and Louisianians lined up the same way.

these votes come within his formula,

So if, in Mr. Truman's opinion, these votes come within his formula, it's easy to figure who probably won't be naming many postmasters, rural mail carriers and census workers.

However, the whole patronage picture is somewhat confused right now.

There are those who think the thing won't be decided actually as Mr. Truman's statement would indicate.

In fact, before the president spoke out, Democratic chairman McGrath said votes in congress wouldn't be the acid test but rather party loyalty would be decided by actions back in the home district.

A party spokesman amplified this to say that a congressman wouldn't necessarily be blacklisted even though he had bolted the party and opposed some of Mr. Truman's program. Each case, he said, would be decided on its merits.

So it may work out that representatives from the two states won't be frozen out entirely.

In fact, the committee spokesman pointed out, no congressman's recommendations could be entirely ignored since even the most dyed-in-the-wool states righter could recommend a pro-Truman Democrat for a job.

There's never been any secret that the administration isn't happy with Representatives Hebert, Rankin and Williams.

Williams campaigned strenuously against Truman. Rankin has placed the administration on a spot several times, notably with his big veterans pension bill; Hebert has opposed the administration at numerous points.

Most of the representatives say that actually little patronage is involved and they wouldn't mind having it taken away.

Representatives recommend postmasters and rural mail carriers and this year will recommend census workers.

Most of the Mississippians and Louisians report that they have been continuing to make postmaster and mail recommendations as in the past.

Most of them report that their mail carrier recommendations have carried through and their men have been appointed.

On postmasters, however, it is a different story. Up to now the president hasn't made any appointments for first and second class post offices in Mississippi and only two in Louisiana. These two were in Representative Boggs (La.) district.

Theoretically, representatives have no weapon with which to strike back at the president if he denies them patronage—other than to oppose his bills.

Actually, however, they do—provide their senators back them up.

Since most postmaster appointments must be confirmed by the senate, the senators could object to confirmation of any name not recommended by their colleagues in the house. In fact, Senator Stennis (Miss.) already has served notice he will adopt such a course.

If a senator objects to a purely state appointment, the senate seldom confirms.

Thus if the president sought to ride too rough shod over the representatives his own appointments could run into trouble.

It may be that this is the reason the president has moved slowly in making Mississippi appointments recommended by the pro-Truman group of Democrats in the state. For if these appointments didn't meet approval of Senators Stennis and Eastland, they would have rough going.

Stennis and the pro-Truman Mississippians already have one conflicting recommendation. Stennis has recommended Judge J. P. Coleman for U. S. district attorney; the pro-Truman group has recommended appointment of District Attorney Chester Summers.

What happens in this case may provide a key to how the president plans to proceed with southern patronage.

Mothballs promise to become important in giving warnings against dangerous radioactivity from exploding atoms or the detection of new facts about the composition of matter. They are competing with the famous Geiger counter, familiar detecting device of radioactivity.

Singletary Peas Proving Valuable For R. G. Harmon

R. G. Harmon, chairman, board of supervisors of the Boeuf River Soil Conservation District is a strong believer in Singletary peas. Harmon owns a 500-acre farm about five miles south of Monroe on the east bank of the Ouachita river. His farming operations include growing cotton, beef cattle, dairy cattle, hay and seed production.

Some six years ago Harmon planted a small acreage to Singletary peas and they proved to be so valuable, especially as a winter grazing crop, until today he has some 250 acres planted in this crop. During the past winter seventy head of mixed beef cattle grazed the entire winter on 120 acres of these peas and came out in good condition.

"The only feed these cattle received during the entire winter was a small amount of hay three days while the snow was on the ground," Harmon explained.

The cattle were removed from these peas April 10th to permit seed production. "I expect to get from $25 to $50 worth of seed per acre from this area and still later I will cut at least two tons per acre of bermuda grass hay," Harmon said. "All of this grazing, seed and hay production comes without the use of any commercial fertilizer," he added.

"When the cattle are removed from the peas they are placed in a clover and dallis grass pasture that is in full swing by this time of the year," Harmon said.

Singletary peas have the ability to recover from the effect of grazing very quickly. They will also withstand burning. During the extreme dry weather last August Harmon had about 15 acres of his land, where the peas had been, to burn over. The peas are as good here as in the other areas.

Prior to the fall of 1948, Harmon confined his peas to pasture, but last fall he decided to follow his cotton with peas. About Oct. 1, he planted 110 acres of cotton land to Singletary peas. No fertilizer was used.

"In fact they are so good I am not going to turn all of them under," Harmon stated. "These peas that have not been grazed will produce about 1,000 pounds of seed per acre," he added.

Harmon is a co-operator with the Boeuf River Soil Conservation District and with the Resistance of the Soil Conservation service has installed a drainage system on his farm. He has been chairman of this board of supervisors since it was organized some six years ago. He urges all farmers with a drainage problem to contact the district office at Rayville for assistance.

Harmon is an ex-big league baseball star. He pitched five years for the St. Louis Cardinals and five years for Pittsburgh. He is one of the very few who left big league baseball while still very active and with opportunities to play all over the country. The discovery of oil near Homer in the early 20's caused him to retire from baseball and devote his time to oil interests he had in the vicinity of Homer.

NATURAL GAS BILL STUDIED IN HOUSE

Seeks To Prevent Federal Control Over Gathering And Distribution

By Charles Haslet
(AP Special Washington Service)

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)— The House Interstate Commerce Petroleum subcommittee still is studying bills to prohibit the federal power commission from taking jurisdiction over production and gathering of natural gas by independent operators.

Hearings on the legislation by Representatives Harris (D-Ark.) and Lyle (D-Texas) were held in April before the group headed by Harris. Since then the subcommittee has met to consider the testimony and the bills but it has not yet decided what to recommend to the main committee.

"We are discussing two or three different angles," Harris told a reporter. But he did not disclose what these angles involved. He did say, however, that the subcommittee is looking "into language" which would accomplish what the subcommittee might want done.

The Harris committee plans to meet again Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Russell Brown, general counsel for the Independent Petroleum Association of America, said that as a result of testimony before the Harris Committee, he believes the need for amending the natural gas act to curb the commission's possible control over independent gas producers in local fields is more necessary now than ever before.

Leland Olds, commission member, has said he believes the commission should have some authority to regulate large independents and integrated companies in connection with price of gas at the intake of interstate pipelines.

"It is now clear," Brown said in a recent open letter to Fred Shield, president of the Independent Petroleum Association, "that the present majority of the members of the federal power commission will proceed, if the law is not clarified by congress, to extend its jurisdiction over independent producers and gatherers.

"His (Olds) testimony confirms, without doubt, all the fears that have persisted throughout the industry since the interstate decision (of the supreme court), that the PFC might at any time change its position and exercise jurisdiction over independent producers and gatherers of gas."

The independent operators who are opposing any designation as public utility concerns by FPC, point out that FPC Chairman Nelson Lee Smith and Commissioner Harry Wimberly filed a minority report with the committee.

Their report supported the need for clarifying the natural gas act so as to make clear the exempt status of independent producers and gatherers.

In a majority report, Olds was joined in his views by commissioners Claude Draper and Thomas Buchanan.

Chances Of Any New Labor Bill Slim

By Max Hall

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—The Democrats' chances of pushing a new compromise labor bill through the house at this session may depend on three coal area members—and John L. Lewis himself.

That was apparent today from a study of the makeup of the house labor committee and the week's labor legislation whirlwind.

It will be extremely difficult—probably impossible—even to get such a bill approved by the committee without the votes of three Democrats who represent coal mining districts.

These three men are Kelley of Pennsylvania, Bailey of West Virginia and Perkins of Kentucky.

Democrats have only a 13-12 majority on this committee. Without Kelley, Bailey and Perkins they don't have a majority at all.

As to Lewis, up to now he has firmly opposed compromising on the issue of repealing the Taft-Hartley act. Especially does the United Mine Workers president dislike any compromise that permits injunctions in labor disputes.

His position strongly indicates that he would rather let the Taft-Hartley act stay on the books until 1950 than to consent to such a compromise middle-road measure.

This week Lewis's lieutenants worked hard against the Sims bill, a compromise effort with the injunction feature endorsed by Speaker Rayburn (D.-Tex.). One congressman told a reporter that a representative of the United Mine Workers telephoned his office and said if he didn't vote against the Sims bill he would be "finished."

Most pro-union congressmen reluctantly accepted the Sims bill, but very few from heavy coal districts voted "yes." Kelley, Bailey and Perkins were among those who voted against it. The bill was defeated 211-183.

Representative Lesinski (D.-Mich.), chairman of the labor committee, publicly blamed John L. Lewis for beating it.

The question for the Democrats now is: can a bill be so drawn as to enlist the support of Kelley, Bailey and Perkins, and at the same time contain enough Taft-Hartley features to charm a sizeable chunk of votes away from the Taft-Hartley minded coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats in the house?

There is practically no chance of getting a house-written labor bill before the house at this session unless the committee first approves it. So if the committee can't agree, the house will have to wait for the senate to pass a bill—some time in June or July—and see what happens to it.

Representative Sims (D.-S. C.), who introduced the measure this week, said in an interview today that he is convinced no labor bill can pass the house unless it has "a strong national emergency provision and some kind of non-communist oath provision." But he said he isn't wedded to the Taft-Hartley language by any means.

He took the position there is an "excellent chance" that the committee, and then the house, will approve a new compromise measure within a month.

Sims said the new house bill may contain authority for both plant seizure and injunctions to deal with "national emergency" disputes. The Sims bill this week provided for injunctions only. The "seizure-and-injunction-or-both" procedure—which incidentially appears in the new senate Republican labor bill endorsed by Senator Taft of Ohio—is less objectionable to labor unions than straight seizure.

Despite Sims' "excellent chance" prediction, everyone involved in the situation agrees that it will be a tough battle to get any labor bill at all approved by a majority of the labor committee.

During the house voting this week, the committee members opposed every major bill.

PEDDLERS TAKE OVER SHANGHAI

By Tom Lambert

SHANGHAI, May 7.—(AP)—The sidewalks of New York are a sight to some people, but you ought to see the sidewalks of Shanghai.

Always teeming with peddlers, they have become the largest merchandise "counter" in the world as normally salaried workers try to sell the goods they have received as wages.

Due to collapse of the Nationalist currency, few bosses had cash, so they paid off in whatever they could get.

Imagine California cannery workers being paid in canned peaches or a Massachusetts textile mill hand being paid in cloth. Then imagine those workes spreading these wares on market street in San Francisco or all over Boston Commons to try to sell enough to feed their families.

That's the sort of thing that's going on in Shanghai on a tremendous scale.

A typical case is a rather weazened, embarrassed old woman who has taken her stand in front of a smart linen shop on once-swank Yates road. She is trying to sell four cheap bedspreads—her month's wages. She attracts a little more attention than the linen shop windows, but neither venture is doing much business.

On crowded, jostling Tibet road, a pinch-faced youngster, obviously new to this hurly-burly merchandising, shouts the merits of his stock of six pairs of tennis shoes. That's what he got for two weeks work.

Along Tibet road and at the junction with Avenue King Edward The Seventh, there are thousands of such new merchants. Their wares include such diverse items as flutes, scarves, boots, handbags, mousetraps, pots, shoe laces, spoons and toothpaste—whatever their employers happened to have or were able to get to pay them off.

In this rough competition, the most bashful salesman soon loses his reticence. If he doesn't, he may lose the sale that means food for himself and family.

On busy Bubbling Well road, this correspondent saw a big-eyed frightened boy of about 12. His month's wages—a dozen handkerchiefs—were spread out in the shade of a parked truck. When asked the price of his goods, he whispered tremulously and gulped as a loud-mouthed professional hawker tried to muscle in.

Making the sale, the boy grinned his gratitude and bolted away.

NEW BUSSES WILL JOIN CITY'S FLEET

Shown above are six new modern busses which are being added to the City's transportation system. One of the busses went into operation yesterday and the remaining five are scheduled to go into service early this week. City officials placed the carriers on order several months ago but have faced three different delays in their delivery. However, they arrived late last week. The old fleet had become too worn and inefficient to meet the requirements of the city's commuters. Pictured with the busses are left to right, W. C. Cosford, of A. C. F. LOUISIANA POLICE QUESTION ROBBERS

MOBILE, Ala., May 7.—(AP)—Police from New Orleans and Hattiesburg, Miss., took turns today questioning six persons held here in connection with a wave of gulf coast safecracking jobs.

Detective Captain Talley Rollings said four of the group were arrested here in a car containing safecracking equipment, and two others taken in custody at a suburban home.

Articles stolen from the office vault of Jasper county, Miss., Sheriff Robert C. Alexander were found in their possession, Rollings said.

While more Louisiana and Mississippi officers entered the inquiry, Rollings said he also received queries about the group from police in El Dorado, Ark., and Marianna, Fla.

Rollings said he and the Mobile county sheriff's office also are questioning members of the sextet about operations in the Mobile area.

The New Orleans officers included both New Orleans police department detectives and state troopers. They said they were investigating "multiple safecracking crimes' 'in Louisiana. They returned to New Orleans.

Police Chief E. C. Harris of Hattiesburg said he was trying to solve a super-market burglary in the Mississippi city.

The bison did not migrate east of the Mississippi because that area lacked buffalo grass.

Grandma Hits Honor Roll At University

BATON ROUGE, La., May 7.—(AP)—Grandma worked her way through college, made the honor roll and now she's thinking of studying for her Master's.

That's what any of the five grandchildren of Mrs. Vera Soule Byrnes might say. Except the two who can't talk—they're six weeks old and twins.

Mrs. Byrnes, whose home is in Bogalusa, enrolled at Louisiana State University in 1945. She has helped pay her way since then by serving as a house mother on the staff of the dean of women.

An honor student in the college of education, Mrs. Byrnes will receive her degree in June. After that, she isn't sure. She may work on a Master's degree in guidance. Or she may teach or write textbooks for mentally deficient children.

Besides hitting the graduate honor roll, Mrs. Byrnes has several other campus laurels. These include sophomore honor student and membership in Mortar Board, honorary women's leadership group; Phi Kappa Phi and Kappa Delta Pi, national honorary education fraternities, and Alpha Lambda Delta and Mu Sigma Rho, honorary scholastic fraternities.

Mrs. Byrnes was in charge of a sophomore coed dormitory last year. She reverted to assistant this year when her studies got too heavy.

Besides the grandchildren, Mrs. Byrnes has a son, Comdr. R. S. Wiley, U. S. N., and two daughters, Mrs. W. S. Harrell of Bogalusa and Mrs. F. B. Carter of Peoria, Ill.

A MESSAGE OF IMPORTANCE TO—

All Men Of Co. D, 1st Regiment, Louisiana Infantry . . . 1917

Dear Comrades:

If you expect to be present at the reorganization barbecue, it is necessary you use the above clipping from your newspaper—or any other means you may elect—to notify C. E. McKenzie, who is in charge of the barbecue for the reorganization of members of Co. D, 1st Regiment, Louisiana Infantry, so necessary arrangements can be made and plenty will be on hand for all.

As you realize, there are about 250 men of this Company scattered over the country and since your Committee does not want anyone to be overlooked or neglected, we urgently solicit your cooperation in notifying C. E. McKenzie (or any other member of the Committee) who is in charge of the barbecue.

Come and bring a member of the old Company!

Your comrade,
LEON G. SUGAR,
Temporary Chairman.

DUTCH, INDONESIA PLAN COMPROMISE

Guerrilla Warfare Will Be Halted; Republic To Be Reestablished

BATAVIA, Java, May 7.—(AP)—The Dutch and Republican Indonesians agreed to a compromise program today to settle the Indonesian problem.

The Indonesians agreed to order a stop to guerrilla warfare estimated to be taking 100 lives daily.

The Dutch agreed to reestablish the Indonesian Republic in its Javanese capital, the residency of Jogjakarta, an area 40 miles across.

As soon as the Republic is reestablished, the Republicans said they would participate in a round table conference at The Hague for the purpose of speeding the "unconditional transfer of real and complete sovereignty" to a United States of Indonesia.

The Dutch on Feb. 2 set midsummer as a time target for the transfer of soverieignty. But today's agreement was nearly two months behind the Dutch schedule. The transfere would be accomplished by the creation of a simultaneous creation of a union in which the Dutch kingdom and the U. S. of I. would be equal partners under the Dutch crown.

The compromise was reached under auspices of the United Nations commission on Indonesia which has been steering informal talks between the parties here for the past two weeks.

In the final give and take, the Dutch gave way on their plan to restrict the restored Republic to the city of Jogjakarta and its immediate suburbs. The residency of Jogjakarta, over which they will recognize the free exercise of the Republic's functions, is the same territory as the sultanate of Jogjakarta. The sultan is pro-Republican.

Harmon Believes In Peas For Cattle

R. G. Harmon, chairman of the board of supervisors of the Boeuf River Soil Conservation district, and firm believer in the power of Singletary peas, takes a first-hand survey (above) of a pea patch on his 500-acre farm approximately five miles south of Monroe. On his farm, Harmon boasts a growth of cotton, beef cattle, dairy cattle, hay and seed products.

Southerners In Washington

By Gordon Brown
(AP Special Washington Service)

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—If President Truman strictly applies part of his party loyalty test formula to this week's labor bill votes in the house, it's goodbye patronage for all Mississippi and most Louisiana representatives.

The president, you will recall has said that he would regard votes on repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor bill as a test of loyalty to the Democratic party.

And party loyalty is one of the big considerations in deciding matters of patronage—meaning federal jobs.

Well, the house had two big votes on labor bills.

One was on approval of the Wood bill, which was offered as a substitute for the administration-backed Lessinski measure. Hence a vote for the Wood bill was a vote against the administration bill.

On this test, all of Mississippi's seven representatives and five of Louisiana's eight voted for the Wood substitute.

Voting with the administration forces were Representatives Boggs, Allen and Morrison, all of Louisiana. Against the administration were Mississippi's Abernethy, Colmer, Rankin, Whitten, Whittington, Williams and Winstead, and Louisiana's Hebert, Brooks, Larcade, Passman and Willis.

Next day came another test—a vote on recommittal of the Wood bill to the house labor committee. The administration wanted the bill recommitted and it was, by a 3-vote margin.

Again the Mississippians and Louisianians lined up the same way.

these votes come within his formula,

So if, in Mr. Truman's opinion, these votes come within his formula, it's easy to figure who probably won't be naming many postmasters, rural mail carriers and census workers.

However, the whole patronage picture is somewhat confused right now.

There are those who think the thing won't be decided actually as Mr. Truman's statement would indicate.

In fact, before the president spoke out, Democratic chairman McGrath said votes in congress wouldn't be the acid test but rather party loyalty would be decided by actions back in the home district.

A party spokesman amplified this to say that a congressman wouldn't necessarily be blacklisted even though he had bolted the party and opposed some of Mr. Truman's program. Each case, he said, would be decided on its merits.

So it may worl. out that representatives from the two states won't be frozen out entirely.

In fact, the committee spokesman pointed out, no congressman's recommendations could be entirely ignored since even the most dyed-in-the-wool states righter could recommend a pro-Truman Democrat for a job.

There's never been any secret that the administration isn't happy with Representatives Hebert, Rankin and Williams.

Williams campaigned strenuously against Truman. Rankin has placed the administration on a spot several times, notably with his big veterans pension bill; Hebert has opposed the administration at numerous points.

Most of the representatives say that actually little patronage is involved and they wouldn't mind having it taken away.

Representatives recommend postmasters and rural mail carriers and this year will recommend census workers.

Most of the Mississippians and Louisians report that they have been continuing to make postmaster and mail recommendations as in the past.

Most of them report that their mail carrier recommendations have carried through and their men have been appointed.

On postmasters, however, it is a different story. Up to now the president hasn't made any appointments for first and second class post offices in Mississippi and only two in Louisiana. These two were in Representative Boggs (La.) district.

Theoretically, representatives have no weapon with which to strike back at the president if he denies them patronage—other than to oppose his bills.

Actually, however, they do—provide their senators back them up.

Since most postmaster appointments must be confirmed by the senate, the senators could object to confirmation of any name not recommended by their colleagues in the house. In fact, Senator Stennis (Miss.) already has served notice he will adopt such a course.

If a senator objects to a purely state appointment, the senate seldom confirms.

Thus if the president sought to ride too rough shod over the representatives his own appointments could run into trouble.

It may be that this is the reason the president has moved slowly in making Mississippi appointments recommended by the pro-Truman group of Democrats in the state. For if these appointments didn't meet approval of Senators Stennis and Eastland, they would have rough going.

Stennis and the pro-Truman Mississippians already have one conflicting recommendation. Stennis has recommended Judge J. P. Coleman for U. S. district attorney; the pro-Truman group has recommended appointment of District Attorney Chester Summers.

What happens in this case may provide a key to how the president plans to proceed with southern patronage.

Mothballs promise to become important in giving warnings against dangerous radioactivity from exploding atoms or the detection of new facts about the composition of matter. They are competing with the famous Geiger counter, familiar detecting device of radioactivity.

Singletary Peas Proving Valuable For R. G. Harmon

R. G. Harmon, chairman, board of supervisors of the Boeuf River Soil Conservation District is a strong believer in Singletary peas. Harmon owns a 500-acre farm about five miles south of Monroe on the east bank of the Ouachita river. His farming operations include growing cotton, beef cattle, dairy cattle, hay and seed production.

Some six years ago Harmon planted a small acreage to Singletary peas and they proved to be so valuable, especially as a winter grazing crop, until today he has some 250 acres planted in this crop. During the past winter seventy head of mixed beef cattle grazed the entire winter on 120 acres of these peas and came out in good condition.

"The only feed these cattle received during the entire winter was a small amount of hay three days while the snow was on the ground," Harmon explained.

The cattle were removed from these peas April 10th to permit seed production. "I expect to get from $25 to $50 worth of seed per acre from this area and still later I will cut at least two tons per acre of bermuda grass hay," Harmon said. "All of this grazing, seed and hay production comes without the use of any commercial fertilizer," he added.

"When the cattle are removed from the peas they are placed in a clover and dallis grass pasture that is in full swing by this time of the year," Harmon said.

Singletary peas have the ability to recover from the effect of grazing very quickly. They will also withstand burning. During the extreme dry weather last August Harmon had about 15 acres of his land, where the peas had been, to burn over. The peas are as good here as in the other areas.

Prior to the fall of 1948, Harmon confined his peas to pasture, but last fall he decided to follow his cotton with peas. About Oct. 1, he planted 110 acres of cotton land to Singletary peas. No fertilizer was used.

"In fact they are so good I am not going to turn all of them under," Harmon stated. "These peas that have not been grazed will produce about 1,000 pounds of seed per acre," he added.

Harmon is a co-operator with the Boeuf River Soil Conservation District and with the Resistance of the Soil Conservation service has installed a drainage system on his farm. He has been chairman of this board of supervisors since it was organized some six years ago. He urges all farmers with a drainage problem to contact the district office at Rayville for assistance.

Harmon is an ex-big league baseball star. He pitched five years for the St. Louis Cardinals and five years for Pittsburgh. He is one of the very few who left big league baseball while still very active and with opportunities to play all over the country. The discovery of oil near Homer in the early 20's caused him to retire from baseball and devote his time to oil interests he had in the vicinity of Homer.

Grandma Hits Honor Roll At University

BATON ROUGE, La., May 7.—(AP)—Grandma worked her way through college, made the honor roll and now she's thinking of studying for her Master's.

That's what any of the five grandchildren of Mrs. Vera Soule Byrnes might say. Except the two who can't talk—they're six weeks old and twins.

Mrs. Byrnes, whose home is in Bogalusa, enrolled at Louisiana State University in 1945. She has helped pay her way since then by serving as a house mother on the staff of the dean of women.

An honor student in the college of education, Mrs. Byrnes will receive her degree in June. After that, she isn't sure. She may work on a Master's degree in guidance. Or she may teach or write textbooks for mentally deficient children.

Besides hitting the graduate honor roll, Mrs. Byrnes has several other campus laurels. These include sophomore honor student and membership in Mortar Board, honorary women's leadership group; Phi Kappa Phi and Kappa Delta Pi, national honorary education fraternities, and Alpha Lambda Delta and Mu Sigma Rho, honorary scholastic fraternities.

Mrs. Byrnes was in charge of a sophomore coed dormitory last year. She reverted to assistant this year when her studies got too heavy.

Besides the grandchildren, Mrs. Byrnes has a son, Comdr. R. S. Wiley, U. S. N., and two daughters, Mrs. W. S. Harrell of Bogalusa and Mrs. F. B. Carter of Peoria, Ill.

NATURAL GAS BILL STUDIED IN HOUSE

Seeks To Prevent Federal Control Over Gathering And Distribution

By Charles Haslet
(AP Special Washington Service)

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)— The House Interstate Commerce Petroleum subcommittee still is studying bills to prohibit the federal power commission from taking jurisdiction over production and gathering of natural gas by independent operators.

Hearings on the legislation by Representatives Harris (D-Ark.) and Lyle (D-Texas) were held in April before the group headed by Harris. Since then the subcommittee has met to consider the testimony and the bills but it has not yet decided what to recommend to the main committee.

"We are discussing two or three different angles," Harris told a reporter. But he did not disclose what these angles involved. He did say, however, that the subcommittee is looking "into language" which would accomplish what the subcommittee might want done.

The Harris committee plans to meet again Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Russell Brown, general counsel for the Independent Petroleum Association of America, said that as a result of testimony before the Harris Committee, he believes the need for amending the natural gas act to curb the commission's possible control over independent gas producers in local fields is more necessary now than ever before.

Leland Olds, commission member, has said he believes the commission should have some authority to regulate large independents and integrated companies in connection with price of gas at the intake of interstate pipelines.

"It is now clear," Brown said in a recent open letter to Fred Shield, president of the Independent Petroleum Association, "that the present majority of the members of the federal power commission will proceed, if the law is not clarified by congress, to extend its jurisdiction over independent producers and gatherers.

"His (Olds) testimony confirms, without doubt, all the fears that have persisted throughout the industry since the interstate decision (of the supreme court) that the PFC might at any time change its position and exercise jurisdiction over independent producers and gatherers of gas."

The independent operators who are opposing any designation as public utility concerns by FPC, point out that FPC Chairman Nelson Lee Smith and Commissioner Harry Wimberly filed a minority report with the committee.

Their report supported the need for clarifying the natural gas act so as to make clear the exempt status of independent producers and gatherers.

In a majority report, Olds was joined in his views by commissioners Claude Draper and Thomas Buchanan.

Chances Of Any New Labor Bill Slim

By Max Hall

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—The Democrats' chances of pushing a new compromise labor bill through the house at this session may depend on three coal area members—and John L. Lewis himself.

That was apparent today from a study of the makeup of the house labor committee and the week's labor legislation whirlwind.

It will be extremely difficult—probably impossible—even to get such a bill approved by the committee without the votes of three Democrats who represent coal mining districts.

These three men are Kelley of Pennsylvania, Bailey of West Virginia and Perkins of Kentucky.

Democrats have only a 13-12 majority on this committee. Without Kelley, Bailey and Perkins they don't have a majority at all.

As to Lewis, up to now he has firmly opposed compromising on the issue of repealing the Taft-Hartley act. Especially does the United Mine Workers president dislike any compromise that permits injunctions in labor disputes.

His position strongly indicates that he would rather let the Taft-Hartley act stay on the books until 1950 than to consent to such a compromise middle-road measure.

This week Lewis's lieutenants worked hard against the Sims bill, a compromise effort with the injunction feature endorsed by Speaker Rayburn (D.-Tex.). One congressman told a reporter that a representative of the United Mine Workers telephoned his office and said if he didn't vote against the Sims bill he would be "finished."

Most pro-union congressmen reluctantly accepted the Sims bill, but very few from heavy coal districts voted "yes." Kelley, Bailey and Perkins were among those who voted against it. The bill was defeated 211-183.

Representative Lesinski (D.-Mich.), chairman of the labor committee, publicly blamed John L. Lewis for beating it.

The question for the Democrats now is: can a bill be so drawn as to enlist the support of Kelley, Bailey and Perkins, and at the same time contain enough Taft-Hartley features to charm a sizeable chunk of votes away from the Taft-Hartley minded coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats in the house?

There is practically no chance of getting a house-written labor bill before the house at this session unless the committee first approves it. So if the committee can't agree, the house will have to wait for the senate to pass a bill—some time in June or July—and see what happens to it.

Representative Sims (D.-S. C.), who introduced the measure this week, said in an interview today that he is convinced no labor bill can pass the house unless it has "a strong national emergency provision and some kind of non-communist oath provision." But he said he isn't wedded to the Taft-Hartley language by any means.

He took the position there is an "excellent chance" that the committee, and then the house, will approve a new compromise measure within a month.

Sims said the new house bill may contain authority for both plant seizure and injunctions to deal with "national emergency" disputes. The Sims bill this week provided for injunctions only. The "seizure-and-injunction-or-both" procedure—which incidentially appears in the new senate Republican labor bill endorsed by Senator Taft of Ohio—is less objectionable to labor unions than straight seizure.

Despite Sims' "excellent chance" prediction, everyone involved in the situation agrees that it will be a tough battle to get any labor bill at all approved by a majority of the labor committee.

During the house voting this week, the committee members opposed every major bill.

PEDDLERS TAKE OVER SHANGHAI

By Tom Lambert

SHANGHAI, May 7.—(AP)—The sidewalks of New York are a sight to some people, but you ought to see the sidewalks of Shanghai.

Always teeming with peddlers, they have become the largest merchandise "counter" in the world as normally salaried workers try to sell the goods they have received as wages.

Due to collapse of the Nationalist currency, few bosses had cash, so they paid off in whatever they could get.

Imagine California cannery workers being paid in canned peaches or a Massachusetts textile mill hand being paid in cloth. Then imagine those workes spreading these wares on market street in San Francisco or all over Boston Commons to try to sell enough to feed their families.

That's the sort of thing that's going on in Shanghai on a tremendous scale.

A typical case is a rather weazened, embarrassed old woman who has taken her stand in front of a smart linen shop on once-swank Yates road. She is trying to sell four cheap bedspreads—her month's wages. She attracts a little more attention than the linen shop windows, but neither venture is doing much business.

On crowded, jostling Tibet road, a pinch-faced youngster, obviously new to this hurly-burly merchandising, shouts the merits of his stock of six pairs of tennis shoes. That's what he got for two weeks work.

Along Tibet road and at the junction with Avenue King Edward The Seventh, there are thousands of such new merchants. Their wares include such diverse items as flutes, scarves, boots, handbags, mousetraps, pots, shoe laces, spoons and toothpaste—whatever their employers happened to have or were able to get to pay them off.

In this rough competition, the most bashful salesman soon loses his reticence. If he doesn't, he may lose the sale that means food for himself and family.

On busy Bubbling Well road, this correspondent saw a big-eyed frightened boy of about 12. His month's wages—a dozen handkerchiefs—were spread out in the shade of a parked truck. When asked the price of his goods, he whispered tremulously and gulped as a loud-mouthed professional hawker tried to muscle in.

Making the sale, the boy grinned his gratitude and bolted away.

NEW BUSSES WILL JOIN CITY'S FLEET

Shown above are six new modern busses which are being added to the City's transportation system. One of the busses went into operation yesterday and the remaining five are scheduled to go into service early this week. City officials placed the carriers on order several months ago but have faced three different delays in their delivery. However, they arrived late last week. The old fleet had become too worn and inefficient to meet the requirements of the city's commuters. Pictured with the busses are left to right, W. C. Cosford, of A. C. F. Brill Motor Co., Wiley Mosely, Johnny Simmons and Frank Cline.

LOUISIANA POLICE QUESTION ROBBERS

MOBILE, Ala., May 7.—(AP)—Police from New Orleans and Hattiesburg, Miss., took turns today questioning six persons held here in connection with a wave of gulf coast safecracking jobs.

Detective Captain Talley Rollings said four of the group were arrested here in a car containing safecracking equipment, and two others taken in custody at a suburban home.

Articles stolen from the office vault of Jasper county, Miss., Sheriff Robert C. Alexander were found in their possession, Rollings said.

While more Louisiana and Mississippi officers entered the inquiry, Rollings said he also received queries about the group from police in El Dorado, Ark., and Marianna, Fla.

Rollings said he and the Mobile county sheriff's office also are questioning members of the sextet about operations in the Mobile area.

The New Orleans officers included both New Orleans police department detectives and state troopers. They said they were investigating "multiple safecracking crimes' 'in Louisiana. They returned to New Orleans.

Police Chief E. C. Harris of Hattiesburg said he was trying to solve a super-market burglary in the Mississippi city.

BETTY SUE JONES WEDS AAGE GLUD AT RECENT CEREMONY AT CHURCH

The marriage of Miss Betty Sue Jones daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Jones, and Mr. Aage Glud took place at the First Presbyterian Church on April 21. The Reverend E. D. Holloway performed the double ring ceremony before a background of white gladioli, interspersed with greenery and glowing white tapers in wrought iron candelabra.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin wedding dress fashioned on princess lines. The gown which had a sweetheart neckline ended in a full train. Her veil of illusion fell from a tiara of valley lillies and she carried a white Bible surmounted by white "brides orchids."

Miss Helen Morrison, of Vicksburg, Mississippi, was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. A. H. Cloud, Jr., of Houston, Texas, and Mrs. Gordon E. Mulvey, of Tampa, Florida, both former Monroe residents. Their identical gowns were of blue marquisette and they carried bouquets of spring flowers tied with multicolored ribbons. They wore hats which matched the frocks.

Mr. C. K. Crandall served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Mr. Bobby Morrison, of Vicksburg, Mississippi, a cousin of the bride, Mr. Albert Cloud, of Houston, Texas, and Mr. Pete Butitta and Mr. Harry Liner of this city.

RANSOM SCHOOL HAS COLORFUL MAY DAY PROGRAM RECENTLY

The Ransom School's recent May day festival was a gala event. A space for the court was roped off and surrounded by shrubbery entwined with roses and other colorful spring flowers.

A throne was constructed beneath an arbor of pink roses for the queen, her maid of honor, and teh court maids. On the green court lawn, every class in school was to have performed for the royal court.

When bad weather conditions forced the holding of the performance indoors, the rostrum and throne chair were moved into the cafeteria.

The program was opened by the court herald, Jimmy Edmiston, who strode forward and blew a blast on his trumpet. He was wearing a royal blue satin cape lined with gold and a matching herald's hat.

The welcome address was given by Robbie Dee Fuller, a fifth grade pupil, who wore wine colored taffeta. Patsy Brown, the moderator for the entire program, chose for the occasion a blue taffeta model with corsage of pink roses. She stood by the microphone and announced each event as it took place.

The processional was led by two pages, Glenn Scruggs and James Parker. They were colorful figures in red satin capes and white trousers.

These were followed by the maids and their escorts. First came Annette Haynes, wearing a pink sheer with white flowers. She was escorted by Donald Chatham.

Evelyn Perkins, on the arm of Wade Brown, was a colorful figure in yellow taffeta with talisman roses.

Janes Hammons, escorted by J. L. Furlow, wore an orchid taffeta net frock with white daisies.

Sandra Willis, wearing a pink net with pink flowers, entered on the arm of Ronnie Butler.

Peggy Perkins, escorted by Donald Potier, was clad in blue organdy with white flowers. Joanna Massey, on the arm of Larry Wrather, was becomingly gowned in blue taffeta. Carolyn Curry, escorted by Glenn Ray, also chose blue taffeta and flowers.

The maid of honor, Gwendolyn Dunn, entered next on the arm of Billy Clark. She wore a pink taffeta dress and had a wreath of tiny white flowers in her hair.

She was followed by the tiny crown bearer, Ann Roye, bearing the flower bedecked crown on a white satin pillow. Ann was wearing a very short ballerina skirt and white blouse with long full sleeves.

The queen, Barbara Jean Coats, entered on the arm of Oran Don Ray, who wore a white linen suit. Barbara wore a bouffant dress of white organdy and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

As she stepped upon the platform, Mr. G. S. Manning placed a crown upon her head, naming her queen of May.

The herald blew another blast to announce the ward of various grades coming onto the court to perform for the queen.

A highlight of the program was the Tom Thumb wedding given by Mrs. Ruth Poimboeuf's second grade. The ceremony, complete in every detail. was performed against a setting of peach blossoms, which had been created by teacher and pupils. The wedding guests, attired to represent some of the leading celebrities of the land, added much to the occasion as they entered in appropriate costumes.

Miss Opal Milton's second grade, representing Tommy Dorsey's orchestra charmed the audience throughout the wedding as they played their rhythm instruments. In colorful red satin capes and caps trimmed with gold braid, they added much to the gaiety of the event.

The first grade sang and dramatized the "Hunting Song." They were clad in short white hunting suits with large black ties and with tinkling bells on their slippers.

The third grade classes each did a folk dance.

The fourth grade, carrying gaily colored balloons did a drill with intricate formations, white the fourth grade with the girls in knee length ruffled dresses in pastel shades did the folk dance, "Gustave's Skoal," and the fifth and sixth grades danced the Virginia Reel. The girls were wearing long square dance skirts and peasant blouses while the boys wore blue jeans.

The program ended with the first grade class doing the maypole dance. They were dressed as sunbonnet babies and overall boys.

Twin City P.-T. A. Council Meets On Thursday Afternoon

Mrs. E. H. Scott was appointed chairman of the Twin City P.-T. A. Council's "School of Instruction" at the last regular meeting of the Twin City P.-T. A. Council for this school year on Thursday. Mrs. Julius Irving, council president, gave an interesting report on the state P.-T. A. convention, and annual reports of the year's activities were made.

The Twin City council's "School of Instruction" has been set for Sept. 26. This is a school to instruct all officers and chairmen from the units in the Twin Cities in the various phases of work in the P.-T. A. It is very important that they attend this school of instruction, for it will not only benefit them personally but their individual units as well, it was pointed out.

The State P.-T. A. "Workshop" will be held at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, August 3-5. This has been planned at a minimum expense for those who attend.

"Education Today's Challenge," stated Mrs. Irving, "was the theme of the recent convention. Every school in the Twin City Council rated a "Superior Goal Certificate." Sherrouse, Barkdull Faulk, Georgia Tucker, and St. Matthew's scrapbooks received a "superior" rating on their scrapbooks, and W. R. Mitchell, and Crosley received "excellent" ratings.

"National life membership pins were presented to Mrs. W. S. Vincent, state P.-T. A. president, and Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, retiring state second vice-president, during the recent convention, it was reported.

Mrs. H. E. Rivers, chairman of the committee to investigate the ways and means to support the P.-T. A. council, reported that a basic contribution from each local unit of $5.00 for the first 50 members and $1.00 for each additional 50 members would adequately finance the council and eliminate the need of putting on a campaign.

The council went on record to send a telegram to Sen. Otto E. Passman requesting that he explain his stand on the federal aid to education bill S 246, and it also went on record to endorse the current program of the Salvation Army.

The annual reports of the year's activities were made as follows: Mrs. George Guerriero, auditing committee; Mrs. A. C. Lea, magazines; Mrs. E. H. Scott, publicity; Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, radio; Mrs. George Guerriero, membership.

Barkdull Faulk Has Music Week Program At School Thursday

W. R. Parks, music director in the three city schools of south Monroe, planned an observance of National Music Week at Barkdull Faulk School in two programs, one for upper elementary grades and one for primaries.

Mr. Parks invited Neville Junior High students, choir members at Barkdull Faulk last year, to join with this year's choir in a song-fest on Thursday morning.

Neville students present were: Billye Fay Williams, Julia Bess Williams, Patricia Simmons, Joe Lacy, Gerald Curry, Gene Dorman, "Dizzy" Keever, Gene Barham, Billy Wilhite, Emmett Smith, and Neville's Junior Hi Trio, George Fontana, Cark Taylor, and Philip Ambrose (formerly of Sherrouse). Faculty guests were principal of junior high, G. E. Boggs, and music supervisor, Miss Clara Hall.

The program opened with a group of songs by the trio; accompanied; spiritual, "My Lord, What a Mawnin'"; folk song, "Betsy From Pike"; and an arrangement of "Lil Liza Jane." As an encore the boys sang, "Down in the Valley." Martha Williams sang a solo, "Bells of St. Mary's," accompanied by Miss Castles. A solo, "Nobody Knows De Trouble I've Seen," was sung by Director W. R. Parks and dedicated to his work with the students of the school since January 1.

Under the direction of Mr. Parks, with Mrs. Ruth Dufresne as accompanist, the combined choirs sang: "Cherubin" by Bortiansky, "The Lord Is My Shepherd" by Korchat, "Galilee" by Dinizetti, and "Easter Carol," Lithuanian folk song.

By request Philip Ambrose played Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in C Minor." His rendition was a demonstration of unusual musical ability.

The final number on the program was "The Hallelujah Chorus" by Handel, sung by the Barkdull Faulk Choir.

Mr. Boggs and Miss Hall spoke for the guests from Neville Junior High, expressing appreciation of the invitation and inviting the Barkdull Faulk children for a visit to Neville.

The afternoon program for first, second, and third grades included two numbers from the rhythm band directed by Mrs. Surghnor, with 104 first grade children taking part. Director Parks expressed his satisfaction with the attentiveness of the children to the directions of their leader and with their rhythmic expression.

Mr. Parks directed the three grades in a community song program. The second and third grades were given an opportunity to demonstrate rhythmic activities in connection with their music.

JONESBORO

Of cordial interest to their many friends throughout this section is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Betty Meredith of Monroe, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Meredith of Jonesboro, and George W. Horton, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Horton of Monroe, which was solemnized at the Jonesboro Methodist Church on Sunday afternoon, May 1, at 3 o'clock. The Rev. A. A. McKnight officiated at the impressive double ring ceremony.

The church altar was beautifully decorated for the exchange of vows with floor baskets of white gladioli interspersed with fern. Southern smilax was used in the background. The light of numerous white tapers in graduated standards cast a soft glow over the altar arrangement. The ushers, Billy McDonald of Jonesboro, and Jimmy Tolson of Monroe, lighted the candles preceding the ceremony.

A prenuptial musical concert was rendered by Mrs. Howard Hearne. She also accompanied Mrs. W. K. Scroggin who sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "The Lord's Prayer." The traditional wedding marches marked the beginning and the end of the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Dr. A. A. Meredith. Her titian-haired beauty was enhanced by her wedding suit of white gabardine, and a smart bonnet of white straw with green nylon streamers which tied under the chin. Her other accessories were of white and she carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid and white satin streamers in cascade effect.

Miss Peggy Meredith was her sister's only attendant. She wore a smart frock of navy blue with matching accessories. She carried a bouquet of white tulips tied with wide satin ribbon ending in long streamers.

The groom was attended by Arnold Thompson of Monroe, as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The guests were greeted by the members of the wedding party and the parents of the bride and groom. They were conducted into the living room which was florally adorned with exquisite arrangements of white daisies and white roses with trailing greenery. The bride's table in the dining room was overlaid with a handsome cloth and featured as a central decor white carnations and fern in a low crystal bowl. Slender white tapers burning in crystal holders were reflected in the table appointments. The three-tiered wedding cake was topped with miniature figurines of a bride and groom. After the young couple had cut the cake, the guests were served with Mrs. M. M. Hearne presiding at the crystal punch bowl. Mrs. W. T. Holloway and Mrs. A. R. Garrett assisted in the serving courtesies.

The many lovely and useful gifts were on display in the sun parlor. Mrs. E. L. Meredith, Sr., presided over the bride's book.

Mr. and Mrs. Horton left on a wedding trip which will take them through the Ozarks. On their return they will be at home in Ruston where Mr. Horton is employed.

The marriage of Miss Betty Sue Jones daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Jones, and Mr. Aage Glud took place at the First Presbyterian Church on April 21. The Reverend E. D. RANSOM SCHOOL HAS COLORFUL MAY DAY PROGRAM RECENTLY

The Ransom School's recent May day festival was a gala event. A space for the court was roped off and surrounded by shrubbery entwined with roses and other colorful spring flowers.

A throne was constructed beneath an arbor of pink roses for the queen, her maid of honor, and teh court maids. On the green court lawn, every class in school was to have performed for the royal court.

When bad weather conditions forced the holding of the performance indoors, the rostrum and throne chair were moved into the cafeteria.

The program was opened by the court herald, Jimmy Edmiston, who strode forward and blew a blast on his trumpet. He was wearing a royal blue satin cape lined with gold and a matching herald's hat.

The welcome address was given by Robbie Dee Fuller, a fifth grade pupil, who wore wine colored taffeta. Patsy Brown, the moderator for the entire program, chose for the occasion a blue taffeta model with corsage of pink roses. She stood by the microphone and announced each event as it took place.

The processional was led by two pages, Glenn Scruggs and James Parker. They were colorful figures in red satin capes and white trousers.

These were followed by the maids and their escorts. First came Annette Haynes, wearing a pink sheer with white flowers. She was escorted by Donald Chatham.

Evelyn Perkins, on the arm of Wade Brown, was a colorful figure in yellow taffeta with talisman roses.

Janes Hammons, escorted by J. L. Furlow, wore an orchid taffeta net frock with white daisies.

Sandra Willis, wearing a pink net with pink flowers, entered on the arm of Ronnie Butler.

Peggy Perkins, escorted by Donald Potier, was clad in blue organdy with white flowers. Joanna Massey, on the arm of Larry Wrather, was becomingly gowned in blue taffeta. Carolyn Curry, escorted by Glenn Ray, also chose blue taffeta and flowers.

The maid of honor, Gwendolyn Dunn, entered next on the arm of Billy Clark. She wore a pink taffeta dress and had a wreath of tiny white flowers in her hair.

She was followed by the tiny crown bearer, Ann Roye, bearing the flower bedecked crown on a white satin pillow. Ann was wearing a very short ballerina skirt and white blouse with long full sleeves.

The queen, Barbara Jean Coats, entered on the arm of Oran Don Ray, who wore a white linen suit. Barbara wore a bouffant dress of white organdy and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

As she stepped upon the platform, Mr. G. S. Manning placed a crown upon her head, naming her queen of May.

The herald blew another blast to announce the ward of various grades coming onto the court to perform for the queen.

A highlight of the program was the Tom Thumb wedding given by Mrs. Ruth Poimboeuf's second grade. The ceremony, complete in every detail, was performed against a setting of peach blossoms, which had been created by teacher and pupils. The wedding guests, attired to represent some of the leading celebrities of the land, added much to the occasion as they entered in appropriate costumes.

Miss Opal Milton's second grade, representing Tommy Dorsey's orchestra charmed the audience throughout the wedding as they played their rhythm instruments. In colorful red satin capes and caps trimmed with gold braid, they added much to the gaiety of the event.

The first grade sang and dramatized the "Hunting Song." They were clad in short white hunting suits with large black ties and with tinkling bells on their slippers.

The third grade classes each did a folk dance.

The fourth grade, carrying gaily colored balloons did a drill with intricate formations, white the fourth grade with the girls in knee length ruffled dresses in pastel shades did the folk dance, "Gustave's Skoal," and the fifth and sixth grades danced the Virginia Reel. The girls were wearing long square dance skirts and peasant blouses while the boys wore blue jeans.

The program ended with the first grade class doing the maypole dance. They were dressed as sunbonnet babies and overall boys.

Twin City P.-T. A. Council Meets On Thursday Afternoon

Mrs. E. H. Scott was appointed chairman of the Twin City P.-T. A. Council's "School of Instruction" at the last regular meeting of the Twin City P.-T. A. Council for this school year on Thursday. Mrs. Julius Irving, council president, gave an interesting report on the state P.-T. A. convention, and annual reports of the year's activities were made.

The Twin City council's "School of Instruction" has been set for Sept. 26. This is a school to instruct all officers and chairmen from the units in the Twin Cities in the various phases of work in the P.-T. A. It is very important that they attend this school of instruction, for it will not only benefit them personally but their individual units as well, it was pointed out.

The State P.-T. A. "Workshop" will be held at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, August 3-5. This has been planned at a minimum expense for those who attend.

"Education Today's Challenge," stated Mrs. Irving, "was the theme of the recent convention. Every school in the Twin City Council rated a "Superior Goal Certificate." Sherrouse, Barkdull Faulk, Georgia Tucker, and St. Matthew's scrapbooks received a "superior" rating on their scrapbooks, and W. R. Mitchell, and Crosley received "excellent" ratings.

"National life membership pins were presented to Mrs. W. S. Vincent, state P.-T. A. president, and Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, retiring state second vice-president, during the recent convention, it was reported.

Mrs. H. E. Rivers, chairman of the committee to investigate the ways and means to support the P.-T. A. council, reported that a basic contribution from each local unit of $5.00 for the first 50 members and $1.00 for each additional 50 members would adequately finance the council and eliminate the need of putting on a campaign.

The council went on record to send a telegram to Sen. Otto E. Passman requesting that he explain his stand on the federal aid to education bill S 246, and it also went on record to endorse the current program of the Salvation Army.

The annual reports of the year's activities were made as follows: Mrs. George Guerriero, auditing committee; Mrs. A. C. Lea, magazines; Mrs. E. H. Scott, publicity; Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, radio; Mrs. George Guerriero, membership.

CALHOUN P.-T. A. HEARS ARBOR DAY PROGRAM AT SCHOOL

The Calhoun P.-T. A. met in the band room of the high school for its April meeting. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Faye Burdeaux. Officers for another year, Mrs. Lloyd Coon, president, and Mr. J. E. Walker, secretary.

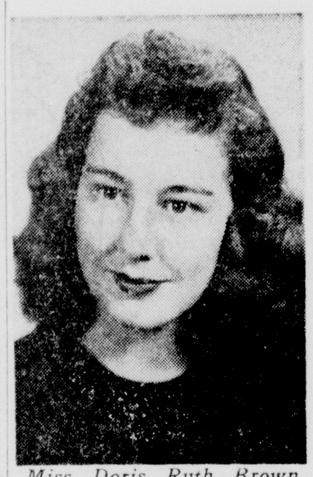

The eighth grade presented an interesting Arbor Day program.

The program was as follows: Leader, Elaine Russell, "First Arbor Day," Wanda Jordan; "First Observance in the U. S. A.," Jerry Johnson.

"State Second to Recognize Arbor Day," Ada Sue Roach; "George Washington, the Forester," Earl Williams; "Quotation from William Cullen Bryant," Rueben Long; poem, "The Planting of the Apple Tree," Dolly Jo Burdeaux;" song, "Trees," Joyce Kilmer, by Fay Thompson.

The class planted an oak tree that day and it was dedicated by the class at the close of the program. A poem, "The Oak"—Dryden was recited by Jettie Bryan.

Neville students present were: Billye Fay Williams, Julia Bess Williams, Patricia Simmons, Joe Lacy, Gerald Curry, Gene Dorman, "Dizzy" Keever, Gene Barham, Billy Wilhite, Emmett Smith, and Neville's Junior Hi Trio, George Fontana, Cark Taylor, and Philip Ambrose (formerly of Sherrouse). Faculty guests were principal of junior high, G. E. Boggs, and music supervisor, Miss Clara Hall.

The program opened with a group of songs by the trio; accompanied; spiritual, "My Lord, What a Mawnin'"; folk song, "Betsy From Pike"; and an arrangement of "Lil Liza Jane." As an encore the boys sang, "Down in the Valley." Martha Williams sang a solo, "Bells of St. Mary's," accompanied by Miss Castles. A solo, "Nobody Knows De Trouble I've Seen," was sung by Director W. R. Parks and dedicated to his work with the students of the school since January 1.

Under the direction of Mr. Parks, with Mrs. Ruth Dufresne as accompanist, the combined choirs sang: "Cherubin" by Bortiansky, "The Lord Is My Shepherd" by Korchat, "Galilee" by Dinizetti, and "Easter Carol," Lithuanian folk song.

By request Philip Ambrose played Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in C Minor." His rendition was a demonstration of unusual musical ability.

The final number on the program was "The Hallelujah Chorus" by Handel, sung by the Barkdull Faulk Choir.

Mr. Boggs and Miss Hall spoke for the guests from Neville Junior High, expressing appreciation of the invitation and inviting the Barkdull Faulk children for a visit to Neville.

The afternoon program for first, second, and third grades included two numbers from the rhythm band directed by Mrs. Surghnor, with 104 first grade children taking part. Director Parks expressed his satisfaction with the attentiveness of the children to the directions of their leader and with their rhythmic expression.

Mr. Parks directed the three grades in a community song program. The second and third grades were given an opportunity to demonstrate rhythmic activities in connection with their music.

BRIDESMAIDS

JONESBORO

Of cordial interest to their many friends throughout this section is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Betty Meredith of Monroe, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Meredith of Jonesboro, and George W. Horton, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Horton of Monroe, which was solemnized at the Jonesboro Methodist Church on Sunday afternoon, May 1, at 3 o'clock. The Rev. A. A. McKnight officiated at the impressive double ring ceremony.

The church altar was beautifully decorated for the exchange of vows with floor baskets of white gladioli interspersed with fern. Southern smilax was used in the background. The light of numerous white tapers in graduated standards cast a soft glow over the altar arrangement. The ushers, Billy McDonald of Jonesboro, and Jimmy Tolson of Monroe, lighted the candles preceding the ceremony.

A prenuptial musical concert was rendered by Mrs. Howard Hearne. She also accompanied Mrs. W. K. Scroggin who sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "The Lord's Prayer." The traditional wedding marches marked the beginning and the end of the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Dr. A. A. Meredith. Her titian-haired beauty was enhanced by her wedding suit of white gabardine, and a smart bonnet of white straw with green nylon streamers which tied under the chin. Her other accessories were of white and she carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid and white satin streamers in cascade effect.

Miss Peggy Meredith was her sister's only attendant. She wore a smart frock of navy blue with matching accessories. She carried a bouquet of white tulips tied with wide satin ribbon ending in long streamers.

The groom was attended by Arnold Thompson of Monroe, as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The guests were greeted by the members of the wedding party and the parents of the bride and groom. They were conducted into the living room which was florally adorned with exquisite arrangements of white daisies and white roses with trailing greenery. The bride's table in the dining room was overlaid with a handsome cloth and featured as a central decor white carnations and fern in a low crystal bowl. Slender white tapers burning in crystal holders were reflected in the table appointments. The three-tiered wedding cake was topped with miniature figurines of a bride and groom. After the young couple had cut the cake, the guests were served with Mrs. M. M. Hearne presiding at the crystal punch bowl. Mrs. W. T. Holloway and Mrs. A. R. Garrett assisted in the serving courtesies.

The many lovely and useful gifts were on display in the sun parlor. Mrs. E. L. Meredith, Sr., presided over the bride's book.

Mr. and Mrs. Horton left on a wedding trip which will take them through the Ozarks. On their return they will be at home in Ruston where Mr. Horton is employed.

Mrs. Horton is well known here where she has resided most of her life. She was a popular member of the younger set during her residence here.

MOTHER'S WAY

"Tender, gentle, brave and true,
Loving us whate'er we do!
Waiting, watching at the gate
For the footsteps that are late
Sleepless thru the hours of night
Till she knows that we're all right
Pleased with every word we say —
That is ever mother's way."

Make this a real Mother's Day by attending Divine worship.

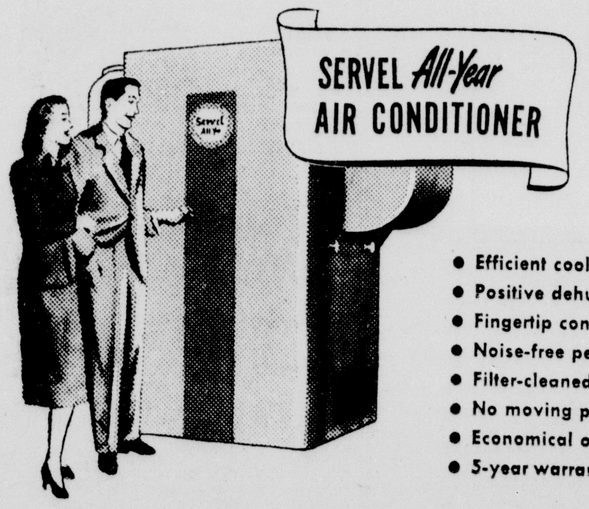

Grace Church is Located 14 Blocks North of Illinois Central Railroad on Fourth Street

Said Bishop Manning in a recent sermon on "The Blessed Mother of Our Lord": "The moral leadership now needed in this country must come from the Christian women of our land. The Blessed Virgin Mary is the symbol and example of those things which modern pagan movements are seeking to destroy, the ideals of morality and purity, the sanctity of the home and family, the glory of motherhood, and sacredness and the permanence of the marriage tie."

'January Thaw' To Be Presented On Thursday Evening

Ouachita's class of '49 play, "January Thaw," a three-act comedy by William Roos, will be presented in the Ouachita Parish High School auditorium on Thursday evening.

Members of the cast, as announced by Miss June Shultz, director, are Ginger Coats, Frieda, the maid; Willoughby Thomas as Herbert Gage, a writer; Virginia Poole as Marge Gage, his wife.

Joan Parker as Barbara Gage, their older daughter; John Harper as George Husted, Barbara's shy fiance; Edwin Russell and Marilyn Kennedy as Jonathan and Matilda Rockwood, two old settlers.

Joe Monroe, Mr. Loomis, a lawyer; Billy Dunn as Uncle Walter, an old geezer; Tommy Starnes as Matt Rockwood, a rural Romeo; and John Turner as Carson, a local policeman. Lynn Merriman and Bobby Moody, eighth-graders, portary Sarah and Paul Gage, the two younger children.

In the play the Gage family seek refuge from a stuffy New York apartment in an old farm house. Unfortunately, another family claims ownership and moves in with the Gages. A contest for possession begins with neither able to turn the other out. A blizzard clamps down and the scene has all the appearances of complete disaster. In the delightful ending, however, all is happily and intelligently solved.

Edwin "Sonny" Russell will portray Jonathan Rockwood, an elderly farmer. His Connecticut twang and witty lines are as suited to "Sonny" as are his dry humor and joking ways.

The son of Jonathan is Matt, played by Tommy Starnes. He's definitely a "lady's man." He is also the son of Mathilda, Marilyn Kennedy. The contrast in Marilyn's four feet-eleven inches and "Sonny's" six feet will bring many chuckles.

You'll laugh all through the play, but you'll roar at at Billie Lett Dunn, who plays Uncle Walter. Clowning Billie Lett's lines set off a panic of laughs.

Virginia Poole, a this year's transfer student from Arkansas, is the wife of Herbert Gage, a New York author. Virginia has manifested unsuspected talent as Marge, and will, we believe, give convincing portrayal.

The seniors have "borrowed" two sub-freshmen to be Herbert's and Marge's younger children—Lynn Merriman and Bobby Moody. They are loads of fun to work with and certainly add something to the play.

The staff as announced by Miss Shultz is as follows: Props committee, Judy Sawyer, Evelyn Gochenour, Emma Lou Owens, and Barbara Franklin; advertising and program committee, Beverly Hatchell, Duncan Burford, and Joan Ransom; make-up chairman, Judy Sawyer; and stage manager, Tommy Starnes.

Ushers will be Doris Spell, Joan Ransom, Beverly Hatchell, Joan Bancroft, Mona Newman, LaVerne Cockrell, Bobby Parker, and Louise Ticheli.

O. P. H. S. CHOIR DELIGHTS AUDIENCE AT WEEK'S CONCERT

The Ouachita Choir and Ensemble under the direction of Miss Velma Nichols appeared in concert Thursday night to the delight of an exceptionally large and appreciate audience assembled in the school auditorium. The group successfully captivated the audience with a program of variety and interest.

The choir possessed all of the necessary degrees of mature musicianship. Its sense of ensemble, meticulous attention to the subtle nuisances of the voices and satisfying stage personalities impressed the audience. The performance was well up to the enthusiastic ovation which the choir received from the audience.

Miss Nichol's artistry in conducting was a highlight of the evening.

From the standpoint of the audience, the program was outstanding for its variety of compositions in different mediums ranging from 16th century "Agnus Dei" by Thomas Morley to the contemporary folk music of the Appalachian Carol. "I Wonder as I Wonder." Travis DeFreese, student conductor, directed the girls choir in J. S. Bach's "We Hasten with Feeble But Diligent Footsteps" from the scared cantata No. 78, "Jesus, Thou My Wearied Spirit." In a beautiful double ring ceremony, characterized by simplicity, at the First Baptist Church in Farmerville, on Saturday afternoon, April 16, at 5 o'clock, Miss Lillie Mae Lewis of West Monroe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Griffith Lewis of Gloster, Miss., became the bride of Mr. Charles Lee Barr of Monroe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Lee Barr of Farmerville, with the Rev. Luther B. Hall, pastor of the church, officiating. An attractive arrangement of Easter lilies and fern in baskets and floor standards, graced the dignified edifice. Southern smilax was used to bank the chancel railing, where white tapers gleamed at regular intervals. Cathedral tapers burning in wrought-iron candelabra of graduated lengths, cast a soft glow.

The pews were marked with white satin ribbon bows, and only members of the immediate families witnessed the ceremony.

After the guests had been seated by the ushers, Mr. Jack Turnage and Mr. Bobby Gayle Miller, cousins of the bridegroom, they lighted the candles, during which lovely pre-nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Tazewell W. Baird, pianist, aunt of the groom, and Mr. Fred Preaus and Mr. Frank Mathews, violinist. Mrs. Baird accompanied Mrs. Bobby Gayle Miller, soloist, who wore a soft grey tailleur suit with pink blouse and pink carnation corsage, and sang in splendid voice "Because" by Gui D'Hardelot and "Always" by Irving Berlin. The bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" was used as processional and 'Mendelssohn's Wedding March" as recessional. During the exchanging of vows, "I Love You Truly" was softly played.

The bride's only attendant was her sister-in-law, Mrs. Marvin Lewis of Natchez, Miss., who was wearing a stunning two-piece model of weathervaneneaqua, with pink off-the-face straw hat, flower trimmed with a nose veil and a shoulder corsage of pink carnations.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Marvin Lewis, was lovely. She wore an exquisite strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom, and carried an ivory bound Bible, surmounted with white orchids and clusters of valley lily sprays, with satin streamers showered with valley lilies. She carried out the old tradition of wearing something old, new, borrowed, blue and a penny in her shoe. Awaiting at the altar with the bridegroom, was Mr. George Holland, Jr., of Monroe, who served as best man.

Mrs. Lewis chose for her daughter's wedding a black print, accented by a white carnation corsage. Her accessories were black, with a natural milan hat. Mrs. Barr was becomingly dressed in mauve crepe, lace trimmed, with black accessories and a pale pink carnation corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Barr left immediately for a wedding trip along the Gulf coast. Upon their return they will reside at 1013 North Fifth street, Monroe.

Mrs. Barr graduated from the Ouachita parish high school and NJC, Monroe. Mr. Barr graduated from Farmerville High School and attended Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Ruston. He served three and a half years in World War II, having spent two and a half years of the time overseas. He is now employed by Brown Paper Mill at Monroe.

Mr. and Mrs. Tazewell W. Baird and Miss Olivia Barr were hostesses at the Baird home in Farmerville on Friday evening, April 15, honoring Miss Lillie Mae Lewis and Mr. Charles Lee Barr, following the rehearsal, whose marriage took place on April 16.

Beautiful red radiance roses, iris, stock and tulips were placed in artistic profusion throughout the reception suite.

Delicious refreshments were served at small tables, overlaid with white linen mederia cut work cloths, which held for central decor, tiny china birds, filled with white and blue spring flowers.

The guests found their places by double wedding ring place cards. Miss Lewis wore a light grey two-piece model and a red rose bud corsage. The bride-elect chose this time to present her attendants, jeweled scatter pins. Mr. Barr gave his attendants gold pencil tie clasp. PUBLIC NOTICE

The City Council of Monroe on April 18, 1949, adopted an ordinance submitting to the qualified taxpaying voters of Monroe at an election to be held May 31, 1949, the question of improving and expanding our Electric Power and Water Plants and Distribution Systems. This improvement and expansion has been recommended by Ford, Bacon and Davis, Inc., Consulting Engineers, after a complete survey of our utilities.

The improvement and expansion program will cost approximately $7,000,000.00, which amount will be spent throughout a period of ten years. Although your City Council seeks authorization for the entire amount at this election, all the bonds will not be issued nor all the money spent at one time. Approximately $3,600,000.00 will be needed during the first two years of the program and bonds for such amount will be issued and sold within a short time. Bonds for the remainder will be issued and sold only as the money is needed for the step by step comprehensive program. All bonds will be sold at the lowest interest rate obtainable, not to exceed 5 per cent, after public advertisement and competitive bidding.

The funds from the sale of the bonds can be used ONLY for the purposes voted, to-wit: the improvement and expansion of the Electric Power and Water Plants and Distribution Systems.

Your City Council proposes to pay for this expansion and improvement out of the revenue of the utilities. It is conservatively estimated that the increase in revenues expected from our utilities as a result of the normal growth of the City will be sufficient to repay the cost of the program and still assure AMPLE FUNDS for the other departments of the City. The proposition does NOT call for a mortgage on the plant and does NOT involve any new or additional tax.

The electric power and water utilities are presently operating at their capacity and this improvement and expansion is absolutely necessary in order for the City to be able to meet the increased demand for electric and water service resulting from the growth of our city.

The electric power and water utilities are public property in which everyone is vitally interested. After assuming office, your City Council secured competent engineers to survey the utilities and recommend what should be done concerning them. We now have the recommendations of these engineers and are seeking from you an expression as to whether you desire to carry out their recommendations. We approve and concur in the recommendations of the engineers and recommend them to you for your consideration. ONLY IF THESE IMPROVEMENTS ARE MADE can your utilities furnish the people of Monroe a dependable supply of electric power and good water.

This election is a business transaction and does not involve any political question nor your like or dislike of any of your public officials. Your City Council expects to furnish the public full information concerning the program between now and the election date. It is our desire that each qualified voter, if possible, make a study of this question and vote for or against the proposition based upon the facts.

'January Thaw' To Be Presented On Thursday Evening

Ouachita's class of '49 play, "January Thaw," a three-act comedy by William Roos, will be presented in the Ouachita Parish High School auditorium on Thursday evening.

Members of the cast, as announced by Miss June Shultz, director, are Ginger Coats, Frieda, the maid; Willoughby Thomas as Herbert Gage, a writer; Virginia Poole as Marge Gage, his wife.

Joan Parker as Barbara Gage, their older daughter; John Harper as George Husted, Barbara's shy fiance; Edwin Russell and Marilyn Kennedy as Jonathan and Matilda Rockwood, two old settlers.

Joe Monroe, Mr. Loomis, a lawyer; Billy Dunn as Uncle Walter, an old geezer; Tommy Starnes as Matt Rockwood, a rural Romeo; and John Turner as Carson, a local policeman. Lynn Merriman and Bobby Moody, eighth-graders, portary Sarah and Paul Gage, the two younger children.

In the play the Gage family seek refuge from a stuffy New York apartment in an old farm house. Unfortunately, another family claims ownership and moves in with the Gages. A contest for possession begins with neither able to turn the other out. A blizzard clamps down and the scene has all the appearances of complete disaster. In the delightful ending, however, all is happily and intelligently solved.

Edwin "Sonny" Russell will portray Jonathan Rockwood, an elderly farmer. His Connecticut twang and witty lines are as suited to "Sonny" as are his dry humor and joking ways.

The son of Jonathan is Matt, played by Tommy Starnes. He's definitely a "lady's man." He is also the son of Mathilda, Marilyn Kennedy. The contrast in Marilyn's four feet-eleven inches and "Sonny's" six feet will bring many chuckles.

You'll laugh all through the play, but you'll roar at at Billie Lett Dunn, who plays Uncle Walter. Clowning Billie Lett's lines set off a panic of laughs.

Virginia Poole, a this year's transfer student from Arkansas, is the wife of Herbert Gage, a New York author. Virginia has manifested unsuspected talent as Marge, and will, we believe, give convincing portrayal.

The seniors have "borrowed" two sub-freshmen to be Herbert's and Marge's younger children—Lynn Merriman and Bobby Moody. They are loads of fun to work with and certainly add something to the play.

The staff as announced by Miss Shultz is as follows: Props committee, Judy Sawyer, Evelyn Gochenour, Emma Lou Owens, and Barbara Franklin; advertising and program committee, Beverly Hatchell, Duncan Burford, and Joan Ransom; make-up chairman, Judy Sawyer; and stage manager, Tommy Starnes.

Ushers will be Doris Spell, Joan Ransom, Beverly Hatchell, Joan Bancroft, Mona Newman, LaVerne Cockrell, Bobby Parker, and Louise Ticheli.

PATRICE MUNSEL NOT REGRETFUL

Believes Lack Of College Education Replaced By Her Career

"If I had gone to college, says 23-year-old Patrice Munsel, one of the youngest stars of the Metropolitan Opera, who appears in Brown Hall Auditorium, May 23, I would have graduated last year. Frankly, I don't think any university could have provided a four-year course equivalent to what I received singing at the Metropolitan and making four concert tours."

The coloratura soprano who crashed into big-time opera at the age of 17 pointed out that she was not discussing musical experience only. She was referring to the insight gained from contact with mature people.

"That is something," she said, "most students acquire only after they graduate. At work—and that includes singing for your living—you're surrounded with older, earnest men and women. They're not necessarily unkind; neither are they exactly the college-chum type. It's the difference between a student-instructor relationship in the classroom and off the campus. You're forced to take yourself seriously if you want to stand the gaff of competition. That doesn't leave too much time for frivolity."

The bobby-sox prima-donna revealed that the self-discipline most difficult to exercise is saying "no" to dates.

"Your friends go out on the town and invite you along. Then you wish Donizetti had never conceived of 'Lucia di Lammermoor,' and that Verdi had composed a rumba in 'Rigoletto.' But if you have a performance scheduled at the Metropolitan the next evening, the only dancing you do the night before is in your dreams. And that's when you start growing up.

"At seventeen, when I received a $120,000 contract from S. Hurok, I felt I was too young to make major decisions and relied a great deal on other people to make them for me. I soon realized you stand or fall by what you do so I learned to make my own decisions. After that, the only shoulder I could cry on was my own."

Miss Munsel emphasized that as a training ground for personality college suited some more than a career. Some young singers and actresses would be better off in school, she said.

"I've seen beginners in the theatre driven by ambitious parents," she asserted. "Their mamas do their thinking, their talking and would love to do their performing, too. These youngsters would be better off in college away from their folks. I'm lucky. My parents treated me as an adult. They showed me how to profit from my errors. I'm very thankful for the fact that I haven't got a typical stage-mother."

Miss Munsel comes from Spokane, Washington, where her father is a dentist. Her mother lives with her in New York and is her companion on tour.

"She's really a wonderful girl," Miss Munsel said. "More like a sister than a mother. Some day I'll have to ask her how she liked going to 'college' with her daughter. Those four years at the Metropolitan were like commencement exercises every night — without the speeches."

O. P. H. S. CHOIR DELIGHTS AUDIENCE AT WEEK'S CONCERT

The Ouachita Choir and Ensemble under the direction of Miss Velma Nichols appeared in concert Thursday night to the delight of an exceptionally large and appreciate audience assembled in the school auditorium. The group successfully captivated the audience with a program of variety and interest.

The choir possessed all of the necessary degrees of mature musicianship. Its sense of ensemble, meticulous attention to the subtle nuisances of the voices and satisfying stage personalities impressed the audience. The performance was well up to the enthusiastic ovation which the choir received from the audience.

Miss Nichol's artistry in conducting was a highlight of the evening.

From the standpoint of the audience, the program was outstanding for its variety of compositions in different mediums ranging from 16th century "Agnus Dei" by Thomas Morley to the contemporary folk music of the Appalachian Carol. "I Wonder as I Wonder." Travis DeFreese, student conductor, directed the girls choir in J. S. Bach's "We Hasten with Feeble But Diligent Footsteps" from the scared cantata No. 78, "Jesus, Thou My Wearied Spirit." The accompanist for this number were: piano, Jane Wallace, member of the choir; cello, Jacques Norman, voice professor from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Ruston; and string bass, J. C. Cannon, band directed from Neville High School.

Another particularly effective number was J. S. Bach's "Jesus Joy of Man's Desiring" with Mrs. A. M. Serex playing the piano and Miss Barbara Joiner, the flute.

In a beautiful double ring ceremony, characterized by simplicity, at the First Baptist Church in Farmerville, on Saturday afternoon, April 16, at 5 o'clock, Miss Lillie Mae Lewis of West Monroe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Griffith Lewis of Gloster, Miss., became the bride of Mr. Charles Lee Barr of Monroe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Lee Barr of Farmerville, with the Rev. Luther B. Hall, pastor of the church, officiating. An attractive arrangement of Easter lilies and fern in baskets and floor standards, graced the dignified edifice. Southern smilax was used to bank the chancel railing, where white tapers gleamed at regular intervals. Cathedral tapers burning in wrought-iron candelabra of graduated lengths, cast a soft glow.

The pews were marked with white satin ribbon bows, and only members of the immediate families witnessed the ceremony.

After the guests had been seated by the ushers, Mr. Jack Turnage and Mr. Bobby Gayle Miller, cousins of the bridegroom, they lighted the candles, during which lovely pre-nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Tazewell W. Baird, pianist, aunt of the groom, and Mr. Fred Preaus and Mr. Frank Mathews, violinist. Mrs. Baird accompanied Mrs. Bobby Gayle Miller, soloist, who wore a soft grey tailleur suit with pink blouse and pink carnation corsage, and sang in splendid voice "Because" by Gui D'Hardelot and "Always" by Irving Berlin. The bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" was used as processional and 'Mendelssohn's Wedding March" as recessional. During the exchanging of vows, "I Love You Truly" was softly played.

The bride's only attendant was her sister-in-law, Mrs. Marvin Lewis of Natchez, Miss., who was wearing a stunning two-piece model of weathervaneneaqua, with pink off-the-face straw hat, flower trimmed with a nose veil and a shoulder corsage of pink carnations.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Marvin Lewis, was lovely. She wore an exquisite strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom, and carried an ivory bound Bible, surmounted with white orchids and clusters of valley lily sprays, with satin streamers showered with valley lilies. She carried out the old tradition of wearing something old, new, borrowed, blue and a penny in her shoe. Awaiting at the altar with the bridegroom, was Mr. George Holland, Jr., of Monroe, who served as best man.

Mrs. Lewis chose for her daughter's wedding a black print, accented by a white carnation corsage. Her accessories were black, with a natural milan hat. Mrs. Barr was becomingly dressed in mauve crepe, lace trimmed, with black accessories and a pale pink carnation corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Barr left immediately for a wedding trip along the Gulf coast. Upon their return they will reside at 1013 North Fifth street, Monroe.

Mrs. Barr graduated from the Ouachita parish high school and NJC, Monroe. Mr. Barr graduated from Farmerville High School and attended Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Ruston. He served three and a half years in World War II, having spent two and a half years of the time overseas. He is now employed by Brown Paper Mill at Monroe.

Mr. and Mrs. Tazewell W. Baird and Miss Olivia Barr were hostesses at the Baird home in Farmerville on Friday evening, April 15, honoring Miss Lillie Mae Lewis and Mr. Charles Lee Barr, following the rehearsal, whose marriage took place on April 16.

Beautiful red radiance roses, iris, stock and tulips were placed in artistic profusion throughout the reception suite.

Delicious refreshments were served at small tables, overlaid with white linen mederia cut work cloths, which held for central decor, tiny china birds, filled with white and blue spring flowers.

The guests found their places by double wedding ring place cards. Miss Lewis wore a light grey two-piece model and a red rose bud corsage. The bride-elect chose this time to present her attendants, jeweled scatter pins. Mr. Barr gave his attendants gold pencil tie clasp. Those enjoying this occasion with the honor guests and hostesses were:

PUBLIC NOTICE

The City Council of Monroe on April 18, 1949, adopted an ordinance submitting to the qualified taxpaying voters of Monroe at an election to be held May 31, 1949, the question of improving and expanding our Electric Power and Water Plants and Distribution Systems. This improvement and expansion has been recommended by Ford, Bacon and Davis, Inc., Consulting Engineers, after a complete survey of our utilities.

The improvement and expansion program will cost approximately $7,000,000.00, which amount will be spent throughout a period of ten years. Although your City Council seeks authorization for the entire amount at this election, all the bonds will not be issued nor all the money spent at one time. Approximately $3,600,000.00 will be needed during the first two years of the program and bonds for such amount will be issued and sold within a short time. Bonds for the remainder will be issued and sold only as the money is needed for the step by step comprehensive program. All bonds will be sold at the lowest interest rate obtainable, not to exceed 5 per cent, after public advertisement and competitive bidding.

The funds from the sale of the bonds can be used ONLY for the purposes voted, to-wit: the improvement and expansion of the Electric Power and Water Plants and Distribution Systems.

Your City Council proposes to pay for this expansion and improvement out of the revenue of the utilities. It is conservatively estimated that the increase in revenues expected from our utilities as a result of the normal growth of the City will be sufficient to repay the cost of the program and still assure AMPLE FUNDS for the other departments of the City. The proposition does NOT call for a mortgage on the plant and does NOT involve any new or additional tax.

The electric power and water utilities are presently operating at their capacity and this improvement and expansion is absolutely necessary in order for the City to be able to meet the increased demand for electric and water service resulting from the growth of our city.

The electric power and water utilities are public property in which everyone is vitally interested. After assuming office, your City Council secured competent engineers to survey the utilities and recommend what should be done concerning them. We now have the recommendations of these engineers and are seeking from you an expression as to whether you desire to carry out their recommendations. We approve and concur in the recommendations of the engineers and recommend them to you for your consideration. ONLY IF THESE IMPROVEMENTS ARE MADE can your utilities furnish the people of Monroe a dependable supply of electric power and good water.

This election is a business transaction and does not involve any political question nor your like or dislike of any of your public officials. Your City Council expects to furnish the public full information concerning the program between now and the election date. It is our desire that each qualified voter, if possible, make a study of this question and vote for or against the proposition based upon the facts.

Mayor

WALES FUND UP TO $15,000

Balance On Trip Now $34,991; Urgently Seek Needed Donations

Contributions from business firms during the past week have brought the total O. P. H. S. choir fund bank account to $15,008.56. This leaves a total of $34,991.44 to be raised during the next five days, according to a statement from Thomas G. Frazer, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Donations last week ranged from $2 to $500 and the majority were very generous. Less than thirty answers were received however, from over 500 appeals sent out. It was pointed out, that if the entire 500 were to respond with the same generosity as those who have already made a contribution, the choir trip would be assured. All persons who have not contributed to the fund are urged to do so at once.

The possibility of raising the funds through some source outside of Ouachita parish is remote, according to Mr. Frazer. The urgency of the situation has brought phone calls from various interested citizens during the past week, many of whom had suggestions as to a means of raising the remaining deficit. These suggestions are sincerely appreciated Frazer pointed out, but most of them, including state aid, federal aid, U. S. O., army transport, big name shows, tie Fred Waring, etc), have already been tried and the record of negative replies is on file at the Chamber of Commerce office.

The entire proposition boils down to the question of whether or not the people of Ouachita parish want, deeply and sincerely, to send these deserving children to the International Music Festival in Wales. There is still time, Mr. Frazer states, and if anyone who has read this column will write a check today for $1.00 or $5.00 or whatever his pocket book can stand and mail it today to the Chamber of Commerce, by Monday morning a major portion of the fund would have been raised.

Checks should be made payable to the Chamber of Commerce and marked "for O. P. H. S. choir fund." Such donations are deductible from income tax returns.

Donations not previously listed have been received from; Mrs. G. R. Cassidy, Max H. Kulcke, Conrad Cage, Jr., Lucian Webb and the Liberty Home Demonstration Culb.

NEGRO BOY KILLED BY BOOBY-TRAP GUN

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 7.—(AP)—An 11-year-old Negro boy was killed today by a salt-charged shotgun when he raised a booby-trapped window.

Police Inspector Pete Wiebenga identified the victim as Samuel Hughes.

Wiebanga said the gun was rigged to point at a window in a coal company office and was fired by a rope across the sill. It was designed to stop burglaries.

Hughes' body was found by the window when employes reported to work. Wiebanga said the wounds indicated some of the regular shot had been left when the shell was loaded with salt.

Couple Forced To Live With Family Must Be Extra Considerate, Cheerful

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is at present enrolled in a university where he is taking a special course in dentistry. This reduces our income so much that we have to move in with my family to conserve expenses. I quite realize that you do not advise five generations to live together, but in a case of necessity it has to be done.

Can you give me ten commandments that will help me to get along amicably with my people?

MARGE

DOROTHY DIX

ANSWER: No one in the world is clever enough to devise a formula that will enable a mixed assortment of grandparents and husbands and wives and teen-agers and babies to get along together in peace and harmony. Having different tastes, habits and temperaments, they are bound to get in each other's hair if they are penned up together.

However, needs must be when the devil drives, as the old proverb has it, and if circumstances are such that you have to go to live with your family, here are a few suggestions that may make your road easier to travel.

1. Before you wish yourself on your family, make up your mind to meet the situation with courage. Don't whine. Don't complain. Make yourself so pleasant and agreeable that you will be regarded as an acquisition instead of a pest.

2. Wear a hopeful look, no matter how dreary the prospect is. It will keep the neighbors from discussing your affairs.

GET A JOB

3. Get a job if you can. There is nothing that cheers a woman up so much as finding out that she can make a little money.

4. If you go back home to live with Mom and Pop, lavish love and helpfulness upon them. Gratitude is always legal tender with parents.

5. Don't turn Mother and Father into baby-sitters while you are off gadding.

6. Don't bemoan having to put up with the whims of old people. We will all be that way before we know it.

7. Don't let your children grow up to be hoodlums because you are so sorry for them because they can't have every luxury, that you can't bear to make them behave.

8. Don't criticize your husband or bewail his not being a go-getter. That takes the last ounce of ambition out of him.

9. Don't ever tell your troubles to your friends. Your disappointments and sorrows are your own affair.

10. Never lose your grip on your courage. You will never be beaten as long as you can laugh over the misadventures of life.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: The trouble with modern girls is that they can't get up enough English courage and nerve to walk up to young men whom they know to be nice, and say: Boys, we are having a card party at my house such and such a night. Please join us. There will be refreshments." The old saying that you can win a man's heart by feeding him is good, but the best way to catch your man is to pick out the one you want, and go after him by being so darn nice and friendly that he can't avoid falling in love with you.

Properly used, this method will turn old maids into good housewives.

SERVICE MEN

ANSWER: The advice tendered by these young men to girls on how to catch a husband should have authority. It would seem that they would know what technique in husband-hunting was the most successful, but this does not appear to be the case. For instance, it is a popular belief that the best way for a girl to catch a husband is by chasing him down, but, in reality, nothing scares a man off from a girl so much as for him to suspect that she is on his trail.

In olden times, when girls found it much easier to get husbands than they do now, the coy, timid, this-is-so-sudden, I-never-dreamed-you-thought-of-me-like-that attitude was the one that led to the altar, and it is my guess that it still works.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am the mother of a 13-year-old girl who is pretty, attractive, whom we dress beautifully, and to whom we have given every advantage she could ask. But she is practically impossible to live with. She is rebellious, unruly, high-tempered, has even struck me, and says the most terrible things to her father. We have tried everything we can think of in the way of persuasion, indulgences and denying her things she wants but nothing does any good. She defies us. What can we do?

TROUBLED MOTHER

ANSWER: You are just 13 years too late in asking that question. You have evidently spoiled the girl rotten and now you are reaping what you have sown.

The best thing you can do now for her is to send her off to a boarding school. She will be ashamed to act among strangers as she does at home, and when she is away from you perhaps she will begin to appreciate your love and kindness to her.

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers, but will answer problems of general interest through her column.

DR. CUTLER IS COLLEGE GUEST

Gives His Views On Socialized Medicine In An Address

Doctors approve socialized medicine if the system is handled properly, declared Dr. Haydn Cutler, local physician, when he spoke recently to pre-medical students at Northeast Junior College. The plan should be carried out by doctors and placed under state control, he added.

The idea behind socialized medicine is good, the speaker stressed. Anyone who is sick deserves help, regardless of his ability to pay, Dr. Cutler said.

One of the greatest weaknesses of the program is the emphasis given to salaries of people connected with such a plan and the lack of emphasis given the evils which accompany any regimented organization, the speaker explained. The respected position which the medical profession holds in the world today is due to a great extent to interest that physicians have shown in their patients.

"One cannot divorce the love of humanity from his scientific training and still expect to be successful under the present system of medical practice," the speaker declared.

Competitive medical practice is an incentive for doctors to do their best work, according to Cutler. Competition is not encouraged to an appreciable degree in socialized medicine, he said.

The plan of socialized medicine may give the impression of free medical care. It should be remembered, the speaker warned, that "we never get something for nothing." The source of funds in this case would be taxes.

Dr. Cutler advised pre-med students to consider seriously about choosing medicine as a profession if the proposed program goes into effect. Doctors who are ordered to perform duties cannot give as good service as those who do so on their own initiative, he concluded.

PATRICE MUNSEL NOT REGRETFUL

Believes Lack Of College Education Replaced By Her Career

"If I had gone to college, says 23-year-old Patrice Munsel, one of the youngest stars of the Metropolitan Opera, who appears in Brown Hall Auditorium, May 23, I would have graduated last year. Frankly, I don't think any university could have provided a four-year course equivalent to what I received singing at the Metropolitan and making four concert tours."

The coloratura soprano who crashed into big-time opera at the age of 17 pointed out that she was not discussing musical experience only. She was referring to the insight gained from contact with mature people.

"That is something," she said, "most students acquire only after they graduate. At work—and that includes singing for your living—you're surrounded with older, earnest men and women. They're not necessarily unkind; neither are they exactly the college-chum type. It's the difference between a student-instructor relationship in the classroom and off the campus. You're forced to take yourself seriously if you want to stand the gaff of competition. That doesn't leave too much time for frivolity."

The bobby-sox prima-donna revealed that the self-discipline most difficult to exercise is saying "no" to dates.

"Your friends go out on the town and invite you along. Then you wish Donizetti had never conceived of 'Lucia di Lammermoor,' and that Verdi had composed a rumba in 'Rigoletto.' But if you have a performance scheduled at the Metropolitan the next evening, the only dancing you do the night before is in your dreams. And that's when you start growing up.

"At seventeen, when I received a $120,000 contract from S. Hurok, I felt I was too young to make major decisions and relied a great deal on other people to make them for me. I soon realized you stand or fall by what you do so I learned to make my own decisions. After that, the only shoulder I could cry on was my own."

Miss Munsel emphasized that as a training ground for personality college suited some more than a career. Some young singers and actresses would be better off in school, she said.

"I've seen beginners in the theatre driven by ambitious parents," she asserted. "Their mamas do their thinking, their talking and would love to do their performing, too. These youngsters would be better off in college away from their folks. I'm lucky. My parents treated me as an adult. They showed me how to profit from my errors. I'm very thankful for the fact that I haven't got a typical stage-mother."

Miss Munsel comes from Spokane, Washington, where her father is a dentist. Her mother lives with her in New York and is her companion on tour.

"She's really a wonderful girl," Miss Munsel said. "More like a sister than a mother. Some day I'll have to ask her how she liked going to 'college' with her daughter. Those four years at the Metropolitan were like commencement exercises every night — without the speeches."

ACHIEVEMENT DAY HELD IN TALLULAH

TALLULAH, La., May 7.—(Special)—The annual 4-H Club Achievement Day for Madison parish was held at the Tallulah High School on Saturday when 500 children and young people from the five clubs of the parish with their leaders and judges attended.

The meeting opened at 9 o'clock with Mary Ann Scurria of the 4-H executive council presiding. Following the invocation by the Rev. Shirley Briggs and singing of "Star Spangled Banner" by the assembly and the 4-H Club pledge, the Tallulah High School band, under the direction of Quincy Hargis rendered a special number. A. M. Raley, assistant parish agent, had charge of the song, yell and stunt contests, after which the various contests and demonstrations were held.

Lunch was served in the school cafeteria by a committee of the Madison parish home demonstration clubs and in the afternoon there was a moving picture and the announcement of the contest winners with the awarding of the 1949 Achievement Day Trophy by J. Louisiana Baptist Home Host To Public On Mother's Day

The Louisiana Baptist Children's Home is having open house Sunday afternoon from two to four o'clock. The many friends of the home and the general public from all over the state are being invited to visit the campus, see the large family of children and how they live.

L. B. Fettit, president of the board of trustees, announces that two new buildings are just being completed and will be open for inspection. One is the new health center, which will provide living quarters for the registered nurse, an adequate emergency treatment room and four hospital rooms for children requiring day and night attention by the nuse. In this building will be two private rooms which will provide living quarters for staff members.

The other new building is a large warehouse which will provide storage space for the tons of canned foods which are gathered from over the state in the fall each year. This building is of cinder block construction and will be water-proofed and painted white.

These two new buildings will contribute much to the efficient operation of the home and add to the attractiveness of the campus.

According to Superintendent Black, the home has spent in round figures $200,000 in the last three years for buildings, repairs and improvements—every old dormitory on the campus having been completely renovated and repainted inside and out.

All buildings will be open for inspection. Coffee will be served in the dining room. No funds will be solicited. The board of trustees and the management of the home extend a cordial invitation to all to visit the home on Mother's Day Sunday afternoon between two and four o'clock.

Courteous Lewis Is Heavy Problem For Coal Operator

Sweetness And Light From 'Old Thunderer' Baffling At Contract Time

By Harold W. Ward

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—John L. Lewis' sweetness and courtesy was proving just as baffling to the coal operators today as the thundering demands of other springtimes.

The mine owners, unaccustomed to polite and courtly greetings from Lewis at contract-making time, are frankly puzzled. But they appeared ready to play out the string.

An exchange of letters between Lewis and Joseph E. Moody, president of the Southern Coal Producers Association, were the last word in good-natured labor-management relations.

This is a new situation. Lewis always has bristled when referring to the Southern Association. He tried to keep Moody out of negotiations last year, and was forced to admit him only after a court injunction by Federal Justice T. Alan Goldsborough.

But for the other soft coal operators Lewis has had nothing but an early talk so far in contract preliminaries. The north, midwest, far west, strip or surface mines, and steel company "captive" mines, who were set for a lot of noise, got only a stony quiet from the Lewis headquarters up to today.

They in turn were just as silent, however. They met here ten days ago, said nothing publicly, and then went home. If they communicated at all with Lewis they kept it from the press

The southerners' Moody took the initiative. He wrote to Lewis, pointing out that the contract terminates June 30 and asking for an early start to negotiate a new pact. It was tactfully worded.

Lewis replied last Saturday, saying Moody's letter was "proper" notice of the ending of the agreement June 30, and suggesting both sides send 36 representative apiece to meet in Bluefield, W. Va., on June 6.

He and Moody are to "negotiate" the details of where and when their bargaining should start.

The kid gloves used with Moody, coupled with the suggestion that negotiations with his group could be held in the southern coal field rather than Washington or New York as is customary, has led some operators to suspect that Lewis is not too hopeful of getting a national contract pattern from the southerners. He probably won't even attend the conferences.

They think it more likely that he will try to force U. S. Steel Corporation and other steel firms which have been running their coal mines at top speed to keep abreast of demands for steel, to come to his terms and fix the pattern for the southerners and other operators to follow. There are a few big commercial operators, like Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Company, who also have been running at or near peak capacity because of large orders for high-type coal.

Some operators think the remainder of the industry might not suffer much from a brief strike. There are ample stores of coal above ground, and the demand is slackening. Orders have fallen off and with them prices have dipped.

A shutdown in July, therefore, might hurt comparatively few operators. It would be tough on the miners, but in the end might mean steadier employment in the fall and winter. Steady work is an avowed Lewis objective.

If Lewis sits back and waits for his contract to expire, the pressure to meet him and make a new one will be on those operators who want no interruption of output this summer, short or long.

As on several occasions in the past, Lewis may then say: "Our services are available at a price. But without a contract we don't work."

This strategy could be upset, however, by Philip Murray or Walter Reuther. Murray's C. I. O.-steelworkers are about to begin negotiations with U. S. steel and other steelmakers. Reuther's C. I. O.-United Auto Workers are negotiating other contracts while striking at Ford's plants.

If Murray or Reuther, or both, run into difficulty and strikes cut down the demand for steel or for the coal to make steel, even the steel companies would be relieved of present pressures to avoid a coal strike.

WALES FUND UP TO $15,000

Balance On Trip Now $34,991; Urgently Seek Needed Donations

Contributions from business firms during the past week have brought the total O. P. H. S. choir fund bank account to $15,008.56. This leaves a total of $34,991.44 to be raised during the next five days, according to a statement from Thomas G. Frazer, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Donations last week ranged from $2 to $500 and the majority were very generous. Less than thirty answers were received however, from over 500 appeals sent out. It was pointed out, that if the entire 500 were to respond with the same generosity as those who have already made a contribution, the choir trip would be assured. All persons who have not contributed to the fund are urged to do so at once.

The possibility of raising the funds through some source outside of Ouachita parish is remote, according to Mr. Frazer. The urgency of the situation has brought phone calls from various interested citizens during the past week, many of whom had suggestions as to a means of raising the remaining deficit. These suggestions are sincerely appreciated Frazer pointed out, but most of them, including state aid, federal aid, U. S. O., army transport, big name shows, (ie Fred Waring, etc), have already been tried and the record of negative replies is on file at the Chamber of Commerce office.

The entire proposition boils down to the question of whether or not the people of Ouachita parish want, deeply and sincerely, to send these deserving children to the International Music Festival in Wales. There is still time, Mr. Frazer states, and if anyone who has read this column will write a check today for $1.00 or $5.00 or whatever his pocket book can stand and mail it today to the Chamber of Commerce, by Monday morning a major portion of the fund would have been raised.

Checks should be made payable to the Chamber of Commerce and marked "for O. P. H. S. choir fund." Such donations are deductible from income tax returns.

Donations not previously listed have been received from: Mrs. G. R. Cassidy, Max H. Kulcke, Conrad Cage, Jr., Lucian Webb and the Liberty Home Demonstration Club.

NEGRO BOY KILLED BY BOOBY-TRAP GUN

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 7.—(AP)—An 11-year-old Negro boy was killed today by a salt-charged shotgun when he raised a booby-trapped window.

Police Inspector Pete Wiebenga identified the victim as Samuel Hughes.

Wiebanga said the gun was rigged to point at a window in a coal company office and was fired by a rope across the sill. It was designed to stop burglaries.

Hughes' body was found by the window when employes reported to work. Wiebanga said the wounds indicated some of the regular shot had been left when the shell was loaded with salt.

The "Mosquito Fleet" was a small naval squadron selected by Commodore David Porter, in 1823, to wipe out West Indian pirates.

Sharing Parents' Home

Couple Forced To Live With Family Must Be Extra Considerate, Cheerful

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is at present enrolled in a university where he is taking a special course in dentistry. This reduces our income so much that we have to move in with my family to conserve expenses. I quite realize that you do not advise five generations to live together, but in a case of necessity it has to be done.

Can you give me ten commandments that will help me to get along amicably with my people?

MARGE

DOROTHY DIX

ANSWER: No one in the world is clever enough to devise a formula that will enable a mixed assortment of grandparents and husbands and wives and teen-agers and babies to get along together in peace and harmony. Having different tastes, habits and temperaments, they are bound to get in each other's hair if they are penned up together.

However, needs must be when the devil drives, as the old proverb has it, and if circumstances are such that you have to go to live with your family, here are a few suggestions that may make your road easier to travel.

1. Before you wish yourself on your family, make up your mind to meet the situation with courage. Don't whine. Don't complain. Make yourself so pleasant and agreeable that you will be regarded as an acquisition instead of a pest.

2. Wear a hopeful look, no matter how dreary the prospect is. It will keep the neighbors from discussing your affairs.

GET A JOB

3. Get a job if you can. There is nothing that cheers a woman up so much as finding out that she can make a little money.

4. If you go back home to live with Mom and Pop, lavish love and helpfulness upon them. Gratitude is always legal tender with parents.

5. Don't turn Mother and Father into baby-sitters while you are off gadding.

6. Don't bemoan having to put up with the whims of old people. We will all be that way before we know it.

7. Don't let your children grow up to be hoodlums because you are so sorry for them because they can't have every luxury, that you can't bear to make them behave.

8. Don't criticize your husband or bewail his not being a go-getter. That takes the last ounce of ambition out of him.

9. Don't ever tell your troubles to your friends. Your disappointments and sorrows are your own affair.

10. Never lose your grip on your courage. You will never be beaten as long as you can laugh over the misadventures of life.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: The trouble with modern girls is that they can't get up enough English courage and nerve to walk up to young men whom they know to be nice, and say: Boys, we are having a card party at my house such and such a night. Please join us. There will be refreshments." The old saying that you can win a man's heart by feeding him is good, but the best way to catch your man is to pick out the one you want, and go after him by being so darn nice and friendly that he can't avoid falling in love with you.

Properly used, this method will turn old maids into good housewives.

SERVICE MEN

ANSWER: The advice tendered by these young men to girls on how to catch a husband should have authority. It would seem that they would know what technique in husband-hunting was the most successful, but this does not appear to be the case. For instance, it is a popular belief that the best way for a girl to catch a husband is by chasing him down, but, in reality, nothing scares a man off from a girl so much as for him to suspect that she is on his trail.

In olden times, when girls found it much easier to get husbands than they do now, the coy, timid, this-is-so-sudden, I-never-dreamed-you-thought-of-me-like-that attitude was the one that led to the altar, and it is my guess that it still works.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am the mother of a 13-year-old girl who is pretty, attractive, whom we dress beautifully, and to whom we have given every advantage she could ask. But she is practically impossible to live with. She is rebellious, unruly, high-tempered, has even struck me, and says the most terrible things to her father. We have tried everything we can think of in the way of persuasion, indulgences and denying her things she wants but nothing does any good. She defies us. What can we do?

TROUBLED MOTHER

ANSWER: You are just 13 years too late in asking that question. You have evidently spoiled the girl rotten and now you are reaping what you have sown.

The best thing you can do now for her is to send her off to a boarding school. She will be ashamed to act among strangers as she does at home, and when she is away from you perhaps she will begin to appreciate your love and kindness to her.

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers, but will answer problems of general interest through her column.

FERRIDAY

A wedding of much beauty and simplicity was that of Miss Adilene Smith of Ferriday and Mr. Harold Viola of Rayville was performed Saturday afternoon by Rev. M. R. McNair at the parsonage in Jonesville.

The improvised altar before the fireplace was decorated with southern smilax dotted with pink rosebuds. Over the center was a large heart of smilax and rosebuds centered with a bow of pink satin. The long ends forming a graceful trailing effect were tied to the candalabra at either side of the altar. Pink and white lighted tapers completed the picture.

The bride wore dress of navy crepe with draped lines. She wore pink accessories and had a corsage of pink split carnations.

As her attendant, the bride had Miss Dorothy Latham, who was also radiantly lovely in a suit of pale blue linen with blue accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Mr. Viola had as his best man, Mr. James Sikes of Winnfield, La.

Personalized brass name plates which the club is offering for sale will be on display at a local hardware store and Mrs. S. R. Gray, parish librarian, will take orders.

Letters from Mrs. M. Levy, state president and Mrs. Blanche Wilson, district president, were read complimenting the club on honors won at the fifth district convention held in Ferriday.

DR. CUTLER IS COLLEGE GUEST

Gives His Views On Socialized Medicine In An Address

Doctors approve socialized medicine if the system is handled properly, declared Dr. Haydn Cutler, local physician, when he spoke recently to pre-medical students at Northeast Junior College. The plan should be carried out by doctors and placed under state control, he added.

The idea behind socialized medicine is good, the speaker stressed. Anyone who is sick deserves help, regardless of his ability to pay, Dr. Cutler said.

One of the greatest weaknesses of the program is the emphasis given to salaries of people connected with such a plan and the lack of emphasis given the evils which accompany any regimented organization, the speaker explained. The respected position which the medical profession holds in the world today is due to a great extent to interest that physicians have shown in their patients.

"One cannot divorce the love of humanity from his scientific training and still expect to be successful under the present system of medical practice," the speaker declared.

Competitive medical practice is an incentive for doctors to do their best work, according to Cutler. Competition is not encouraged to an appreciable degree in socialized medicine, he said.

The plan of socialized medicine may give the impression of free medical care. It should be remembered, the speaker warned, that "we never get something for nothing." The source of funds in this case would be taxes.

Dr. Cutler advised pre-med students to consider seriously about choosing medicine as a profession if the proposed program goes into effect. Doctors who are ordered to perform duties cannot give as good service as those who do so on their own initiative, he concluded.

NEVILLE BAND FEATURED HERE

Music Week Stressed By Program At Brown Hall Auditorium

Music by the Neville High School band was one of the features of national Music Week presented at Northeast Junior College in Brown Hall Auditorium, under the direction of Ralph Cannon.

The organization comprising 59 students gained distinction at the musi festival held this spring in Ruston, where it was awarded a "superior" rating, the highest which could be granted.

The program given at N. J. C. represented an interesting variety, according to many persons in the audience who spoke of the band as exceptional in its portrayal of talent, the interest which the students displayed in their performance and the fine cooperation of personnel.

Mr. Cannon's choice of numbers pleased the listeners, judged by hearty response and comments which followed the program.

"Fantasy for Three," a paraphrase of Rubenstein's "Melody in F," was considered one of the highlights of the program. The number featured Charles Stratford, Donald Stewart and Leland Sims, cornetists. Other selections included: "Irish Tune from County Derry," a march, "Chimes of Victory;" "Mexican Hat Dance;" "Lady from Spain," selection from the Broadway success, "Annie, Get Your Gun;" a march, "Speedway;" overture, "Bitter Sweet," by Noel Coward, and "At the Minstrel Show," a rare bit of comedy, with the director and several students injecting clever lines into the portrayal of the typical minstrel.

Principal Paul J. Neal of Neville spoke briefly at the program. He stressed the feeling of being at home at the college, so closely did he associate the Neville High School and Northeast Junior College. He took it for granted that many of the graduates from the high school would continue their work on the college campus, he added.

On the schedule of musical treats for N. J. C. is the program to be presented next Thursday by the Ouachita Parish High School Band under direction of Walter C. Minniear.

MAY REACH PAIR LOST ON BORDER

Pilot, Student Nurse Are Believed Wandering In Canadian Wilds

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 7.—(AP) Five days in jungle-thick mountain-rimmed forest may be climaxed today by the rescue of a pilot and a student whose plane piled into a snowbank Monday.

The Royal Canadian Air Force says it is positive the two persons wandering in the wilds near the United States border were Pilot Bill Grant, 30, of Vancouver and Student Nurse Sheila Cure, 28.

"They are in good physical condition," reported Lt. A. H. Raumer of Fort Angelerf, Wash., pilot of a U. S. coast guard helicopter. On the helicopter circled the crash scene on lonely, snow-capped Hozomeen as three R. C. A. F. para-rescue men reached the survivors in a velley six miles from the wrecked plane.

Sherr Cliffs, mountain torrents and high, dense timber handicap the rescuers.

It now is planned to bring the couple to a logging camp, a distance of 10 miles through treacherous country. From there they will be guided to the helicopter which will fly them 40 miles to Princeton, where an R. C. A. F. plane will be ready to bring them to Vancouver.

A ground search party of 10 men is pushing towards the scene from a base camp established at Decco-Walton Logging Co., included in the party is Grant's 34-year-old brother, Ernie.

Grant apparently went off course while flying in a showstorm after leaving Penticton, B. C., 180 miles east of here, late Monday. He was en route from Alberta where Miss Cure, a friend, had been visiting her parents in Cardston.

"It's going to be a tough battle," said Squadron Leader D. R. Walker of No. 12 R. C. A. F. group headquarters, in reporting plans to bring the couple out.

"It may be won today or it may not end until tomorrow."

GREEN CLINIC TO BE VISITED

Ruston Institution Will Have Open House On Sunday, May 15

RUSTON, La., May 7.—(Special)—Sunday, May 15, the Green Clinic in Ruston will hold open house for their friends and vistors who are invited to inspect their modern building. Dr. Marvin T. Green, and his two brothers, Dr. Felton and Dr. Ragan Green, together with six other doctors and their staff have organized the Green Clinic and opened this new medical center in Ruston.

The building is strictly modern in appearance and design on the outside and inside. It is completely air conditioned and painted in soft colors to make it a comfortable place for patients and doctors. All rooms use frosted glass over full windows to furnish natural light and in each one green plants that get a dose of vitamins daily brighten the scene.

A full range of the medical profession is offered patients with a staff that includes Dr. Marvin Green as chief surgeon assisted by Dr. J. A. Thomas. Dr. Felton Green attends to the dental service with four chairs and two X-ray machines. Dr. Ragan Green is in charge of the X-ray department which is one of the most complete in the south. His deep therapy equipment covers all range of service known in this field.

Dr. Carl Langford is the obstretician and Dr. Bruce Everist is the pediatrist who also has a child psychologist in his office. Dr. Henry Roane and Dr. Joe Smith, Jr., practice internal medicine and Dr. H. H. Harms cares for the eye, ear, nose and throat work.

A staff of registered nurses and a complete laboratory that has done original work on the RH factor plus an office force under the direction of Cecil Colvin, business manager, complete the staff.

The clinic is connected to the Ruston Sanitarium by a passageway since they have no beds and the X-ray department is jointly used. All the force will be on hand Sunday, May 15 to show visitors the new building and equipment.

Curtain Call Little Theatre

Final details for "The Philadelphia Story" trek to veterans hospital, Alexandria on Saturday, May 14, were completed this week with the exception of refreshments and the committee members to handle this end of the entertainment. President of Little Theatre Frank Breese and director Elizabeth Whitfield talked with Mrs. Ione B. Hopkins, Red Cross field director and she says that special service officer Herb Le Brescu has assumed full responsibility for the scenery and furniture needed to stage the three act play and also will create any special lighting effects needed. The Alexandria Little Theatre CenLa will stand by to do their bit in making the presentation a success and have volunteered to furnish any additional things or equipment needed.

The cast of "The Philadelphia Story" and the board of directors who will accompany the show, have promise of a rousing welcome when they arrive. Mrs. Hokins is a graduate of Randolph Macon College and was a school mate of Mrs. Frances Stubbs Huey. Mrs. Emily Trousdale Wright and Mrs. Frances Germany Hale. She says she feels quite close to the city of Monroe and it is always a pleasure to welcome a representative.

OFF HAND—Mrs. Helen Fernandez tells us that she will go to Alexandria Saturday to see daughter Helen Allen, playing the role of Dianah in "The Philadelphia Story" and son-in-law John Allen in the role of Mike, the reporter—Newcomer Charles Tubbs who is appearing in "The Philadelphia Story" in one of the leading roles as C. K. Dexter Haven, is now associated with the firm of Hale and McNeil—Invitations will be in the mail in the next week or 10 days to all the hard working actors, actresses and stage crews of the five plays of this season, along with the directors for the plays and the officers and board of directors of Little Theatre, for the garden party, at Miss Emma Louise Beidenharns, scheduled for June 4. Miss Emma Louise's garden is one of the most talked about show places of the twin cities and it is a special event in Little Theatre history to have its active participants so graciously entertained by a charming hostess who has spent months creating her beautiful garden.—Keeping up with the Gilbert Findlay's, Alice writes from up New Jersey way that Gil is in the midst of learning lines for the Sketch Club's last play of the season "John Loves Mary." At the time she wrote the letter he was standing by for a blood transfusion for a friend of theirs who was undergoing surgery. They expect Kellogg to wind up the New Jersey job in early summer and wouldn't it be nice if the company found it expedient to transfer those active, friendly Findlay's back to Monroe. Betcha they'd be happy about the whole thing too.—Famous author Kathleen Norris will play her third dramatic role for the Palo Alto Community Players, appearing as Adeline Whitoak in "Whitoaks of Jalna," on April 20-24 and 26-30. She first played amateur theatricals in 1934 and attracted so much interest that she became the only woman ever to make Time's cover because she was acting in an amateur show.—On Tuesday, May 17, the Neville High Speech Club will present the ever popular play "A Date With Judy," under the direction of Miss Marilyn Rosenberg. —Somehow or other and because of conflicting engagements, we didn't get our interview with Miss Eve Bradford for this week's Sunday column. We take it Miss Eve is getting around among her friends a bit more these days and that is wonderful news. We have got a date with her come Monday or Tuesday of this next week and we promise to come forth with a sketch on this well-liked lady who has been an integral part of the social goings on of Monroe for many years.

16 STATES MEET IN COTTON PARLEY

Agricultural Recommendations Made At Conference At Memphis

The Louisiana Delta Council made history and set an all time record in getting 16 cotton producing states together on an agricultural program at a belt-wide cotton conference meeting just concluded in Memphis, it was announced yesterday. Every cotton producing state from California to North Carolina was represented by qualified delegates to work out and adopt a sound and just program that would fit the need of all 16 states. This program is now being prepared and will be submitted to the senate agricultural committee, Washington, D. C., in the very near future. All states have pledged their support in trying to get this program approved, stated W. H. Farmer of Delhi, manager of the council.

The Louisiana Delta Council is seriously concerned about all problems relating to agriculture, and will continue its efforts in trying to obtain for our area the best possible program that will fit the needs of all agriculture producers, Mr. Farmer said.

A few of the recommendations made at this meeting will be the request for:

1. Full 90 per cent parity.
2. National minimum baleage allotment.
3. Baleage allotment for 1950.
4. Protection for small farm operators.
5. Extra long staple consideration.
6. Avoidance of undue restrictions on acreage converted from cotton.
7. Cotton acreage allocations to states.
8. Request for national cotton acreage allotment of 22,500,000 acres for 1950, which is some less than was planted in 1948.

Manager Farmer said based on a 1945-48 average Louisiana and Mississippi will be allowed to increase its acreage. Louisiana's increase will be approximately 88,000 over the 1948 crop, if this suggested program can be passed in Washington, D. C.

GIRL RIDES OUT 1000-FOOT DROP

SAN RAFAEL, Calif., May 7.—(AP)—A girl rode a station wagon over a 1,000-foot embankment today. At the bottom of the steep hill she crawled out as the car, upright, was stopped by a boulder. She had a broken nose and a cut eye.

She was Miss Alice Smith, 24, San Francisco, a secretary for a Flight Instruction Company.

Highway patrolmen said her southband car was about halfway up the long grade approach to the Golden Gate bridge. A tire burst. The car swerved across the roadway and plunged over the steep hill.

Louisiana Baptist Home Host To Public On Mother's Day

The Louisiana Baptist Children's Home is having open house Sunday afternoon from two to four o'clock. The many friends of the home and the general public from all over the state are being invited to visit the campus, see the large family of children and how they live.

L. B. Fettit, president of the board of trustees, announces that two new buildings are just being completed and will be open for inspection. One is the new health center, which will provide living quarters for the registered nurse, an adequate emergency treatment room and four hospital rooms for children requiring day and night attention by the nuse. In this building will be two private rooms which will provide living quarters for staff members.

The other new building is a large warehouse which will provide storage space for the tons of canned foods which are gathered from over the state in the fall each year. This building is of cinder block construction and will be water-proofed and painted white.

These two new buildings will contribute much to the efficient operation of the home and add to the attractiveness of the campus.

According to Superintendent Black, the home has spent in round figures $200,000 in the last three years for buildings, repairs and improvements—every old dormitory on the campus having been completely renovated and repainted inside and out.

All buildings will be open for inspection. Coffee will be served in the dining room. No funds will be solicited. The board of trustees and the management of the home extend a cordial invitation to all to visit the home on Mother's Day Sunday afternoon between two and four o'clock.

Courteous Lewis Is Heavy Problem For Coal Operator

Sweetness And Light From 'Old Thunderer' Baffling At Contract Time

By Harold W. Ward

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—John L. Lewis' sweetness and courtesy was proving just as baffling to the coal operators today as the thundering demands of other springtimes.

The mine owners, unaccustomed to polite and courtly greetings from Lewis at contract-making time, are frankly puzzled. But they appeared ready to play out the string.

An exchange of letters between Lewis and Joseph E. Moody, president of the Southern Coal Producers Association, were the last word in good-natured labor-management relations.

This is a new situation. Lewis always has bristled when referring to the Southern Association. He tried to keep Moody out of negotiations last year, and was forced to admit him only after a court injunction by Federal Justice T. Alan Goldsborough.

But for the other soft coal operators Lewis has had nothing but an early talk so far in contract preliminaries. The north, midwest, far west, strip or surface mines, and steel company "captive" mines, who were set for a lot of noise, got only a stony quiet from the Lewis headquarters up to today.

They in turn were just as silent, however. They met here ten days ago, said nothing publicly, and then went home. If they communicated at all with Lewis they kept it from the press

The southerners' Moody took the initiative. He wrote to Lewis, pointing out that the contract terminates June 30 and asking for an early start to negotiate a new pact. It was tactfully worded.

Lewis replied last Saturday, saying Moody's letter was "proper" notice of the ending of the agreement June 30, and suggesting both sides send 36 representative apiece to meet in Bluefield, W. Va., on June 6.

He and Moody are to "negotiate" the details of where and when their bargaining should start.

The kid gloves used with Moody, coupled with the suggestion that negotiations with his group could be held in the southern coal field rather than Washington or New York as is customary, has led some operators to suspect that Lewis is not too hopeful of getting a national contract pattern from the southerners. He probably won't even attend the conferences.

They think it more likely that he will try to force U. S. Steel Corporation and other steel firms which have been running their coal mines at top speed to keep abreast of demands for steel, to come to his terms and fix the pattern for the southerners and other operators to follow. There are a few big commercial operators, like Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Company, who also have been running at or near peak capacity because of large orders for high-type coal.

Some operators think the remainder of the industry might not suffer much from a brief strike. There are ample stores of coal above ground, and the demand is slackening. Orders have fallen off and with them prices have dipped.

A shutdown in July, therefore, might hurt comparatively few operators. It would be tough on the miners, but in the end might mean steadier employment in the fall and winter. Steady work is an avowed Lewis objective.

If Lewis sits back and waits for his contract to expire, the pressure to meet him and make a new one will be on those operators who want no interruption of output this summer, short or long.

As on several occasions in the past, Lewis may then say: "Our services are available at a price. But without a contract we don't work."

This strategy could be upset, however, by Philip Murray or Walter Reuther. Murray's C. I. O.-steelworkers are about to begin negotiations with U. S. steel and other steelmakers. Reuther's C. I. O.-United Auto Workers are negotiating other contracts while striking at Ford's plants.

If Murray or Reuther, or both, run into difficulty and strikes cut down the demand for steel or for the coal to make steel, even the steel companies would be relieved of present pressures to avoid a coal strike.

Truman Says Congressmen Need Praise

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—President Truman told lawmakers today that people "don't give a damn whether you know it or not" when they agree with a member of congress. He said his 10 years in the senate convinced him of that.

Mr. Truman joined Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) in expressing hope that constituents of the senators and representatives will toss them a few bouquets along with the brickbats.

Vandenberg said a legislator's road is strewn with enough rocks without the daily mail coming in piled with nothing but harsh camplaints. A few kind words now and then would help, he observed.

Mr. Truman attended a downtown luncheon for Vandenberg and House Speaker Rayburn (D.-Tex.). They had just received at the White House the annual Collier's congressional awards for distinguished service to the nation in 1948.

The president presented silver plaques and $10,000 checks to each. The checks will go to public purposes designated by the two legislators. Vandenberg said his check will go to the First Congregational Church in his home town of Grand Rapids, Mich., as a memorial to his mother who was a member 49 years. He also is a member.

Rayburn said he will establish a Sam Rayburn library fund in his home town, Bonham, Tex. He will add to it for construction of a library building. His own offical papers and books will go into it from his collections of a legislative career beginning more than 40 years ago.

Tributes to the two men spilled over into the luncheon which lasted two hours and a half. Mr. Truman got his share of greetings because tomorrow is his 65th birthday.

The gathering, including Vice-President Barkley, Chief Justice Vinson, and members of the cabinet, sang "Happy Birthday."

Seizing upon the point made by Vandenberg about congressional mail, the president said he realized full well what was meant.

He said a lawmaker must remember that the people expect him to find out the facts and then make up his mind as to what is right.

When not in accord with some of his constituents, he added, a member must give them the facts and if he is right the people will support him.

"As long as that condition prevails our form of government will be safe," he said.

He declared he sometimes has had disagreements with congress—the 80th he said after a pause, but not the 81st. He added both the president and congress have the right to disagree with each other and it is up to the people to decide who is right.

The 80th was the Republican controlled congress he denounced in the 1948 campaign. The 81st in the present democratic congress.

Mr. Truman expressed the hope that out of the Collier's awards will grow responsibility on the part of constituents to their legislators and responsibility on the part of the latter to do what they think is right, even though at times this may run counter to the attitude of some constituents.

"Right does and will prevail," he asserted.

Sweeping Projects Slated To Change Louisiana Laws

By Edmond Le Breton

BATON ROUGE, La., May 7.—(AP)—There has been plenty of talk the last few days about three sweeping projects to reorganize and perhaps revise many of the laws under which Louisianians live.

The talk was centered around the joint meeting here of the Louisiana Law Institute and the Louisiana Bar Association, which brought to Baton Rouge a large cross-section of the state's lawyers and jurists.

Here is some background on the projects and the organization responsible for them:

Nearest completion is a new revision of the compiled statutes of Louisiana. It is due to be out in printed form by January, ready for adoption by the legislature then at a special session, if one should be called, or at the regular session in May, 1950.

Well advanced is work on a proposed new constitution for the state. It is scheduled for completion by the end of this year. Nobody knows whether or when it will be adopted—that would be the task of a constitutional convention, if one should be called.

Still in very tentative stage is a project for revising and modernizing Louiana's famous civil code arnd code of practice. Unique among the states, Louisiana has a body of written law regulating right and obligations among citizens derived from the Napoleonic code introduced during French and Spanish colonial days.

The technical work on these projects has been delegated by the legislature to the Law Institute. This is a group of about 250 practicing lawyers, judges and law professors. It is a self-perpetuating professional agency of the state, but it has been recognized officially as the state's "law laboratory" and undertakes tasks assigned by the legislature. For example, its revision of the criminal code completed some years ago is now the criminal law of the state.

Now, as to the first of the three pending projects:

The statutes are the laws passed by the legislature. Hundreds are enacted every two years when the legislature meets regularly and more in between times, at special session. Many of them repeal or amend previous laws. So it becomes necessary from time to time for all these statutes to be put together with the repealed parts eliminated and the amendments duly noted. Then a lawyer trying to advise his client on, say, mineral rights, doesn't have to leaf through dozens of thick volumes containing the session laws of each meeting of the legislature. He can look up the subject and find grouped together the laws affecting it.

The last time such a thorough revising job was done was in 1870. The accumulation of laws since then has been prodigious. In putting the statutes together again the institute has been able to cut the wordage about in half, clear up some inconsistencies and in some cases when successive laws left a subject wholly in confusion, invite the attention of the legislature to the situation.

The constitution, of course, is the fundamental law of the state. Although the current constitution was adopted only in 1921, it has since been amended about 20 times. It contains much material that in most states is left in statutes. Also, by simply referring to acts of the legislature, the constitution in effect incorporates so much material outside its own covers that the law institute filled 18 pamphlets with this additional matter. Lawyers complain that in many fields the constitution has become almost unusuable. It is crammed with purely local regulations—for example Caddo parish had to have the whole state vote on a constitutional amendment before it could sell its jail site and New Orleans had to go through a similar procedure to get the right to fill a canal. The very fact that the constitution has been stretched to include so much material outside the fundamental law leads to its constantly being stretched more and more. Legislators and backers of particular projects follow the maximum, "when in doubt, do it by constitutional amendment."

So in 1946 the legislature told the law institute to go to work on a draft of a new and modernized constitution. A large research staff has been toiling ever since. It has run over its deadline—Dec. 31, 1948—and has been given an extension. When the draft is finished, it will have no legal effect, but it will be available as a starting point for any constitutional convention that may be called in the future. The idea is that with a concrete draft and a wealth of background material supporting the various provisions, a convention will be able to do a more workmanlike job of actually putting together a new constitution than it would if it tackled the undertaking cold.

The civil code revision will be a monumental project, expected to take years, but it is the kind that lights up the eyes of a legal scholar. Although at one time Louisiana's code was in danger of being scuttled in favor of uniformity with the common law prevailing elsewhere in the United States, lawyers now say that learned sentiment is swinging back to the old code.

France is revising its code. That revision will be studied by the law institute, as well as codes in force in Germany, Switzerland, Italy, Greece, and elsewhere outside the British common law area.

In a burst of enthusiasm at the law institute meeting, Clarence J. Morrow of the Tulane University law school predicted that "this revision will produce the most important document in the history of American private law."

Landlords Take Advantage Of Chance To Boost Rents

Half A Million Have Sought Official Blanks To Make Petitions

By Morgan Reynolds

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—At least 500,000 landlords already have taken the first steps toward seeking higher rent returns under the new control act, the federal housing expediter's office reported today.

That many have taken out official blanks on which to petition for a rent increase as provided under the "fair net operating income" formula released only last Monday. The government is printing an additional 400,000 forms.

But federal rent officials pointed out that this stampede to obtain the legal forms does not mean a broad-scale lifting of rent ceilings, because each landlord's petition will be handled separately for approval or rejection.

They attributed the rush to the fact that if a rent boost is approved it is retroactive to the date the landlord filed his petition, so the earlier he gets his document registered, the more money he stands to make.

Under the "fair net operating income" formula drafted by Housing Expeditor Tighe E. Woods, "small" landlords—those operating one to four rental dwelling units—will be allowed rent increases if their net incomes are less than 25 per cent of gross income. In such cases rents will be hiked to a 30 per cent level.

In the case of "large" landlords—those operating more than four rental units—increases will be permitted to bring operating income up to 25 per cent if the net figure is now below 20 per cent.

Congress specified in the new law that the owner is entitled to the fair net operating income but left it to Woods to decide just what that income is.

In an effort to clarify his new formula, Woods today prepared a long list of questions and answers covering further details of the program. For example, this is how the landlord figures out his net operating income:

First, he selects a "test" year, which may be the most recent full calendar or fiscal year, or any 12 consecutive months ending not more than 90 days before the date he files the petition. He then subtracts expenses and allowances for depreciation from the annual income of the test year.

What expenses can be included? Fuel and utilities, if supplied by the landlord, payroll, real estate taxes, insurance, interior painting and decoration, depreciation, management fees, repairs and replacements, janitorial supplies such as brooms, mops, cleaners, etc.

But there are restrictions on most of these items. For example if the property owner has to replace a roof during a "test" year, at a cost of $300, and the new roof's normal life is 15 years, then he can charge off only one-fifteenth or $20. However, he can figure in a similar proportionate share for the cost of repairs and replacements made in years prior to the test period he selected.

In figuring out his allowance for interior painting and decoration, he adds the cost of such work in the test year to the similar expenses in the two preceding years, then divides the total by three to determine the annual sum chargeable for this outlay.

On the item of depreciation, the landlord may use the amount shown on his latest federal income tax, providing it is not more than 21 per cent of his annual income, if he is a "small" landlord and not over 16 per cent if he operates more than four dwelling units.

Still left unanswered, however, is the big question of just how much more rent outlay is in store for each tenant. Federal officials said this can only be determined as the individual petitions are processed.

ACTRESS GETS FULL PRAISE FROM SULTAN

HOLLYWOOD, May 7.—(AP)—Shalely Virginia Mayo is "the most striking proof of God's existence," a London parson and the sultan of Morocco agreed today.

Actress Mayo didn't deny the compliment. She said:

"It seems to me there are many other ways for proving God's existence but it is not complimentary. I am very grateful to the minister for his comment."

She referred to words the Rev. A. J. Long, of Southwark Unitarian Church, London, wrote in his church magazine.

"The sultan of Morocco told Virginia Mayo, a beautiful American film star, that she was for him the most striking proof of God's existence.

"Why not?

"The beauty of woman is a revelation of God to man."

Miss Mayo, St. Louis born, is Hollywood's perennial convention queen. For her selection as queen of the classified ad men's convention and flower queen of the society of American florists and dozens of similar honors she has been widely publicized.

Perhaps that is how she caught the sultan's eye.

Incidentally, Miss Mayo, 26, is married to Actor Michael O'Shea.

Mr. Long, 29, is a bachelor.

These prices feature "Extras" that aren't!

IF you're price-conscious these days as you shop for new cars, you've probably made a big discovery.

It's important to find out what the price includes—particularly in the normal "spread" between list and delivered prices.

Take these Buick prices given here. All of them, as the panel tells you, cover such universally wanted accessories as radio and antenna, heater and defroster, windshield washers and built-in back-up lights.

These are individually itemized on your bill of sale. Not itemized, but still included in your Buick when you get it, are many things that classify as extra-cost items on many other cars.

For instance, Foamtex seat cushions are an extra value on Buick SUPERS and ROADMASTERS that cost you nothing extra. You get direction signals, rear wheel shields, a flexible steering wheel, an air cleaner, an oil filter, a clock—all included in the basic list price. On all ROADMASTERS, these prices even cover Dynaflow Drive as standard equipment, not an extra-cost item.

Included also, of course, are such Buick extra values as Fireball power, which you get nowhere else—all-coil springing, almost an exclusive—the widest rims in the industry—and that very special and desirable solid Buick feel.

So—check the "extras" when you price today's cars. Check the "deal" too, and make sure it's as fair and aboveboard as the Buick sales policy.

We're pretty sure what your conclusion will be when you see what stepped-up production is doing to deliveries. You'll decide "Buick's the buy!"—and get your order in.

NEVILLE BAND FEATURED HERE

Music Week Stressed By Program At Brown Hall Auditorium

Music by the Neville High School band was one of the features of national Music Week presented at Northeast Junior College in Brown Hall Auditorium, under the direction of Ralph Cannon.

The organization comprising 59 students gained distinction at the musi festival held this spring in Ruston, where it was awarded a "superior" rating, the highest which could be granted.

The program given at N. J. C. represented an interesting variety, according to many persons in the audience who spoke of the band as exceptional in its portrayal of talent, the interest which the students displayed in their performance and the fine cooperation of personnel.

Mr. Cannon's choice of numbers pleased the listeners, judged by hearty response and comments which followed the program.

"Fantasy for Three," a paraphrase of Rubenstein's "Melody in F," was considered one of the highlights of the program. The number featured Charles Stratford, Donald Stewart and Leland Sims, cornetists. Other selections included: "Irish Tune from County Derry," a march, "Chimes of Victory;" "Mexican Hat Dance;" "Lady from Spain," selection from the Broadway success, "Annie, Get Your Gun;" a march, "Speedway;" overture, "Bitter Sweet," by Noel Coward, and "At the Minstrel Show," a rare bit of comedy, with the director and several students injecting clever lines into the portrayal of the typical minstrel.

Principal Paul J. Neal of Neville spoke briefly at the program. He stressed the feeling of being at home at the college, so closely did he associate the Neville High School and Northeast Junior College. He took it for granted that many of the graduates from the high school would continue their work on the college campus, he added.

On the schedule of musical treats for N. J. C. is the program to be presented next Thursday by the Ouachita Parish High School Band under direction of Walter C. Minniear.

MAY REACH PAIR LOST ON BORDER

Pilot, Student Nurse Are Believed Wandering In Canadian Wilds

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 7.—(AP)—Five days in jungle-thick mountain-rimmed forest may be climaxed today by the rescue of a pilot and a student whose plane piled into a snowbank Monday.

The Royal Canadian Air Force says it is positive the two persons wandering in the wilds near the United States border were Pilot Bill Grant, 30, of Vancouver and Student Nurse Sheila Cure, 28.

"They are in good physical condition," reported Lt. A. H. Raumer of Fort Angelerf, Wash., pilot of a U. S. coast guard helicopter. On the helicopter circled the crash scene on lonely, snow-capped Hozomeen as three R. C. A. F. para-rescue men reached the survivors in a velley six miles from the wrecked plane.

Sherr Cliffs, mountain torrents and high, dense timber handicap the rescuers.

It now is planned to bring the couple to a logging camp, a distance of 10 miles through treacherous country. From there they will be guided to the helicopter which will fly them 40 miles to Princeton, where an R. C. A. F. plane will be ready to bring them to Vancouver.

A ground search party of 10 men is pushing towards the scene from a base camp established at Decco-Walton Logging Co., included in the party is Grant's 34-year-old brother, Ernie.

Mount Hozomeen, in northern Washington state, is four miles south of the Canadian boundary and about 100 miles from Vancouver.

Grant apparently went off course while flying in a showstorm after leaving Penticton, B. C., 180 miles east of here, late Monday. He was en route from Alberta where Miss Cure, a friend, had been visiting her parents in Cardston.

"It's going to be a tough battle," said Squadron Leader D. R. Walker of No. 12 R. C. A. F. group headquarters, in reporting plans to bring the couple out.

"It may be won today or it may not end until tomorrow."

GREEN CLINIC TO BE VISITED

Ruston Institution Will Have Open House On Sunday, May 15

RUSTON, La., May 7.—(Special)—Sunday, May 15, the Green Clinic in Ruston will hold open house for their friends and vistors who are invited to inspect their modern building. Dr. Marvin T. Green, and his two brothers, Dr. Felton and Dr. Ragan Green, together with six other doctors and their staff have organized the Green Clinic and opened this new medical center in Ruston.

The building is strictly modern in appearance and design on the outside and inside. It is completely air conditioned and painted in soft colors to make it a comfortable place for patients and doctors. All rooms use frosted glass over full windows to furnish natural light and in each one green plants that get a dose of vitamins daily brighten the scene.

A full range of the medical profession is offered patients with a staff that includes Dr. Marvin Green as chief surgeon assisted by Dr. J. A. Thomas. Dr. Felton Green attends to the dental service with four chairs and two X-ray machines. Dr. Ragan Green is in charge of the X-ray department which is one of the most complete in the south. His deep therapy equipment covers all range of service known in this field.

Dr. Carl Langford is the obstretician and Dr. Bruce Everist is the pediatrist who also has a child psychologist in his office. Dr. Henry Roane and Dr. Joe Smith, Jr., practice internal medicine and Dr. H. H. Harms cares for the eye, ear, nose and throat work.

A staff of registered nurses and a complete laboratory that has done original work on the RH factor plus an office force under the direction of Cecil Colvin, business manager, complete the staff.

The clinic is connected to the Ruston Sanitarium by a passageway since they have no beds and the X-ray department is jointly used. All the force will be on hand Sunday, May 15 to show visitors the new building and equipment.

Curtain Call Little Theatre

Final details for "The Philadelphia Story" trek to veterans hospital, Alexandria on Saturday, May 14, were completed this week with the exception of refreshments and the committee members to handle this end of the entertainment. President of Little Theatre Frank Breese and director Elizabeth Whitfield talked with Mrs. Ione B. Hopkins, Red Cross field director and she says that special service officer Herb Le Brescu has assumed full responsibility for the scenery and furniture needed to stage the three act play and also will create any special lighting effects needed. The Alexandria Little Theatre CenLa will stand by to do their bit in making the presentation a success and have volunteered to furnish any additional things or equipment needed.

The cast of "The Philadelphia Story" and the board of directors who will accompany the show, have promise of a rousing welcome when they arrive. Mrs. Hokins is a graduate of Randolph Macon College and was a school mate of Mrs. Frances Stubbs Huey, Mrs. Emily Trousdale Wright and Mrs. Frances Germany Hale. She says she feels quite close to the city of Monroe and it is always a pleasure to welcome a representative.

OFF HAND—Mrs. Helen Fernandez tells us that she will go to Alexandria Saturday to see daughter Helen Allen, playing the role of Dianah in "The Philadelphia Story" and son-in-law John Allen in the role of Mike, the reporter—Newcomer Charles Tubbs who is appearing in "The Philadelphia Story" in one of the leading roles as C. K. Dexter Haven, is now associated with the firm of Hale and McNeil—Invitations will be in the mail in the next week or 10 days to all the hard working actors, actresses and stage crews of the five plays of this season, along with the directors for the plays and the officers and board of directors of Little Theatre, for the garden party at Miss Emma Louise Beidenharns, scheduled for June 4. Miss Emma Louise's garden is one of the most talked about show places of the twin cities and it is a special event in Little Theatre history to have its active participants so graciously entertained by a charming hostess who has spent months creating her beautiful garden.—Keeping up with the Gilbert Findlay's, Alice writes from up New Jersey way that Gil is in the midst of learning lines for the Sketch Club's last play of the season "John Loves Mary." At the time she wrote the letter he was standing by for a blood transfusion for a friend of theirs who was undergoing surgery. They expect Kellogg to wind up the New Jersey job in early summer and wouldn't it be nice if the company found it expedient to transfer those active, friendly Findlay's back to Monroe. Betcha they'd be happy about the whole thing too.—Famous author Kathleen Norris will play her third dramatic role for the Palo Alto Community Players, appearing as Adeline Whitoak in "Whitoaks of Jalna," on April 20-24 and 26-30. She first played amateur theatricals in 1924 and attracted so much interest that she became the only woman ever to make Time's cover because she was acting in an amateur show.—On Tuesday, May 17, the Neville High Speech Club will present the ever popular play "A Date With Judy," under the direction of Miss Marilyn Rosenberg. —Somehow or other and because of conflicting engagements, we didn't get our interview with Miss Eve Bradford for this week's Sunday column. We take it Miss Eve is getting around among her friends a bit more these days and that is wonderful news. We have got a date with her come Monday or Tuesday of this next week and we promise to come forth with a sketch on this well-liked lady who has been an integral part of the social goings on of Monroe for many years.

16 STATES MEET IN COTTON PARLEY

Agricultural Recommendations Made At Conference At Memphis

The Louisiana Delta Council made history and set an all time record in getting 16 cotton producing states together on an agricultural program at a belt-wide cotton conference meeting just concluded in Memphis, it was announced yesterday. Every cotton producing state from California to North Carolina was represented by qualified delegates to work out and adopt a sound and just program that would fit the need of all 16 states. This program is now being prepared and will be submitted to the senate agricultural committee, Washington, D. C., in the very near future. All states have pledged their support in trying to get this program approved, stated W. H. Farmer of Delhi, manager of the council.

The Louisiana Delta Council is seriously concerned about all problems relating to agriculture, and will continue its efforts in trying to obtain for our area the best possible program that will fit the needs of all agriculture producers, Mr. Farmer said.

A few of the recommendations made at this meeting will be the request for;

1. Full 90 per cent parity.
2. National minimum baleage allotment.
3. Baleage allotment for 1950.
4. Frotection for small farm operators.
5. Extra long staple consideration.
6. Avoidance of undue restrictions on acreage converted from cotton.
7. Cotton acreage allocations to states.
8. Request for national cotton acreage allotment of 22,500,000 acres for 1950, which is some less than was planted in 1948.

Manager Farmer said based on a 1945-48 average Louisiana and Mississippi will be allowed to increase its acreage. Louisiana's increase will be approximately 88,000 over the 1948 crop, if this suggested program can be passed in Washington, D. C.

GIRL RIDES OUT 1000-FOOT DROP

SAN RAFAEL, Calif., May 7.—(AP)—A girl rode a station wagon over a 1,000-foot embankment today. At the bottom of the steep hill she crawled out as the car, upright, was stopped by a boulder. She had a broken nose and a cut eye.

She was Miss Alice Smith, 24, San Francisco, a secretary for a Flight Instruction Company.

Highway patrolmen said her southband car was about halfway up the long grade approach to the Golden Gate bridge. A tire burst. The car swerved across the roadway and plunged over the steep hill.

IN MOVIELAND

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD, May 6.—(AP)—Here is one maker of a film on a Negro theme who expects no trouble from its showing in the south.

He is film veteran Clarence Brown, who directed "The Yearling," "National Velvet," "The Human Comedy," "Idiot's Delight," and many of the Garbo pictures. He has just returned from Oxford, Miss., where he filmed "Intruder In the Dust," about a near-lynching of a Negro in the south.

"The folks in Oxford liked the story, and the Negro actors in the cast thought it was great," he said. "The only ones left to complain are the Commies, and I can't see what they can object to."

Brown's film is one of four on Negro themes soon to reach the U. S. public. But he minimizes reports of a "race" between the four competitors.

"Our picture is merely a good whodunit," he said. "It concerns three people who save a man from a lynching. The man could be Negro or he could be white; it makes no difference to the story."

Massachusetts-born but educated in the south, Brown said he didn't expect southerners to object to the film.

"The one thing you can't do is show black and white sex on the screen," he declared. (The currently filmed "Pinky" depicts a romance of a part-Negro girl and a white man.)

The director shot only three days of "Intruder In the Dust" at M.-G.-M. studios. Claude Jarman, Jr., and the rest of the cast acted out most of the story in the stores, homes, streets and fields of Oxford. Brown is enthused about this method.

"I was ready to retire from pictures," he said, "but this picture has given me a terrific lift. I'd like to shoot all my pictures this way. If I had my way, my studio would be four trucks of equipment. I'd shoot nothing inside a studio's walls.

"Since the war, the public demands reality in pictures. Hollywood thought it could take any story and cover it up by beautiful photography and a big production. The public is too smart for that now.

"If would certainly hesitate to film a war picture on a Hollywood stage. Movie goers have seen too much of the real thing to go for anything phony."

Even though his "Yearling" was M.-G.-M.'s biggest grosser next to "The Big Parade," Brown wasn't entirely happy with it.

"The studio had so much money in it, they thought it had to be a big production," he said. "I would have done it simply, without color, without the deer ballet. It was merely an intimate story of three people living in a forest."

Truman Says Congressmen Need Praise

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—President Truman told lawmakers today that people "don't give a damn whether you know it or not" when they agree with a member of congress. He said his 10 years in the senate convinced him of that.

Mr. Truman joined Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) in expressing hope that constituents of the senators and representatives will toss them a few bouquets along with the brickbats.

Vandenberg said a legislator's road is strewn with enough rocks without the daily mail coming in piled with nothing but harsh camplaints. A few kind words now and then would help, he observed.

Mr. Truman attended a downtown luncheon for Vandenberg and House Speaker Rayburn (D.-Tex.). They had just received at the White House the annual Collier's congressional awards for distinguished service to the nation in 1948.

The president presented silver plaques and $10,000 checks to each. The checks will go to public purposes designated by the two legislators. Vandenberg said his check will go to the First Congregational Church in his home town of Grand Rapids, Mich., as a memorial to his mother who was a member 49 years. He also is a member.

Rayburn said he will establish a Sam Rayburn library fund in his home town, Bonham, Tex. He will add to it for construction of a library building. His own offical papers and books will go into it from his collections of a legislative career beginning more than 40 years ago.

Tributes to the two men spilled over into the luncheon which lasted two hours and a half. Mr. Truman got his share of greetings because tomorrow is his 65th birthday.

The gathering, including Vice-President Barkley, Chief Justice Vinson, and members of the cabinet, sang "Happy Birthday."

Seizing upon the point made by Vandenberg about congressional mail, the president said he realized full well what was meant.

He said a lawmaker must remember that the people expect him to find out the facts and then make up his mind as to what is right.

When not in accord with some of his constituents, he added, a member must give them the facts and if he is right the people will support him.

"As long as that condition prevails our form of government will be safe," he said.

He declared he sometimes has had disagreements with congress—the 80th he said after a pause, but not the 81st. He added both the president and congress have the right to disagree with each other and it is up to the people to decide who is right.

The 80th was the Republican controlled congress he denounced in the 1948 campaign. The 81st in the present democratic congress.

Mr. Truman expressed the hope that out of the Collier's awards will grow responsibility on the part of constituents to their legislators and responsibility on the part of the latter to do what they think is right, even though at times this may run counter to the attitude of some constituents.

"Right does and will prevail," he asserted.

Sweeping Projects Slated To Change Louisiana Laws

By Edmond Le Breton

BATON ROUGE, La., May 7.—(AP)—There has been plenty of talk the last few days about three sweeping projects to reorganize and perhaps revise many of the laws under which Louisianians live.

The talk was centered around the joint meeting here of the Louisiana Law Institute and the Louisiana Bar Association, which brought to Baton Rouge a large cross-section of the state's lawyers and jurists.

Here is some background on the projects and the organization responsible for them:

Nearest completion is a new revision of the compiled statutes of Louisiana. It is due to be out in printed form by January, ready for adoption by the legislature then at a special session, if one should be called, or at the regular session in May, 1950.

Well advanced is work on a proposed new constitution for the state. It is scheduled for completion by the end of this year. Nobody knows whether or when it will be adopted—that would be the task of a constitutional convention, if one should be called.

Still in very tentative stage is a project for revising and modernizing Louiana's famous civil code arnd code of practice. Unique among the states, Louisiana has a body of written law regulating right and obligations among citizens derived from the Napoleonic code introduced during French and Spanish colonial days.

The technical work on these projects has been delegated by the legislature to the Law Institute. This is a group of about 250 practicing lawyers, judges and law professors. It is a self-perpetuating professional agency of the state, but it has been recognized officially as the state's "law laboratory" and undertakes tasks assigned by the legislature. For example, its revision of the criminal code completed some years ago is now the criminal law of the state.

Now, as to the first of the three pending projects:

The statutes are the laws passed by the legislature. Hundreds are enacted every two years when the legislature meets regularly and more in between times, at special session. Many of them repeal or amend previous laws. So it becomes necessary from time to time for all these statutes to be put together with the repealed parts eliminated and the amendments duly noted. Then a lawyer trying to advise his client on, say, mineral rights, doesn't have to leaf through dozens of thick volumes containing the session laws of each meeting of the legislature. He can look up the subject and find grouped together the laws affecting it.

The last time such a thorough revising job was done was in 1870. The accumulation of laws since then has been prodigious. In putting the statutes together again the institute has been able to cut the wordage about in half, clear up some inconsistencies and in some cases when successive laws left a subject wholly in confusion, invite the attention of the legislature to the situation.

The constitution, of course, is the fundamental law of the state. Although the current constitution was adopted only in 1921, it has since been amended about 20 times. It contains much material that in most states is left in statutes. Also, by simply referring to acts of the legislature, the constitution in effect incorporates so much material outside its own covers that the law institute filled 18 pamphlets with this additional matter. Lawyers complain that in many fields the constitution has become almost unusuable. It is crammed with purely local regulations—for example Caddo parish had to have the whole state vote on a constitutional amendment before it could sell its jail site and New Orleans had to go through a similar procedure to get the right to fill a canal. The very fact that the constitution has been stretched to include so much material outside the fundamental law leads to its constantly being stretched more and more. Legislators and backers of particular projects follow the maximum, "when in doubt, do it by constitutional amendment."

The constitution proper, the longest in the United States, fills 242 printed pages.

So in 1946 the legislature told the law institute to go to work on a draft of a new and modernized constitution. A large research staff has been toiling ever since. It has run over its deadline—Dec. 31, 1948—and has been given an extension. When the draft is finished, it will have no legal effect, but it will be available as a starting point for any constitutional convention that may be called in the future. The idea is that with a concrete draft and a wealth of background material supporting the various provisions, a convention will be able to do a more workmanlike job of actually putting together a new constitution than it would if it tackled the undertaking cold.

The civil code revision will be a monumental project, expected to take years, but it is the kind that lights up the eyes of a legal scholar. Although at one time Louisiana's code was in danger of being scuttled in favor of uniformity with the common law prevailing elsewhere in the United States, lawyers now say that learned sentiment is swinging back to the old code.

France is revising its code. That revision will be studied by the law institute, as well as codes in force in Germany, Switzerland, Italy, Greece, and elsewhere outside the British common law area.

In a burst of enthusiasm at the law institute meeting, Clarence J. Morrow of the Tulane University law school predicted that "this revision will produce the most important document in the history of American private law."

Landlords Take Advantage Of Chance To Boost Rents

Half A Million Have Sought Official Blanks To Make Petitions

By Morgan Reynolds

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—At least 500,000 landlords already have taken the first steps toward seeking higher rent returns under the new control act, the federal housing expediter's office reported today.

That many have taken out official blanks on which to petition for a rent increase as provided under the "fair net operating income" formula released only last Monday. The government is printing an additional 400,000 forms.

But federal rent officials pointed out that this stampede to obtain the legal forms does not mean a broad-scale lifting of rent ceilings, because each landlord's petition will be handled separately for approval or rejection.

They attributed the rush to the fact that if a rent boost is approved it is retroactive to the date the landlord filed his petition, so the earlier he gets his document registered, the more money he stands to make.

Under the "fair net operating income" formula drafted by Housing Expeditor Tighe E. Woods, "small" landlords—those operating one to four rental dwelling units—will be allowed rent increases if their net incomes are less than 25 per cent of gross income. In such cases rents will be hiked to a 30 per cent level.

In the case of "large" landlords—those operating more than four rental units—increases will be permitted to bring operating income up to 25 per cent if the net figure is now below 20 per cent.

Congress specified in the new law that the owner is entitled to the fair net operating income but left it to Woods to decide just what that income is.

In an effort to clarify his new formula, Woods today prepared a long list of questions and answers covering further details of the program. For example, this is how the landlord figures out his net operating income:

First, he selects a "test" year, which may be the most recent full calendar or fiscal year, or any 12 consecutive months ending not more than 90 days before the date he files the petition. He then subtracts expenses and allowances for depreciation from the annual income of the test year.

What expenses can be included? Fuel and utilities, if supplied by the landlord, payroll, real estate taxes, insurance, interior painting and decoration, depreciation, management fees, repairs and replacements, janitorial supplies such as brooms, mops, cleaners, etc.

But there are restrictions on most of these items. For example if the property owner has to replace a roof during a "test" year, at a cost of $300, and the new roof's normal life is 15 years, then he can charge off only one-fifteenth or $20. However, he can figure in a similar proportionate share for the cost of repairs and replacements made in years prior to the test period he selected.

In figuring out his allowance for interior painting and decoration, he adds the cost of such work in the test year to the similar expenses in the two preceding years, then divides the total by three to determine the annual sum chargeable for this outlay.

On the item of depreciation, the landlord may use the amount shown on his latest federal income tax, providing it is not more than 21 per cent of his annual income, if he is a "small" landlord and not over 16 per cent if he operates more than four dwelling units.

Still left unanswered, however, is the big question of just how much more rent outlay is in store for each tenant. Federal officials said this can only be determined as the individual petitions are processed.

ACTRESS GETS FULL PRAISE FROM SULTAN

HOLLYWOOD, May 7.—(AP)—Shalely Virginia Mayo is "the most striking proof of God's existence," a London parson and the sultan of Morocco agreed today.

Actress Mayo didn't deny the compliment. She said:

"It seems to me there are many other ways for proving God's existence but it is not complimentary. I am very grateful to the minister for his comment."

She referred to words the Rev. A. J. Long, of Southwark Unitarian Church, London, wrote in his church magazine.

"The sultan of Morocco told Virginia Mayo, a beautiful American film star, that she was for him the most striking proof of God's existence.

"Why not?

"The beauty of woman is a revelation of God to man."

Miss Mayo, St. Louis born, is Hollywood's perennial convention queen. For her selection as queen of the classified ad men's convention and flower queen of the society of American florists and dozens of similar honors she has been widely publicized.

Perhaps that is how she caught the sultan's eye.

Incidentally, Miss Mayo, 26, is married to Actor Michael O'Shea.

Mr. Long, 29, is a bachelor.

BUSINESS DIVISION OF DRIVE FORMED

Hulin And Nichols Head Committee To Solicit Employes Of Firms

Organization of the business employes' division of the Salvation Army Red Shield Community Center was off to a flying start at a meeting held yesterday at campaign headquarters. The division is headed by Curtis Nichols, president of the Nichols Motor Company and Lawrence J. Hulin, manager of the Virginia Hotel.

Employes of all business concerns in Monroe and West Monroe have eight or more employes are being solicited by this division it was said. Each firm executive will be asked to appoint a company chairman from among the employes, who will be responsible for solicitations within that organization. Excellent cooperation is being realized from management and employe groups and arleady a considerable number of firms have requested speakers from the campaign speakers' bureau to appear at company rallies attended by employes, it was said.

One hundred and thirty-eight organizations fall into this classification and campaign officials estimate that three thousand, two-hundred employes of these firms will participate financially in this community recreation center program.

Serving as group chairmen under Nichols and Hulin are James H. Hornbeak, Roger Dishongh, J. H. Scogin, Jr., and F. T. Peters.

The kick-off of this division will occur simultaneously with that of the industrial and public employes' divisions, and will be held next Monday evening on the roof garden of the Virginia Hotel. It will be a dinner occasion and well informed speakers will tell the purposes of the building and the recreational, spiritual and welfare services which will be rendered, it was announced. All soliciting members of the division will be present to receive instructions and campaign supplies.

In addition, business executives and company chairmen from all firms are urgently invited to be present, it was said and campaign headquarters announced that phone calls will be made Monday to determine a total attendance from each firm.

These prices feature "Extras" that aren't!

IF you're price-conscious these days as you shop for new cars, you've probably made a big discovery.

It's important to find out what the price includes—particularly in the normal "spread" between list and delivered prices.

Take these Buick prices given here. All of them, as the panel tells you, cover such universally wanted accessories as radio and antenna, heater and defroster, windshield washers and built-in back-up lights.

These are individually itemized on your bill of sale. Not itemized, but still included in your Buick when you get it, are many things that classify as extra-cost items on many other cars.

For instance, Foamtex seat cushions are an extra value on Buick SUPERS and ROADMASTERS that cost you nothing extra. You get direction signals, rear wheel shields, a flexible steering wheel, an air cleaner, an oil filter, a clock—all included in the basic list price. On all ROADMASTERS, these prices even cover Dynaflow Drive as standard equipment, not an extra-cost item.

Included also, of course, are such Buick extra values as Fireball power, which you get nowhere else—all-coil springing, almost an exclusive—the widest rims in the industry—and that very special and desirable solid Buick feel.

So—check the "extras" when you price today's cars. Check the "deal" too, and make sure it's as fair and aboveboard as the Buick sales policy.

We're pretty sure what your conclusion will be when you see what stepped-up production is doing to deliveries. You'll decide "Buick's the buy!"—and get your order in.

MISS MAY COKER HEADS A. A. U. W.

Miss Mary Hester, Vice-President, Miss Olmstead Elected Secretary

The newly-elected officers of the local branch of the American Association of University Women for the coming year are Miss May Coker, president, and Miss Cliffie Olmstead, secretary, Miss Mary Hester, vice-president and Miss Ina Merle Thomas, treasurer, will continue their term of office for another year.

Miss Coker, head of the social science department at Neville High School, has been active in civic and school affairs ever since coming to Monroe several years ago, and has been an outstanding member of the American Association of University Women, Miss Coker received her Master's degree from Vanderbilt University.

Miss Olmstead, also active in civic and social affairs of the city, is a graduate of Louisiana State University.

The nominating committee composed of Mrs. W. R. Hammond, Mrs. Sara Hollingsworth and Miss Harriet Boyle, in making their recommendations to the branch, pointed out that the local group was indeed fortunate to have such a qualified group of officers for the ensuing year.

PRESIDENT

Miss May Coker, recently elected president of the local branch of the American Association of University Women. Miss Coker holds an A. B. degree from Martha Washington College, Abingdon, Va. She has done graduate work at the University of Virginia, the University of Colorado, and the University of Texas. She received her M. A. degree from Vanderbilt University. Miss Coker has taught in the schools of Louisiana for a number of years and for the past several years has taught history at Neville High School where she also sponsors the senior class, the Tigerettes and the school's year book.

SIX AUTOMOBILES ARE BURGLARIZED

Monroe police reported yesterday that six cars parked Friday night in the Central Service parking lot on Jefferson street were broken into and several burglarized.

Investigating officers said the cars were broken into between 8 and 10 p. m. The burglar's loot included three pair of sunglasses, a light, red wallet, a key, some change and a five cell head light.

Entrance to the locked cars was gained by breaking out the ventilation windows. The vehicles broken into were reported to have belonged to James F. Kennedy, 103 South Trenton street, Ruston; Miss Beverly Tolar of Mer Rouge; Paul Eisenvich; W. A. Rogers, Bastrop; Leon G. Sugar, 1313 North Third street, Monroe and Thomas F. Easterling, Monroe.

IN MOVIELAND

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD, May 6.—(AP)—Here is one maker of a film on a Negro theme who expects no trouble from its showing in the south.

He is film veteran Clarence Brown, who directed "The Yearling," "National Velvet," "The Human Comedy," "Idiot's Delight," and many of the Garbo pictures. He has just returned from Oxford, Miss., where he filmed "Intruder In the Dust," about a near-lynching of a Negro in the south.

"The folks in Oxford liked the story, and the Negro actors in the cast thought it was great," he said. "The only ones left to complain are the Commies, and I can't see what they can object to."

Brown's film is one of four on Negro themes soon to reach the U. S. public. But he minimizes reports of a "race" between the four competitors.

"Our picture is merely a good whodunit," he said. "It concerns three people who save a man from a lynching. The man could be Negro or he could be white; it makes no difference to the story."

Massachusetts-born but educated in the south, Brown said he didn't expect southerners to object to the film.

"The one thing you can't do is show black and white sex on the screen," he declared. (The currently filmed "Pinky" depicts a romance of a part-Negro girl and a white man.)

The director shot only three days of "Intruder In the Dust" at M.-G.-M. studios. Claude Jarman, Jr., and the rest of the cast acted out most of the story in the stores, homes, streets and fields of Oxford. Brown is enthused about this method.

"I was ready to retire from pictures," he said, "but this picture has given me a terrific lift. I'd like to shoot all my pictures this way. If I had my way, my studio would be four trucks of equipment. I'd shoot nothing inside a studio's walls.

"Since the war, the public demands reality in pictures. Hollywood thought it could take any story and cover it up by beautiful photography and a big production. The public is too smart for that now.

"I would certainly hesitate to film a war picture on a Hollywood stage. Movie goers have seen too much of the real thing to go for anything phony."

Even though his "Yearling" was M.-G.-M.'s biggest grosser next to "The Big Parade," Brown wasn't entirely happy with it.

"The studio had so much money in it, they thought it had to be a big production," he said. "I would have done it simply, without color, without the deer ballet. It was merely an intimate story of three people living in a forest."

PLAN INSTALLATION

Friday, May 13th there will be a public installation of Pythian Sunshine Girls at 8 o'clock at the Knights of Pythias hall. All knights and Pythian Sisters and their friends are cordially invited.

The PHANTOM

By LEE FALK and WILSON McCOY

THIS STALEMATE IS ABSURD, DUKE JORGE. WHY DON'T YOU GO?

AFTER YOU, MY DEAR BARON!

IN THE PATHIA PALACE KING PATER WATCHES NERVOUSLY AS THE RIVALS TRY TO OUTSIT AND OUTSTARE EACH OTHER---

ISN'T THIS THRILLING, MAJOR CARL? THE TWO MOST POWERFUL MEN IN THE KINGDOM, FIGHTING OVER LITTLE ME!

THIS WON'T LAST LONG. SOMEBODY'S GOING TO EXPLODE - PROBABLY YOUR ROYAL FATHER!

I PROMISED TO MARRY BOTH OF THEM, BUT I SIMPLY CAN'T DECIDE BETWEEN THEM, DADDY.

GWENA, I SHOULD HAVE SPANKED YOU YEARS AGO! MAJOR, WHAT'LL I DO?

SOMETHING, FAST, SIRE! BEFORE THOSE TWO HOTHEADS START TO FIGHT!

WE FEAR IF THIS WAR IS FOUGHT IN PATHIA, IT WILL SPREAD TO THE JUNGLE, O GHOST WHO WALKS.

MEANWHILE, THE BORDER CHIEFTAINS FACE THE PHANTOM IN THE DEEP WOODS.

CHIEFTAINS, THIS MOUNTAIN WAR IS NOT OUR AFFAIR. IF IT COMES THIS WAY, WE WILL BE READY. LET THEM BATTLE. WE HAVE OUR OWN WORRIES.

Copr. 1949, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.

HOW RIGHT HE IS! MY WIFE, FOR EXAMPLE.

GUARDS ARE POSTED FOR MILES ALONG THE JUNGLE'S EDGE---

SPEARS AND ARROWS~AGAINST GUNS AND TANKS? WE WON'T HAVE A CHANCE IF THEY START FIGHTING. I MUST GO TO PATHIA!

BUT THE PHANTOM IS SECRETLY WORRIED.

The PHANTOM

By LEE FALK and WILSON McCOY

THIS STALEMATE IS ABSURD, DUKE JORGE. WHY DON'T YOU GO?

AFTER YOU, MY DEAR BARON!

ISN'T THIS THRILLING, MAJOR CARL? THE TWO MOST POWERFUL MEN IN THE KINGDOM, FIGHTING OVER LITTLE ME!

THIS WON'T LAST LONG. SOMEBODY'S GOING TO EXPLODE - PROBABLY YOUR ROYAL FATHER!

I PROMISED TO MARRY BOTH OF THEM, BUT I SIMPLY CAN'T DECIDE BETWEEN THEM, DADDY.

GWENA, I SHOULD HAVE SPANKED YOU YEARS AGO! MAJOR, WHAT'LL I DO?

SOMETHING, FAST, SIRE! BEFORE THOSE TWO HOTHEADS START TO FIGHT!

WE FEAR IF THIS WAR IS FOUGHT IN PATHIA, IT WILL SPREAD TO THE JUNGLE, O GHOST WHO WALKS.

MEANWHILE, THE BORDER CHIEFTAINS FACE THE PHANTOM IN THE DEEP WOODS.

CHIEFTAINS, THIS MOUNTAIN WAR IS NOT OUR AFFAIR. IF IT COMES THIS WAY, WE WILL BE READY. LET THEM BATTLE. WE HAVE OUR OWN WORRIES.

Copr. 1949, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.

~AND HE SAID, "WE HAVE OUR OWN WORRIES."

HOW RIGHT HE IS! MY WIFE, FOR EXAMPLE.

GUARDS ARE POSTED FOR MILES ALONG THE JUNGLE'S EDGE~~

SPEARS AND ARROWS~AGAINST GUNS AND TANKS? WE WON'T HAVE A CHANCE IF THEY START FIGHTING. I MUST GO TO PATHIA!

WILSON McCOY 5-8

BUT THE PHANTOM IS SECRETLY WORRIED.

TRIS BAGLES'S EXPEDITION TO NELITONGA, A STRANGE, UNEXPLORED PACIFIC ISLE, NEARS ITS DESTINATION.

I'LL HAND IT TO YOUR CREW, TRIS! THEY FLEW THE ROUTE LIKE IT WAS A SUNDAY AFTERNOON JAUNT!

YEAH-- HERMAN AND JOE LOGGED A LOT OF FANCY FLYING IN THE NAVY!

T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

JIM BEATS A DISCREET RETREAT. CLAWS AND A PISTOL ARE NO MATCH FOR GUERRILLAS WITH AUTOMATIC WEAPONS.

BUT KHO IS TEMPORARILY PINNED DOWN WHEN KOLU COMES TO JIM'S AID WITH A FLANK ATTACK.

Paul NORRIS 5-8

BACK IN CAMP, CRAGG STILL WON'T LEAVE HIS LAST LEOPARD. JIM SHOOTS, THEN BLUFFS: "THE NEXT BULLET IS FOR YOU, UNLESS YOU LET ME GET LINDA OUT OF THIS DEATHTRAP!"

FLASH GORDON

by MAC RABOY and DON MOORE

LOKE PLOTS WITH FAY TO WIN TOR'S THRONE. "MY BROTHER THINKS I'M DEAD. WHEN HE DEDICATES MY STATUE, WE'LL SEE WHO'S DEAD -- CAREFUL WITH THAT BLASTITE!"

DISGUISED AS AN OLD BEGGAR, LOKE WATCHES HIS OWN MEMORIAL CEREMONY, MAKING READY TO DUCK WHEN TOR UNVEILS THE BOOBY TRAP.

ZARINA KNEELS BEFORE THE STATUE OF HER SUPPOSEDLY DEAD SON. LOKE MUTTERS TO FAY: "TOO BAD, BUT THE BLAST WILL DOOM HER ALONG WITH TOR."

AT THE LAST MOMENT TOR DELEGATES THE UNVEILING TO A PALACE OFFICIAL. THE STATUE EXPLODES IN A CLOUD OF BLASTITE, HURLING THE SPECTATORS TO THE GROUND!

ZARINA IS DAZED BUT ALIVE, SAVED BY KNEELING. FLASH WONDERS WHY FAY WAS SO SAFELY SHIELDED-- AND SEES THE "BEGGAR" SLINKING AWAY.

LOKE RUNS TOO FAST FOR AN OLD BEGGAR. FLASH LOSES HIM IN THE CROWD-- BUT LOKE DOUBLES BACK, AIMING A GRAVITOR AT HIS NEMESIS.
